Council Must Decide Future of Center

"There is no doubt in my mind that we need a new convention center in Virginia Beach," said Councilman Larry Marshall. "But our committee does not feel it is qualified to make any concrete recommendations to Council."

Marshall is chairman of a special three-man committee set up early this year by City Council to look into the feasibility and possibilities of a new convention-cultural center and stadium in Virginia Beach. Sam Scott, director of the present center and Roger Scott, assistant city manager, also serve on that committee, as other Councilmen.

During the winter the committee made a flying trip to several southern cities to look at centers recently built to fill needs similar to those of Virginia Beach. When they returned, Marshall said that he was most impressed by the $6 million center in Monroe, La., and by the stadium in Memphis. He also said then that he felt unilateral action on a stadium by Virginia Beach was out of the question and that it should be an area-wide endeavor.

The committee has been inactive since that time but met Monday to draw a report to be presented to City Council at its next meeting. The report will make no recommendations concerning a center or a site for one, but will ask that the City Planning Commission be set up as the agency to look thoroughly into the matter, including location.

"I feel that our Planning Commission is well qualified to handle this, and if, when they finish their study they feel the services of an outside consultant are still needed, then I think it will be all right to hire them," said Marshall.

Marshall pointed out that the Planning Commission study could save the city a great deal of money, especially in the initial phases.

The report also says that representatives from Virginia Beach would be willing to work with any area-wide group toward the construction of a stadium.

"The members of the committee and those who took the trip will be available to the Planning Commission," said Marshall, "and we'll be glad to pass along anything we can, but we feel like they can better make recommendations to Council."

Sam Scott told the VIRGINIA BEACH SUN that the earliest possible date that he can see for the opening of any type of new center would be late in 1970 or in 1971.

Several sites have been discussed for a new center, including one near Pembroke Mall, but Scott said he believes it should be in the Beach Borough near the hotels and motels. Other sites, such as near Rudee Inlet, at the present Dome, on Holly Road at the old sewage disposal plant, have also been discussed but no one will make any recommendations at this time.

There is little doubt in the minds of any officialdom in Virginia Beach that a new center is necessary to the growth of convention business in the city, and privately they agree that the problem must be solved as soon as possible. There is some disagreement, however, on the time that the Dome actually became inadequate. One city spokesman said he believes it is still adequate for the needs of the residents of Virginia Beach, but not for a convention center. Scott said it has been inadequate since merger.

"It all depends on what uses we are talking about," he said. Large conventions have shied away from Virginia Beach because of the present center, said another spokesman, but also because of the inadequacy

Committee Expects Referendum Support

In about two weeks workers of the combined Virginia Beach Chamber of Commerce-Virginia Beach Jaycees committee seeking signatures calling for a referendum on local option liquor-by-the-drink will be conducting an intensive house-to-house campaign.

Richard Guy, chairman of the committee, said the initial phase of the signature collection will take almost two months, since all areas of the city will be canvassed. Qualified voters will be asked to sign the petitions asking that a referendum be called according to law and probably in conjunction with a general election in November.

The City of Norfolk also expects to hold a referendum on the same question on the same date. Other areas of Virginia also may do the same, but Virginia Beach is the only city so far nearing the petition stage. Norfolk is still in the planning stages.

The committee has adopted the name, "Committee for a Better Virginia Beach." Guy said that the committee will urge voters to vote "yes" when the referendum is held. He said the Chamber and the Jaycees believe that the licensing of first class restaurants to serve mixed beverages will:

1) Bring about an unprecedented increase in the flow of tourists to Virginia Beach,

2) Cause a commercial building boom throughout the City.

3) Create an unlimited number of employment and business opportunities.

4) Greatly improve the City's competitive position with regard to conventions.

5) Make it possible for real estate taxes on commercial properties, together with sales taxes to be paid by non-residents, to help keep taxes on residences and farms at a reasonable level.

6) Bring better restaurants, food and entertainment to Virginia Beach for the benefit of all its citizens.

The committee feels that this question is one which residents of Virginia Beach have been trying to get before the voters for many years according to Guy, and they feel that all of the voters are entitled to express their opinion and should be encouraged to do so.

The chairman stated that he anticipated that the November election would produce a record turn-out of voters in Virginia Beach and that the vote on the mixed beverages referendum would be a true expression of the consensus of feeling among the citizens. He added that he expected that the mixed beverage licensing proposition would be overwhelmingly supported by Virginia Beach voters.

Part of the camper-workers took a lunch break Saturday while others rested from their painting and sprucing up chores. This campground overlooks Chesapeake Bay.

'Work-In' Spruces State Park

Members of the National Campers and Hikers Association spent last week end sprucing up Seashore State Park in Virginia Beach, where they staged a "work-in."

About 50 families came to camp and work at Seashore and Pocahontas State Park near Petersburg according to Verle and Bettie Fischer of Vienna, state directors of the NCHA.

Seashore Park supt. John C. Killinger put the group to work painting bathhouses and restrooms and planting pine seedlings to form a better screen between the campgrounds and U. S. Route 50.

Three Virginia Beach chapters of the national camping organization took part in the paint and plant program at Seashore, said Ronald R. Slegert, NCHA field director for the Hampton Roads area. Other members from Norfolk and the surrounding cities and counties joined in also. A month ago, 30 families spent a Saturday painting campground tables at Seashore, Slegert added.

The group camped in all types of equipment next to the old bathhouse, which is now painted a bright yellow with dark brown trim.

The park itself was running near capacity last weekend, as it has nearly every weekend this spring, according to Killinger.

The 450 families of the NCHA in Virginia are also planning their spring statewide campout May 10-12 at Pocahontas Park.

In addition to camping, the activities will include a teen-age dance with a combo, a "teen queen" contest among winners from each of the state's 10 chapters, a campfire program, games, a membership meeting and a Sunday worship service.

Smoke the Bear will make a special appearance, Mrs. Fischer said, and the Boy and Girl Scout members of the camping families will conduct the three-day gathering with a flag-lowering ceremony.

A service station sign blew through this windshield. The driver was uninjured, but was treated for shock.

This is all that remains of an outdoor display at Plaza Home Center. Part of the garden building blew away. Note the missing signs in the background.

Evidence Points to 'Twister'

Without warning a severe storm hopped, skipped and jumped across Virginia Beach Tuesday evening, causing thousands of dollars in property damage, but remarkably no apparent injuries.

Yesterday Hurlis Smith, meteorologist at the Norfolk Weather Bureau, said the storm was being classified as a "Squall line with a severe thunderstorm and wind gusts up to 69 m.p.h." Heavy rains and hail accompanied the storm.

He did not, however, discount the possibility of a small tornado, and said that an investigation would go on for some time and damage would be assessed in order to learn more fully exactly what it was. Later he said evidence pointed to a "twister."

Whatever it was, it caused widespread damage in its rapid path southward across Virginia Beach. The heaviest damage was reported in Bayside and in the Malibu-Princess Anne Plaza Shopping Center area.

A number of traffic accidents have been directly attributed to the storm and numerous other cars were damaged by flying debris. Some trees were uprooted or snapped off by the winds.

At Bayside High School a large section of the roof was torn off. Damage has been estimated at more than $50,000. Ten classrooms were put out of commission, but, Walter and debris scattered into other rooms and halls. Some language laboratory equipment was also smashed. A baseball game was going on on the athletic field. Bayside was winning over the league-leading Princess Anne Cavaliers. But the rain broke up the game before it became official. The players scattered.

A large old tree fell onto a trailer at the M.O.A. Trailer Park on Baker Rd., and another trailer was overturned onto a car. No one was injured in either incident.

At Princess Anne Plaza, almost all of the windows on the front of the new Malibu Towers Office Building and on the east side were knocked out. Signs for Millers' Dept. Store, the Plaza Home Center, Thompson-Royal Dodge and several signs entering the Plaza were knocked out. Glass covered a large area.

Walter Royal of Thompson-Royal Dodge recently appeared before City Council saying that his 30 foot sign could not be seen well because of the height restriction, since then changed to 50 feet. That sign is gone now, and Royal said it had been built to handle winds up to 120 m.p.h.

A garden display of chairs, swing sets and garden buildings at Plaza Home Center was knocked over and smashed, and one small building blew away and landed in a service station across the intersection of Plaza Trail.

A window was blown out of Rice's. The tree that is used to hang Christmas lights on in the center was cut almost in half, and just as the storm reached the corner of the shopping center itself, it apparently rose skyward. A small fire was caused by the storm in Colonial Stores, but it was quickly put out by the Plaza Volunteer Fire Dept. whose men were out in force immediately.

Trees along Malibu Drive and in the Pembroke-Aragona area were knocked down, but property damage in those areas was fairly light. The power was off in isolated areas for about an hour.

A camper on a truck at Thompson-Royal Dodge was overturned and approximately 30 to 40 cars there were damaged by winds and flying glass. One vinyl top on a car was ripped. And the gutters on the Plaza Home Center next door were partially knocked down. A spokesman inside said he thought the roof was coming off because of the sound, and a spokesman in the automobile agency says he still does not know how the windows stayed in the showrooms. He said they looked and sounded as if they were going to blow out as he raced for cover.

A check Wednesday afternoon showed these areas were the hardest hit by the freak storm.

Reporter's Dream Is Nightmare...

It is a reporter's dream to be in the right place at the right time when a really big story is breaking. Tuesday night I was there and it was almost a nightmare.

I was at the intersection of Virginia Beach Boulevard and Plaza Trail at about 6:25 p.m., when the full force of either a severe thunderstorm or a small tornado touched down at that point. Whether it was a thunderstorm or a tornado depends on who you talk to. Even the weather bureau isn't sure.

I was driving west on the Boulevard trying to get home before the storm hit. The sky looked different from anything I had ever seen. There was nothing to be seen but a large black cloud covering the entire area with black fingers reaching to the ground. In the distance I could see approaching rain. The radio weather forecast had just called for a "chance of a thundershower."

Without warning I suddenly drove into a wall of rain and hail. The force of the storm sounded like a thousand drums beating on the top of the car. Then it was there before me. The intense rain ended, but there was dust, lots of it, flying debris of all sizes and darkness. The car buffeted from side to side and up and down, seemingly at the same time. I tried to fight for control. The sound of the screaming wind was horrifying.

Bunches of trees were flying toward me. Something hit the windshield with the force that sounded like a rifle crack, but remarkably the glass did not break. A heavy metal service station sign from the north side of the intersection that normally stands quietly and tells the price of gas was picked up like paper and hurled southward across the road. It cartwheeled as it went and smashed into the windshield of the car a few yards in front of me. The woman driving stopped the car and sat there perhaps in shock, but apparently unhurt. The renegade sign went on across the road and wrappit itself around a truck parked in another service station.

Something else hit the truck about the same time. I found out later it was parts of a light metal garden outbuilding that had broken up and had hurtled more than 100 yards through the air. The metal was twisted grotesquely.

I pulled into the right feeder lane and stopped, trying to decide what to do. I can't honestly say I saw a funnel, but I could see a concentrated mass moving into the Princess Anne Plaza Shopping Center, carrying with it bits and pieces of large signs and windows it had

Management Catch on To Phones

L. F. Patrick, manager of the Chesapeake and Potomac Telephone Co., said Tuesday afternoon that he thought the company was maintaining "near normal" service to its customers despite the phone strike.

"As the efficiency of our management people assigned to work switchboards increased with experience, we were doing very well," said Patrick.

Patrick went on to say that despite the fact that the present contract with the Communications Workers of America had more than another year to run the company was willing to negotiate a new three year contract, under a "wage reopen" clause.

"But an entirely inadequate time for formal bargaining was afforded us by the union," said Patrick. "The first meeting was held less than one week ago."

He added that full negotiations were going on up to the deadline, and that he hoped the strike and all negotiations could be ended shortly, probably in time for the deadline.

"We cannot understand the continuous threat of the union to expand strike activity when we were prepared to meet at the bargaining table in an effort to reach agreement," said Patrick.

Finally Patrick said it was the contention of the company that conditions were right to work out a mutually satisfactory new contract.

Democrats Choose 76

The Virginia Beach Democratic Committee met last night at Princess Anne Court House to choose 76 delegates to the city Democratic convention to be held on May 23.

At the city convention delegates will be elected to the state Democratic convention to be held in Salem, just outside Roanoke, on July 27.

Then at the state convention delegates will be chosen to represent Virginia at the Democratic National convention in Chicago in August.

Each Congressional District is allowed to send delegates and alternates to the national convention, and a number of other delegates and alternates are elected at large.

Virginia will send a larger block of delegates to Chicago this year than before, based on the state's Democratic vote in 1964. This was the first time the state had gone Democratic since 1948.

Construction is underway on the new Virginia Beach Central Communications Center adjacent to the Princess Anne Plaza fire headquarters. The structure on Rosemont Road in Windsor Woods was designed to serve as headquarters of Civil Defense, Fire Dispatchers and Fire Inspectors.

Cape Henry Day Draws Dignitaries

Cape Henry Day is April 28, and ceremonies are planned at the sight of the first landing of English settlers in America to commemorate again that event.

A number of dignitaries will take part in the program including Virginia Governor Mills E. Godwin, Jr., who will be the principal speaker. Godwin will be introduced by foreign Gov. Colgate Darden.

Also on the program will be First District Congressman Thomas N. Downing, who is working with local legislators to make the Cape Henry Cross into a National monument. He will be introduced by Federal Judge Richard Kellam of Virginia Beach.

In addition members of the

OceanHiway Approves New Budget

The Ocean Hiway Association, which closed its three-day annual meeting Tuesday Night at the Golden Triangle in Norfolk, adopted an operating budget of $132,000 for the coming year.

The budget is $6,000 less than last year's budget. "We think the budget for this year is more realistic," said Sidney Kellam, chairman of the budget and finance committee. He also emphasized the importance of developing new sources of revenue.

Curtis Brooks of the Norfolk Chamber of Commerce was elected president of the association.

A total of 137 members attended the meeting. The Ocean Hiway Association was organized in 1934 for the express purpose of promoting travel along routes 13 and 17 which is designated the Ocean Hiway.

state legislature will be on hand. Third Senatorial District senators Edward T. Caton III, Hodges, who introduced a resolution which passed both houses of the 1968 session of the Virginia General Assembly asking Congress to make the area a National Monument will be present.

Music will be provided by the Navy School of Music Band and a Virginia Beach choir.

A number of wreaths will be laid at the cross. Mrs. Carl McMurray, national president of the Daughters of American Colonists, Edward E. Edgar, governor of the Descendants of the Mayflower, and a representative of the Order of Cape Henry will lay the wreaths.

Bishop Gunn of the Diocese of Southern Virginia and Chaplain Major Condon of Fort Story will conduct the religious portions of the program.

R. K. T. Larson, president of the Order of Cape Henry, said the ceremonies will begin with a 12:45 luncheon at the Fort Story Officers Club, to be followed by ceremonies at the monumental cross within the Army base at 2:45.

Besides the Order of Cape Henry, representatives of the Association for the Preservation of Virginia Antiquities, the Virginia Society of Mayflower Descendants and the Daughters of the American Revolution will also be special guests and take part in the program.

First District Congressman Thomas Downing said later, however, that National Park officials noted that plans for such a park were not in the near future.

The Association for the Preservation of Virginia Antiquities is also interested in the restoration and use as a monument of the Cape Henry lighthouse, the symbol of the city of Virginia Beach.

It was announced recently

The Cape Henry Cross, marking the first landing site, flanked by two old lighthouses that the cross marking the first landing site may become a national monument but that plans to make the Cape Henry area into a major park are not in present planning.

At the request of Larson and the Order of Cape Henry, local legislators introduced a resolution in the 1968 session of the Virginia General Assembly asking Congress to consider a large park site at Cape Henry.

The old lighthouse is in a state of disrepair and grounds around it are ill-kept. The old landmark is not manned and is subject to extensive vandalism. Recently Fort Story officials furnished paint and painters to redecorate the interior of the old structure which is not actually a part of the base. But officials there felt that writing on the walls and vandalism were most offensive.

Miss Parten Crowned

By Ronnie Keel

Miss Gloria Parten, a junior, was crowned Miss Kellam, '68, Friday night in the Kellam auditorium. Kathy Bjorkman was first runner-up and Marsha Klemen was named second runner-up by the panel of judges.

The second annual Crystal Ball will be held May 4. Sponsored by the eighth, ninth and tenth grade classes, the informal affair is the underclassmen's answer to a prom.

Following the Crystal Ball will be the Senior Prom, to be held May 10 at the Bow Creek Country Club.

Today, several Kellam journalists will interview Azalea Queen Cory Luns, a native of the Netherlands. Kellam was awarded the exclusive interview among the area high schools.

On the sports scene, Kellam rebounded from three straight losses to defeat First Colonial, 4-3 last Tuesday, when Mike Futrell tied a school record with 15 strike-outs. The Kellam nine then went on to defeat Bayside 3-1 last Friday.

Mike Brown, star fullback at Kellam for the past two years, has signed a grant-in-aid with East Carolina University. Brown is the second Kellam player to receive an athletic scholarship this spring. The first was Dooley Bizzell, who signed with Wofford College.

Festival To Feature Jubilee

The eighth annual Shenandoah Country Music Jubilee will be a feature of the third day of the 41st Shenandoah Apple Blossom Festival at Winchester, Va., May 2-3-4. The Winchester Armory will be headquarters for the three principal events of the Jubilee program, according to R. J. Alford, Jr., chairman of the event.

The Jubilee, which brings hundreds of Country Music lovers here at Apple Blossom time, is made up of three major events on Saturday, a Country Music contest, a Professional Country Music Show and a Country Music dance.

Entries are now being accepted for the amateur contest to be held, beginning at 10 a.m., May 4, at the Armory. There are three categories for contestants: Best Singer, Best Band and Best Entertainment. Prospective contestants are asked to write promptly regarding registration.

Complete information of the Apple Blossom Country Music Jubilee program may be had by writing direct to the Festival's Country Music department, R. J. Alford, Jr., 2433 Valley Avenue, Winchester, Va., 22601.

General Aims for Law Degree

A man who rose to the rank of major general in the Army, sat eyeball to eyeball across from the North Koreans on the United Nations Armistice Commission, and commanded a regiment that blocked a key German route of advance during the "Battle of the Bulge," understandably might find it a little difficult to readjust to student life.

But after nearly a year as a student at the Marshall-Wythe School of Law at the College of William and Mary, Maj. Gen. Thomas Norflet Griffin (ret.) of Virginia Beach has adjusted to the academic routine well enough to look forward to a Juris Doctor degree two years hence.

After all, his fellow students call him Tom, and he is a pledge in Phi Alpha Delta legal fraternity.

Gen. Griffin and his wife spend four days a week in their first home in Williamsburg, and return to Virginia Beach during the weekend. The schedule may be a little arduous, but Gen. Griffin says his wife is all for "Operation Law School."

Gen. Griffin retired from the Army in 1962 after 33 years of service. After five years of travel, he applied and was accepted at William and Mary's law school in 1967, pursuing, he says, a "life-long interest in law."

Born in North Carolina, Griffin was appointed to West Point after spending a semester at the University of North Carolina. His graduating class of 1929, he remembers, produced more general officers than any other class until after the Korean War.

During the "Battle of the Bulge," his unit "held like a stone wall" to block an important German route of advance. Gen. Griffin took on an entirely new type duty when he was assigned to Korea in 1957. During a stint as Deputy Chief of Staff of the Eighth Army, he was appointed the Army representative to the U.N. Armistice Commission.

In the six months he was on the Commission, Gen. Griffin says, "We never shook hands or smiled once." The two sides sat across a four-foot wide table from each other, located in a Quonset-type building splitting the Demilitarized Zone between North and South Korea.

Gen. Griffin recalls that, "You don't really deal with the North Koreans, you talk with them." But he believes maintaining the Commission is well worth the effort because it keeps a channel of communication open between the two sides.

"It is a place," he says, "where you can get up and argue like hell and place your problem on the table, then it's up to higher authority for decision."

While the talks have their use, Gen. Griffin is not so certain the United States pursued the right course in dealing with the Pueblo incident. He says the North Koreans probably seized the ship to divert attention from South Vietnam.

"The time for action on the part of the United States was long ago if force was to be used to get the Pueblo back," he adds. "If we aren't willing to exert force in this type of instance, we certainly are exposed to future recurrences, not only in Korea, but in other areas of the world."

Gen. Griffin says, however, that he believes the South Koreans, with U.S. assistance, are perfectly able to defend themselves from attack by the North. The South Korean soldier, he adds, is just as tough as the North Korean.

Gen. Griffin's son, Major Thomas Norflet Griffin Jr., is carrying on the Army tradition. A 1966 West Point graduate, he is currently studying at the Naval War College.

The General himself is still undecided about his career after graduation from William and Mary. "My goal now is the J.D. degree," he says. "After that, we'll see what's next."

Committee To Work For Youth

A new organization has been formed in Virginia Beach by Mayor Frank A. Dusch. An organizational meeting was held Tuesday of the Mayor's Council on Youth Opportunity, a committee to coordinate youth services and employment within the city.

Mayor Dusch appointed Donald E. Morgan and Harold Whitehurst co-chairmen of the committee, and named Russell O. Rucks and E.A. Culverhouse as committee members.

It was also decided that additional members should be appointed to broaden the representation to include all segments of the community.

Mayor Dusch then named seven other prominent business and civic leaders in Virginia Beach to the committee. Their names were not released because they have not yet accepted the appointments, but Mayor Dusch said he expected all to consent to serve.

The expanded committee will hold its next meeting at the Virginia Beach convention center at 8 p.m., on May 16. Plans for the activities of the committee will be formulated at that time.

'69 IAAI Convention Is at Dome

Members of the International Association of Arson Investigators from all over the United States and Canada will be holding their annual convention at Virginia Beach next spring.

The four-day convention, at the Dome scheduled for April 14-18, is the fifth convention scheduled for the city's convention center for 1969.

Approximately 1,500 I.A.A.I. members are expected to attend the Virginia Beach convention, which will include guest speakers, actual case investigations and demonstrations.

The first drug store in the United States was opened in Philadelphia in 1729.

Welfare Knows of No Hunger

"If there are any cases of hunger or malnutrition in the city of Virginia Beach, we don't know about it," said Mrs. Frances S. Elrod, superintendent of the city Dept. of Public Welfare.

"If we did, we would be doing something about it," she added.

Several areas of Virginia have been designated as "Hunger and Malnutrition" areas. Virginia Beach is not included. As a result of the report issued recently by the Department of Agriculture, the initiation of federal food stamp plans in several areas has been speeded up to meet needs.

A food stamp plan had already been planned for Virginia Beach and money was appropriated in the new budget for this purpose. The budget funds will provide for one administrator, one clerical worker and a part-time social work supervisor. The rest of the funds are provided by the federal government.

Across Virginia there are 17 areas already active in the plan. According to Mrs. Elrod, Virginia Beach's application has been sent to the State Dept. of Public Welfare and institutions where it was approved then sent on to the federal agency for final approval. That approval is pending, but expected.

The city's new welfare building is not finished, but should be finished shortly after July.

Museum at Sandbridge Approved by Commission

At Tuesday afternoon's Parks and Recreation Commission meeting, the commission gave full approval to the proposed idea of using the Coast Guard building at Sandbridge's Little Island Park as a museum.

According to Harold Whitehurst, director of the Dept. of Parks and Recreation, the building has been acquired by his department, but an opening date for the museum will probably be at least five or six months in the future.

The museum, said Whitehurst, will be connected with the Coast Guard and the waters it patrols off Virginia Beach.

Realtors Offered Course

The Distributive Education Service of Virginia Beach City Schools will offer a course, beginning May 13, in preparatory real estate training, designed to introduce the theories and principles of real estate as it is practiced in Virginia, and to prepare individuals for the Virginia Real Estate License Examination.

Course length will be 30 hours of instruction, held in room 509 at Princess Anne High School, Mondays and Wednesdays from 7:30 to 9:30 p.m.

The instructor will be Frederick W. Coykendall who has served as a mortgage broker, loan officer, educational committee chairman in Northern Virginia, and is well versed on mortgage banking and real estate market analysis.

During the 1966 session of the Virginia General Assembly, the statutes governing the licensing of real estate brokers and salesmen were amended in several instances.

One amendment requires that all people seeking a license must meet certain educational requirements. In order to obtain a license, an individual must either be: a high school graduate from an accredited high school, a holder of an approved GED certificate, or a graduate of a real estate course approved by the Virginia Real Estate Commission.

After this statute became effective, substantial numbers of people could not meet the educational requirements, and the need for a comprehensive real estate course developed. After months of work with the Educational Committee of the Virginia Real Estate Association, the Distributive Education Service in the State Department of Education has developed an approved Real Estate course.

The Real Estate Commission has ruled that anyone completing this course will be eligible to take the license examination, regardless of other educational qualifications.

The 30 hour course beginning in May will provide more than adequate instruction to obtain a license for those meeting the educational requirements. For those individuals who do not have a high school or GED certificate, the thirty hours will constitute the first third of a full ninety-hour course approved by the Real Estate Commission. The additional hours will be offered locally as a convenience to Virginia Beach residents who wish to obtain their license.

The availability of these courses will also make it possible for people who are already licensed to improve their occupational efficiency. Licensed brokers and salespeople are encouraged to take the course, or any part of the training they desire.

Interested people are asked to call the Distributive Education Service at 497-3511, ex. 41. Applicants will be sent complete brochures about the course.

The cost of the course will be $30 for the 30-hour program.

Food centers to buy a great deal more food than can be purchased with the same face value in money, according to Mrs. Elrod.

"We also hope to have several stores all over the city in the program to make it easier for those involved," said Mrs. Elrod, "but that is up to the federal agency. They take care of that."

She added that her department is working at all possible speed to begin the new program and that it should be fully initiated by this summer.

Vacationers Can Hear Church Services in Cars

The Virginia Beach Drive-In Theatre on Laskin Road at Hilltop will be the scene of early morning evangelistic and worship services beginning this weekend, Sunday, May 5, at 8:30 a.m. Sponsored by the Danny Marrow Evangelistic Association, the services will endeavor to reach vacationers and others who are unable to make church services for various and sundry reasons.

Worshippers will be able to attend services in their automobiles and will hear the music and sermon over the sound system of the theatre. With the cooperation of the theatre, the Association hopes to continue the services during the summer months until after Labor Day. The Rev. William D. "Danny" Marrow will be bringing the message. Laymen from various churches will be assisting each week.

Members of the Ladies Auxiliary of Davis Corner Volunteer Fire Department this past week held a special meeting in honor of Lillian Fisher, of Staunton, President of the Ladies Auxiliary of the Virginia State Firemen's Association. Women from the Thalia, London Bridge and Chesapeake Beach auxiliaries joined those of Davis Corner in also paying tribute to "Mother Morgan," of Chesapeake who has been given credit for founding of "ladies auxiliaries," as she celebrated her 90th birthday. Congratulations are in order for Virginia Beach Police Detective Donald W. Pope and his wife June on the birth of their daughter. We understand Lori Lynn "weighed in" at eight pounds. Mother, daughter and father are all reported doing fine.

Preparations are nearing completion for the "May Day Celebration" to be held next week at Knotts Island, Virginia. Beach Chief Fire Inspector Milton T. Holland will serve as Grand Marshall for the parade which will be one of the main attractions of the day long celebration.

City-Wide Meet Set for Grade-Schoolers at Cox

Young Virginia Beach boys and girls will meet competitively this month for the 10th Annual City-Wide Physical Fitness Meet at Cox High School.

Scheduled to begin at 10 a.m. May 23, the Meet is being sponsored by the city's department of Health and Physical Fitness. According to Steve Chipcock, of the Health and Physical Fitness Dept., the meet will include grades four through seven. The competition will put grade level against grade level. Chipcock said that some 1,430 Virginia Beach grade school youngsters from 33 schools are expected to attend the Meet at Cox.

Ribbons will be awarded to winners in the first five places for each of the seven categories of competition: pull-ups, 50-yard dash, shuttle-run, rope-skip, standing broad jump, jump and reach, and the 600 yard run-walk.

The city-wide winner, the school with the highest total of points, will be awarded a plaque.

The Association is in need of a portable organ and if any of the public knows of the location of such an instrument, their assistance will be more than appreciated.

Beach Shore Patrol Detachment is holding his own in the Fifth Naval District bowling tournament. Knight, who also bowls with the Oceana NAS varsity team, is in the upper standings in his efforts to win one of five openings in the "All Navy Regional Bowling Tournament" to be held in Memphis, Tenn.

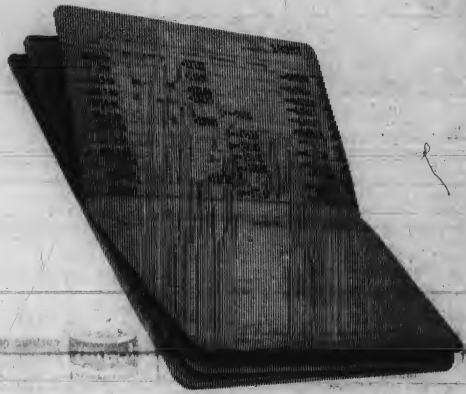

Members of the F.O.P. Princess Anne Lodge #8 are sponsoring a soft ball team to be comprised of men from all bureaus and precincts of the Virginia Beach Police Department. Plans call for the "beach team" to compete with F.O.P. softball teams from Norfolk, and possibly other cities. While the local team is still in the formation stage, no one has as yet been chosen as manager and/or team captain.

The Boy Scout Camporee which was staged last weekend at Camp Pendleton occupied a great deal of time of men of the Seaback Volunteer Fire Department. Chief Aaron Parsons says his men supplied at least 3600 gallons of fresh water for the use of those taking part in the Camporee, with the water being transported in one of the departments "tanker trucks."

Mount Olive Holiness Church is asking a use permit to build a new church near landstown Road on Princess Anne Road.

Not expected to come before the May 14 meeting, but due probably in June for Commission hearing, is a change in the city ordinances governing storage of campers and camping equipment along city streets and in home driveways.

A public hearing was held on April 2 at the Civic Center, attended by about 200 persons, on the matter. Since objections were raised at that time concerning the staff rules to be followed, compromises have been made, and a city spokesman said that the law has been modified in two areas.

The two sections which received the most objections concerned use of utility lines when such a camper was parked or stored and the length of time a city street could be used for parking. The time restriction has been discarded.

Before any changes are made, another full public hearing must be held before the Planning Commission, then approved after a final public hearing before the City Council.

It is doubtful at this time whether any revamping of the city ordinances could become effective before July or August.

THE BEACH THIS WEEK

Collier Claims Island

Developer Clyde Collier apparently has won his court battle over ownership of Blackbeard Island in Lake Joyce. Collier claimed ownership of the island by virtue of a 1901 deed, however the city of Virginia Beach claimed the island through the purchase of Lake Joyce from the city of Norfolk last July. While Circuit Court Judge George W. Vokes reportedly has ruled in favor of Collier, reaction is expected from the Virginia Beach city attorney's office in the form of an appeal of Judge Vokes' ruling. Under provisions by which Virginia Beach obtained Lake Joyce any use of the lake except for municipal purposes could revert the lake back to Norfolk. This is important in the fact that Collier indicates he plans to build a home on the North end of the island.

Three Face Hearing

Hearings are scheduled today in Virginia Beach Juvenile and Domestic Relations Court for three suspects charged with breaking into the Creeds Elementary School. One of the accused was identified as 18-year-old Roger B. Cheshire, attached to the Oceana Naval Air Station, the other two identified only as juveniles. Authorities said the three were apprehended when their auto went out of control and overturned on a highway curve as they fled a pursuing police car.

Beach Gets Road Funds

Virginia Beach is scheduled to receive $400,000 from nearly $211 million tentatively approved last Thursday by the State Highway Commission for improvements of Virginia's road systems. The Virginia Beach allocations were included in more than $15 million earmarked for urban road improvements during the coming fiscal year and involves Independence Boulevard. The bulk of the allocation, $300,000, will be used to improve the portion of Independence Boulevard between Shore Drive and Haygood Road, where work is expected to begin this fall and be completed next year. The remaining $100,000 is earmarked for the completion of a parallel lane on Independence Boulevard from the Virginia Beach toll road to Virginia Beach Blvd., with this project expected to be completed this summer.

Appearance Set

Appearance is scheduled on May 13 in Virginia Beach Municipal Court for two Norfolk men charged with attempting to break into a home at Sandbridge. The suspects were identified as William G. Rustin, Jr., 19, and Brian J. Ewald, 21. Police said James L. Maxon and his wife were awakened by a noise at the back door, and that Maxon discovered two men attempting to force their way into the dwelling. Officials said Maxon reportedly held the suspects, by use of an unloaded shotgun, until his wife was able to summon police by use of a neighbors phone.

Scouts Take Over Pendleton

About 1,000 Boy Scouts representing 40 troops in Virginia Beach participated in the annual Camporee held last weekend at Camp Pendleton. Troops were divided into 132 patrols for competition in 10 events. Troop 362 of Community Methodist Church had the best overall score and was named the Top Troop.

The Top Patrol in competition was the Panther Patrol of Plaza Methodist Church. Jim Horne is patrol leader.

Troop 63 of Asbury Methodist Church earned the Campmaster Award for the best camping troop. The award is revolving, and a troop must win it three times for permanent possession. Tom Hudgins is Scout Master and Danny Bowden is senior patrol leader.

Judging was by the Scout Commission staff headed by Walter Schmidt. Fred B. Cooke is camping chairman for PAVAB District.

First runner up among troops was Troop 362. First runner up among patrols was the Apache

Welcome Wagon Sets Sale

Each year the Welcome Wagon, a social and community-oriented organization of Virginia Beach homemakers, holds a special function or social event in order to make a contribution to some worthy charitable organization. The profits of the event are wholly contributed to the selected charitable organization.

The charity event for 1968 will be dual in nature. It will consist of a bake sale to be held by the members of the Welcome Wagon at the Princess Anne Plaza Shopping Center on Saturday, May 4, weather permitting, and a raffle to be held at the conclusion of the bake sale. The drawing will be held at the Princess Anne Plaza Shopping Center. Ticket holders need not be present in order to win. The First Prize in the raffle will be a complete home barbecue outfit consisting of a fine outdoor collapsible charcoal cooker with suitable attachments and a set of cooking utensils.

The Welcome Wagon social activities consist of three separate groups under the unified parent organization i.e. a bowling league, a bridge club and an arts and crafts club.

PA Basketball Coach Named

Princess Anne High School has added Maury coach Lee Anthony to its faculty as head basketball coach, to replace Harold Revis who retires this spring from his coaching position.

Anthony comes to the Beach with an impressive coaching record behind him. He led Norfolk Academy to its first winning season in six years in 1967; he came to the Academy as head coach in 1965, and within a year, topped the Bulldogs' record from 5-13 to 12-8.

A chief instrument in leading Maury's Juniors, Varsity, and 444-games winning streak, Anthony was also assistant to varsity coach Ted Bacall, whose team took the Eastern District championship and finished the year with a 23-1 record.

During his own period as a collegiate and high school basketball star, Anthony was the third leading scorer in state college history, (playing for Norfolk William and Mary, now ODC) with 2,181 points. As a student at Granby High, he led the Eastern District scoring. Anthony will also serve as assistant baseball coach at PA.

Tournament Runs Through November

Yesterday the extended Virginia Salt Water Fishing Tournament officially began at Virginia Beach, and will continue for the first time through November. The tournament is a state-financed program promoting Tidewater fishing by recognizing good catches non-competitively.

Each catch which meets or goes over the minimum weight requirements in each of the contests 22 categories will win its owner a citation awarded by the state. The anglers will be the best fish in each division will be awarded a trophy at the annual Salt Water Sport Fishing Association meet next year.

The contest has been extended through November to take advantage of the schools of striped bass and bluefish in Virginia waters during that month. Judging from previous years, approximately 2,500 citations are expected to be awarded between May and November for big fish.

Tournament director is Claude Rodgers of Virginia Beach.

Interviews Confirmed; No Decision

"All I know is what I read in the papers," said Asst. City Manager Roger Scott, in typical Will Rogers style, when he was questioned concerning the City Managership.

Scott is one more than 50 applicants for the job being vacated by retiring Manager W. Russell Hatchett. The field was narrowed to four by a special City Council committee who screened the applications and recommended that those remaining be interviewed by the entire Council.

Scott and Richard Webbon, the city's Coordinator of Urban Affairs, are the only two of the four whose names have been made public. Their interviews, were expected sometime this week, although Scott said as late as Monday afternoon that he had not been notified.

John McCombs, chairman of the Council committee, said the target date for naming a new manager is still June 1, although there has as yet been no response to a new advertisement placed in a municipal magazine.

of hotel and motel rooms. He said this part is being corrected quickly as new facilities open quite often.

The Ruritan National Convention held here recently was considered a case in point. Part of the convention activities were held at the Cavalier Hotel and part at the Dome. The Ruritans were not totally satisfied with the arrangement.

Small conventions, however, are still clamoring to come to Virginia Beach, and several are already on the calendar for the next two years.

Scott has also admitted having difficulty signing "name" live entertainment because the larger centers nationwide can afford better talent and the talent can make better money in a larger place. Numerous "names" however, have played at the Dome in recent years.

Job Fair Will Be May 14-15

The Norfolk Chamber of Commerce, in cooperation with Chambers in Virginia Beach, Chesapeake, and Portsmouth, S.T.O.P., and the Virginia Employment Commission are sponsoring the Tidewater Job Opportunity Fair, May 14-15 in the Norfolk Arena.

The Fair is designed to help employers and prospective employees together. Many TAHB member firms have already signed up for space and all are urged to take advantage of this opportunity to find qualified prospective employees.

If you have one or more job vacancies in your organization, the fair is designed for you. For a brochure giving all details, call Pat Miskill, Norfolk Chamber of Commerce, 622-2312, or your TAHB office, 855-2071.

ripped apart in a matter of a few seconds. Some of those windows had come from the Malibu Towers Office Building. They appeared to have been pulled out from the back end of the storm, not blown out by the force.

When I looked up the power wires were bowed upward tautly. That made my decision easier. I drove quickly toward the corner. A 20-gallon plastic trash can flew by me heading south some 15 feet in the air. Several other trash cans rushed along the ground northward.

A Virginia Beach policeman had been standing in the intersection directing traffic due to a power failure that occurred a few minutes earlier. At the height of the storm he looked up and saw the same thing I did. The traffic lights were beat horizontally and were stinging at the wires. He tried to reach the curb running full force northward, but didn't get anywhere. Finally he reached a pole and held on. I turned the corner, and less than a half block away it was over. It all happened in perhaps a minute, maybe a little more. But it was terrifying. I felt helpless, as I was a witness to what the force of nature can do.

I had experienced the reporter's dream...to be there when it happened, and like every other normal human being there I was scared half out of my wits. I did not panic. But as I thought it all over later, my hand shook for some time.

I remember also being concerned only with the safety of my four-year old daughter. I told her quietly to sit very close to me. She did, although she remained wide-eyed and looked out of the windows questioningly. She was reassured by my outward calmness, and she was never really frightened. How wonderful to be a child.

Men of the volunteer fire and rescue departments of the city of Virginia Beach are conducting their annual fund raising drive this month.

This annual fund drive is the only method men of the various fire fighting and rescue units have of obtaining money to purchase equipment, or improve the buildings which serve as their unit headquarters.

Residents of the city this year are being requested to contribute $3.65, a penny a day per family, for the coming year. This small donation could not begin to represent the value of the service received from the men who work without pay to protect your life and property.

The 13 volunteer fire and rescue departments of the city are comprised of a total of 650 men, who are on duty, or on call, around the clock. During the past year 1,841 fire calls were answered by the men of the volunteers, while the rescue units responded to 5,093 ambulance runs.

To place a dollars and cents figure on protection received from the volunteer firemen would be next to impossible, however those who have called upon them to save homes or businesses will truly say a penny a day is very little to pay for this protection.

As for the benefits derived from the rescue squads, no monetary value could ever be placed on the lives saved by the squads. Any hour of day or night the squad ambulances can be seen racing to the scene of a fire, or an accident, or to a hospital in the protection of human life.

The dollar many times is used as the yardstick of measurement for the value of nearly everything. So as the volunteer fire fighting and rescue units of the city canvass your neighborhood for donations this month, pause for a moment and look around your home or place of business, and ask yourself what else you could purchase for $3.65 that would be on guard to protect your property or loved ones the way the men of the volunteer fire and rescue departments will do.

Pictured here are the headquarters buildings of each of the 13 volunteer fire and rescue departments of the city which will be seeking your financial support this month.

Men of the Virginia Beach Borough Rescue will be conducting their fund raising drive at a later date, which will be featured in a forthcoming issue of the VIRGINIA BEACH SUN.

Order of Cape Henry, 1968

Congressman Downing's announcement that the National Park Service is currently formulating plans for the enlarging and upgrading of the first landing site at Cape Henry is indeed welcome news.

Whoever those people are that Downing mentioned as working hard "behind the scenes" also deserve a hearty pat on the back. We know that many of them live right here in Virginia Beach.

It is a shame that the granite cross marking the landing of the first colonists has been contained in such a small site for so long, but now, through the excellent cooperation of the Army at Fort Story where the site actually lies, perhaps a substantial park is in the making.

Actual plans are expected later this month. Hopefully those plans will include something representative of the event. We are not advocating taking any of the limelight away from Jamestown, but we feel that we deserve a good park here that will forever stand as a monument to brave men and as a beautiful tourist attraction.

Now then, what about that old 18th century lighthouse? The inside is better since the Army painted it, but what about the grounds and outside? How about that, National Park Service? What becomes of that fine old relic of days gone by? Does it continue to go to ruin and vandalism? Why don't some people get busy...behind and in front of the scenes? The lighthouse is still a disgrace, and something should be done, now, while the federal folks are in the mood.

The End in Sight

The recently-formed committee, now known as the "Committee for a Better Virginia Beach" already deserves congratulations and a vote of confidence. The committee that will be seeking signatures on petitions calling for a referendum on the local option liquor-by-the-drink question, in Virginia Beach is ready to move.

In a short time its members have formulated excellent plans and have presented well-thought out reasons why the city should exercise its new right under the newly adopted law.

In about two weeks the gentlemen of the committee will begin gathering signatures. We hope they get ten times the number needed to call for the referendum. Then we hope it will be approved overwhelmingly.

For many years many of us have urged the reaching of this point. We have arrived at last, and we are confident we will be successful as we must be with the work of such a fine committee.

Build the Center Soon

When City Council receives the report of its special committee that has been looking into the feasibility of a new convention center, we hope its members will take immediate action and set the City Planning Commission up as the agency to settle the matter once and for all.

We do not suggest pushing the panic button yet nor do we suggest rushing headlong into what could later be called a mistake, but we hope that all involved will move with dispatch to get a new convention-cultural center for Virginia Beach, both residents and tourists, as soon as possible.

It cannot wait any longer. The city is losing convention business. That is obvious. And the business would be clamoring to come here if we had a proper facility. That is evidenced by the number of inquiries received constantly by the present center manager and the Chamber of Commerce.

We are also not suggesting that there has been any dragging of feet on this matter, but the wheels of progress seem to turn remarkably slowly. Convention business should receive a top priority by Council.

No matter what, we are still as much as three years away from a new convention center, maybe more, and surrounding cities are courting that convention business. Norfolk is well on the way to a new center. But the people will still come here, because of the beach resort attraction. How about the Democratic or Republican national convention in '72.

Good Appointment

The appointment of Virginia Beach resident Frank E. Dickerson to the State Board of Conservation and Economic Development by Governor Godwin is an excellent choice. This conscientious gentleman will work diligently to represent the best interests of Virginia Beach and Tidewater on this important board.

The board itself is quite important to Virginia Beach with so many untapped recreational and natural areas to be preserved and developed, and the appointment of Mr. Dickerson insures a strong voice from our section of the state in such matters.

He succeeds another Virginia Beach man, L. Stanley Hodges, who resigned because of business reasons, and who also represented Virginia Beach nobly. With Frank Dickerson now representing us, that line of continuity will not be broken.

Odor Overwhelms

Editor, VIRGINIA BEACH SUN: My husband and I have been at Virginia Beach for the past two weeks visiting friends. During that time, we have enjoyed your city's unique climate, the casual atmosphere and the rare combination of suburban-rural countryside that grows more rare in this country of the megalopolis every day.

And being tourists, we have played our roles to the hilt: totting cameras around like colt 44's, wearing sunglasses even in the shade and washing out drip-dry shirts, etc. We have also managed to see most of the things that tourists here could be expected to see.

Yesterday, as one last gesture at tourism before heading home, we traveled to Ft. Story to see the Cape Henry Cross and... The Lighthouse.

My husband and I are both in our mid-sixties, not adherents of the President's council on Physical Fitness, and though we are both the possessors of moderately good muscle tone, there are mornings that we neglect our orange juice and vitamins. All this notwithstanding, we were not daunted by the flight of stairs leading to the Lighthouse. Throwing away our cigarettes and breathing deeply, we commenced to climb, having been told that the view from the top was breathtaking.

The view was indeed breathtaking, as was the entire "aura"—almost visible—enveloping the lighthouse itself. In groping for an accurate description of the odor, the first morning—nearly delicate thing that comes to mind is the Chicago stockyard.

Virginia Beach is a lovely, clean city. Certainly the lighthouse can be made an equally lovely, clean place.

Sincerely,
Mrs. Calvin Mitchell

Guest Editorial

A Graduate Remembered

The following editorial was written by Jack Harris, General Manager and Executive Director of the VIRGINIA BEACH SUN and Radio Station WVAB.

He was a long, thin youngster, blessed with a winning smile and the type personality that predicted great things in the future.

No one knew just how great when Cy Young was a student at the old Oceana High school. Cy was raised in Oceana. His dad ran a combination gas station and garage business on the corner of Virginia Beach Boulevard. Back in those days Oceana was a part of Princess Anne county. You counted the county population in the hundreds, rather than by the thousands.

As we recall, there were three high schools in Princess Anne then. They were Oceana, Kempsville and Creeds. The rivalry that existed between the Oceana Cavaliers and Kempsville Blue Devils, to local folks, was second only to the Army-Navy head-buttling.

Cy played most all sports at Oceana. Matter of fact, any guy who wore long pants had better turn out or there might not be a team. A senior graduating class of 30 students was considered mighty, mighty big.

There were some pretty fine athletes who played with Cy at Oceana back in the late twenties. Some are still around the beach. Fellows like Duck Bratwalte, Landon Hillard, John Ray Henly. Duck used to quarterback the Oceana football team while Cy held down one of the end positions. When Duck would put one in the air toward Cy, the skinny youngster would miss as many as he caught. But he always came back for more. He was determined and in the end Cy Young was a pretty fair football player.

Cy attended VPI after leaving Oceana and then that great personality, that winning smile started to pay dividends. Today he is an outstanding citizen of Fort Lauderdale, Fla. An ex-mayor of that city, no less, and the owner of one of Fort Lauderdale's largest and finest hotels. Cy is happily married. Has a mighty pretty wife and about seven youngsters.

We happened to see a newspaper article on Cy Young the other day. That's what prompted this editorial. Seems that Cy was considering running for the governorship of Florida back in 1966. When Claude Kirk threw his hat in the ring, Cy changed his mind, became the state campaign manager for Kirk and carried his man right into the governor's mansion.

Kirk is a Republican and so is Cy. Which seems rather strange because back in the twenties they didn't allow Republicans to live in Princess Anne County.

At any rate, according to this newspaper article, Cy and Governor Kirk have got one going. Seems that Kirk is considering running again. If he does, Cy has flat stated that he will run against him. Cy claims that Governor Kirk's antics, both nationally and statewide, have hurt the GOP image.

"Kirk has been acting as though he owns the Republican party rather than being its servant," says Cy.

So the fat is in the fire and come 1970 the new Florida governor could well be our boy, Cy Young.

Not bad, not bad at all for this Oceana graduate. Wonder why we let him get out of town?

SPOTS

By H. Joseph Lowenthal, Jr.

"Now, really," he tried to reason. "Look at it my way. We have a perfectly fine warm kitchen, an elaborately furnished dining room with a perfectly fine table and six chairs. We have some nice china plates and serving dishes, and we have silverware that cost my mother a fortune."

"You just don't have any romance left, do you?" she asked, as she shook her head sadly.

"What does romance have to do with it?" he asked. "Over the past ten years, to please you, I have spent a small fortune making a comfortable home where you could entertain our friends and feel proud. Right?"

"Right," she conceded. "But how about your spirit of adventure?"

"My spirit of adventure will be satisfied in the dining room. The last time we ate in there was Christmas Day," he said. "Besides these are nice folks that are coming to dinner. Why do you want to subject them to this injustice?"

"You sound like you're trying a case before the Supreme Court," she said. "Furthermore she wants to have a picnic."

"But he doesn't," he said. "He works hard all day long too. He likes to come home and sit down at a table and eat from normal plates and drink from real live glasses too."

"You're both alike. That's true." She dismissed him with a shrug. "I think a picnic in the back yard will be fun."

"I know I'm fighting a losing battle," he added. "But cooking hamburgers on the grill while those steaks I bought go begging just seems silly."

"But hamburgers are easier to eat outside than steak," she reasoned.

"Did it occur to you to eat indoors instead? No, don't answer that."

"Put something heavy on those paper plates on the picnic table, will you please," she said as she busied herself taking most of the kitchen into the back yard.

"And pour something in the paper cups before they blow away. And oh, yes put out some more paper napkins. I guess the old ones blew away."

"Would there be anything else?" he asked sweetly.

"Well, now. That's better," she said. "Maybe you're getting the spirit after all. You can check the hamburgers, I think they're burning."

"Ok," he said. "But let me get the bug spray. Those wasps look like they are going to eat more of the potato salad than I will."

"Don't use the bug spray. You'll contaminate the potato salad," she yelled. "Whoops, your elder daughter just spilled something on the paper tablecloth. Take care of that, will you?"

"Sure," he said. "Hey, I didn't know any flies came around this time of year. After all, it's almost 50 degrees out there. Look at that mess of flies out there hovering over the cole slaw."

"Now, don't start that again," she said. "I only see four flies."

"All right, I won't mention it again," he said. "But what about the ants crawling through the onions?"

"There aren't any ants," she said. "Now get those plastic forks and spoons put out."

"Right, steward," she said as he gave her a sharp salute. "Your dining room awaits without!"

"Without what?" he asked. "The children and I will eat inside. It's starting to rain."

Miss Medley (Dementi Studio)

Miss Medley Is Engaged

Mr. and Mrs. Norbert Lancaster Medley of Atlantic Avenue announce the engagement of their daughter, Darlene Carol Medley, to Donald Dawson Smith.

Mr. Smith is the son of Mr. and Mrs. John Dawson Smith of River Road.

Miss Medley, a graduate of Princess Anne High School, attended Mary Washington College and received a bachelor of science degree in medical technology from the Medical College of Virginia. She is presently a medical technologist at the clinical transplant center at the Medical College of Virginia in Richmond.

Mr. Smith, also a Princess Anne High School graduate, will receive a bachelor of arts degree from Wake Forest University, Winston-Salem, N.C. in June. He is a member of Pi Kappa Alpha social fraternity.

Miss Snead

Summer Wedding Planned

Mr. and Mrs. Barney Lee Snead Jr., of Lake Shores Road announce the engagement of their daughter, Miss Janice Elaine Snead, to Stephen Patrick Swisher.

A late summer wedding is planned at Bayside Presbyterian Church.

Golden Agers Celebrate Their Third Birthday

Mr. Swisher is the son of Mr. and Mrs. James Thomas Swisher of Dunbar, W. Va.

Miss Snead, a 1965 graduate of Frank W. Cox High School, is a senior at Radford College and plans to graduate in August with a B.S. degree in biology.

The Lynnhaven Golden Age Club, under the sponsorship of the Virginia Beach Recreation Dept., held its third anniversary celebration at the Ebenezer Baptist Church on Baker Road, Sunday April 28.

Mr. Swisher, an honor graduate of Dunbar (W.Va.) High School, is a senior at Virginia Polytechnic Institute where he is majoring in chemistry. He is planning to enter the Law School of the University of West Virginia.

The church choir provided music. Club president Mrs. Cherry Sawyer, Mrs. Pauline Toliver and H. C. Benjamin all addressed the Golden Agers during their anniversary festivities.

Mrs. James G. Kellam (center) of Virginia Beach, was the chairman of convention arrangements for the state meeting of the American Association of University Women, held last weekend at the Cavalier Hotel. Mrs. E. Joseph Ambruster, left, and Mrs. H. A. Shook were two other Virginia Beach women attending the group's 43rd annual convention.

Set up rigid family smoking rules for safety's sake, advises the Institute for Safer Living of the American Mutual Liability Insurance Company. See that they are obeyed. Thoughtless family and guest smoking habits account for the largest number of residence fires each year. Rules should include no smoking in bed, and safe disposal of cigarettes and matches.

4-H Clubs Support Sewing

Home sewing may no longer be a necessity, but it is one of the fastest growing home arts. Making one's own clothes is a favorite hobby of more women today than ever before. What's more, there is a certain prestige attached to home sewing.

The machine itself has been so greatly improved during the past decade that it can do almost anything—from embroidering and darning to buttonholes and invisible stitching.

Choice and design of fabrics provide a kaleidoscope of color and textures. Trimmings, fastenings and patterns help make home sewing easier, and give clothes the "custom-made look."

Into this exciting world of fashion have come young 4-H girls just learning to sew, and their older sisters who are well on their way to becoming amateur couturiers. Under the guidance of well-qualified volunteer clothing leaders, some 700,000 girls between 9 and 19 years of age are turning out school clothes, sports attire, formals and even suits and coats.

These girls represent every state, and annually compete for awards provided by Coats & Clark Inc., national sponsor of the 4-H Clothing program.

How do they qualify for an award? By making a garment or garments of their choice, keeping in mind suitability of pattern and fabric to the individual figure. Sewing construction also is a very important part of the project.

Garments are inspected for straight seams, proper stitching, fit, overall finishing, and accessories. Oftentimes, the older girls judge younger members' garments and their own, as well.

They exhibit their work at local 4-H events and at the county fair. The four highest ranking members in the county receive a handsome gold-filled 4-H Clothing medal.

The best ones usually have a chance to show their outfits at the state fair where final judging is done for the state award; an expense paid trip to the National 4-H Congress in Chicago.

While in Chicago, all state and national winners, plus their state leaders will be guests of Coats & Clark.

Military Wives Club Notes

By Mary Wright

Ft. Story

Mrs. Larry Hall and Mrs. Richard Krieger will hostess a salad buffet at the Ft. Story Officers' Club, beginning this afternoon at 12:30 p.m. Col. Thomas Emory, commanding officer at Ft. Story, will briefly address the wives during their meeting.

The Officers' Wives' new officers will be elected at the Club's next coffee, scheduled for Wednesday, May 15 at the post Officers' Club, at 10 a.m.

Squadron Ladies

The Officers' Club at Little Creek Amphibious Base was the scene for a recent officers' Wives Club luncheon for distaffers from CAW-7 and the USS Independence. Fighter squadron 41 wives were hostesses for the dinner, which featured a speech by Mrs. Louise Kruger of the Virginia Beach Travel Service on travel in the Mediterranean.

The Oceana All-Wives Club will sponsor a sherry and white elephant sale, May 16, from 10:30 to 12:30 p.m., at the Naval Air Station for the benefit of the Vicky Lynn Fund. Admission will be $3.35 plus one white elephant, to be raffled off by silent auction.

NWCA

The regular monthly business meeting of the Dam Neck NWCA #207 will be held on Thursday May 2, in the Special Services Building, Dam Neck at 9:30 a.m.

Final directions will be given Mrs. George Tschudin and Mrs. John Beard, delegates to the NWCA Southeast Regional Convention which will be held May 4 through 8 in Charleston S.C.

Mrs. Homer Jones of Virginia Beach, Southeast Regional vice-president, will be presiding officer over the 22 club's members.

Mrs. Edward Plyler, president, invites wives of Enlisted Navy, Marine or Coast Guard to attend Dam Neck's meeting. Refreshments will be served with free nursery facilities for preschoolers.

District Wives

At the May luncheon of the Fifth Naval District Officers' Wives' Club, Mary Gordon, Travel Advisor from TWA, will discuss "Tips for Better Trips" with the wives. She will demonstrate bag packing—how to pack one bag for a two week trip!

The luncheon will be hosted by the Civil Engineer Corps wives and will be held May 7 at the Naval Station Officers' Club.

The price for the Steak a la TWA luncheon will be $2. Cocktails will be served at 12:00, lunch at 12:45. Door prizes will be awarded by TWA. For reservations call Mrs. G. Robert Holt, 340-1830 or Mrs. Ann Gordon, 857-2313.

THE WOMEN

VIRGINIA BEACH SUN

Thursday, May 2, 1968

Charlie Gilliam, Carolina June German vice president, Mrs. Marion Joyner, one of the founders, and Mrs. Peggy Smith, chairman of the June German Ball, discuss plans for the dance.

Carolínians Have Hoedown

The Carolina June German Club of Virginia Beach held their second annual Spring Hoedown Saturday at the Princess Anne Hunt Club where Carolínians, barbecue and Brunswick stew were in abundance.

The Hoedown is an informal party in preparation for the very formal June German Ball. This year's June German, the group's second, will be held from 9 p.m. to 1 a.m. June 7 at The Cavalier. The black tie affair is by invitation only.

Mrs. Clarence Smith is chairman of this year's dance. Other chairmen are Mrs. P. H. Allen, reservations; Mrs. J. H. Burt, decorations; Mrs. Glen Darr, favors; Mrs. J. D. W. Cassada, ballroom and food; and Mrs. Robert S. Reinhardt, activities. Members of the decorating committee are Mrs. William D. Robertson and Mrs. W. C. Overman Jr.

Music for the evening will be provided by The Continentals, a 17-piece band from Richmond.

Bill Vaughan is president of the group whose membership is limited to persons originally from North Carolina. June Germans were originally held in barns there, but the scarcity of barns large enough to hold the Carolínians in this area has led to a more "formal dance," however, the Hoedown Saturday more than made up for their yen for country living.

Coquina Ball Is Saturday

The fifth annual Coquina Ball will be held from 9 p.m. to 1 a.m. Saturday May 4 at The Cavalier.

Sponsored jointly by the Beacon and Oceanside Circles of the King's Daughters, it will benefit the King's Daughters Children's Hospital in Norfolk. Music will be by Pat Curtis.

Chairmen of the ball are Mrs. J.W. Allen, Mrs. Jane Wool and Mrs. Vicky Canada. Others are Mrs. Polly Sellers and Mrs. Gray Dodson, decorations; Mrs. Marty Henry and Mrs. Pat Proulx, tickets; Mrs. Jeannette Gallagher and Mrs. Joyce Ansell, reservations; Mrs. Kay Negro, publicity; and Mrs. Dot Stanton and Mrs. Priscilla Trinder, hostesses.

The ball is named for the tiny shelled creatures which are washed ashore by waves and then scuttle to bury themselves in the sand. Following is a recipe for Coquina Chowder which will be included in several new church cookbooks.

COQUINA CHOWDER

- 1 qt. coquinas
- 3 slices bacon
- 1 large onion, chopped
- 2 large potatoes, diced
- 1 c. milk
- 1 tsp. chopped parsley
- 2 T. butter
- Salt and pepper to taste

Rinse coquinas in a colander until all sand is removed. Place

Mrs. Frank Gallagher stirs a pot of chowder.

In saucepan and cover with water. Simmer until shells open (usually about 20 min.). Strain off liquid, then add sufficient water to this liquid to make 4 cups. Reserve liquid only. In large kettle, fry bacon until crisp. Remove and drain on paper towels. Saute onions in bacon fat for five minutes. Add liquid, potatoes, seasonings, and simmer until potatoes are tender. Add milk and butter. Reheat, but do not boil. Top with crushed, crisp bacon.

More than 300 persons attended the cocktail party at the Ocean Heath Sunday afternoon including James W. Evans and Mrs. James Arthur, shown serving themselves. The party was sponsored by the Cavalier Circle of King's Daughters for the benefit of the general hospital of Virginia Beach.

Mrs. M.F. Wallace, outgoing Bayside Junior Woman's Club president, sits with the incoming president, Mrs. Robert B. Cromwell Jr., and Mr. Cromwell at the Bayside Junior Woman's Club dance last Saturday at The Cavalier. Proceeds will go to purchase children's books for Bayside Library.

Mrs. M. R. Morgan, wife of a Canadianian Naval officer at SACLANT, chats with Mrs. L. Dean Curtis.

Cavalier Goes to Dogs

It will be Noah's Ark Revisited this Sunday at the Cavalier Beach and Cabana Club, when the Virginia Beach SPCA sponsors an animal fair to raise money for a new animal shelter here.

The May 5th Fair will begin at 2:30 p.m., and will include a performance by trainer Mrs. Marie Thompson's poodle, Bambl; animal songs by Arlice Anders, accompanied by Bruce Roberts; and the animal collection of Mrs. Mary Frances Morrisett, including a racoon, possum and snake, which will be on display between 3 and 4 p.m.

The fair will feature an animal adoption center. Everyone placing a pet up for adoption at the fair will be expected to make a donation to the shelter building fund, and if the animal is not adopted by the end of the day, the original owner must take it home.

Any pet put up for adoption must be caged or otherwise controlled by the owner.

Fair-goers will also have the opportunity to make purchases from an arts and crafts table, a white elephant sale and a collection of paperback books. Anyone wishing to donate books or elephants to the sale may leave the items at collection centers at the two Alexander Beagle stores at 31st Street and Pembroke, at the home of W. H. Hall, 209 43rd St., Virginia Beach or at the Cavalier Beach and Cabana Club on May 4.

Animal Fair chairmen are Mrs. Joseph Cawrys and Mrs. Reid Ervin, chairmen of the Virginia Beach SPCA Women's Committee.

According to Mrs. J. W. Sills, president of the Beach SPCA, plans for the animal shelter have been approved, and ground-breaking should be scheduled soon.

There's Nothing Like A Superior Duck

Sylvester has returned.

Sylvester (the kids named him) is a large, gray, free-loading duck that spent last summer on our front porch--ever see a duck climb steps? When cooler weather arrived, Sylvester disappeared. Now there's never any lack of ducks on the lakes around King's Grant, but no other developed a fondness for us like Sylvester had. Then last week he reappeared.

Every morning before breakfast he appears on the porch not begging, but demanding food. He stands between me and the morning newspaper on the steps and dares me to touch it without first bribing him--he particularly likes popcorn. After eating he waddles out of the way and is gone until about 5:30 in the afternoon.

He was standing in the middle of the driveway when I drove in the other night after a hard day's work. It was raining, and Sylvester was not about to move. I finally had to get out of the car in the rain and chase him out of the way.

All the ducks in Kings Grant are famous for that. They stop in the middle of the streets and dare anybody to hit them.

The brats think he's great--I reserve my opinion. You never heard such cries of joy as greeted me when I got home on the day of his return. He was standing there taking it all in and fixing a superior eye on me along with a ducky smirk.

There used to be geese all over Kings Grant too, but they became too vicious and chased too many children until finally the Bureau of Animal Control conducted a general roundup of them.

Right now I'm wondering how roast duck would taste for Sunday dinner?

Winning Service Stations Named

The F. & A. Shell Service Station, managed by Frank Kolodzie, and the Sunoco Service Station, managed by Ray Pearce which are adjacent to each other and located on Shore Drive and Great Neck Road, were judged the best landscaped and the most attractive in overall appearance by the Virginia Beach Council of Garden Clubs.

The J. R. Strickland Esso Station at Laskin and North Birdneck Road was judged second.

Mrs. Arthur H. Gallagher, chairman of the HANDS program of the Council, said the contest was initiated to encourage the improvement in appearance of all service stations in Virginia Beach.

A color photo of the winning stations, along with photos of other attractive stations from cities in the Southeast, will be viewed by delegates attending the 11th Annual HANDS Meeting in Birmingham, Ala. on May 22, 23 and 24.

Mrs. Gallagher will attend the meeting representing Virginia Beach. Approximately 150 garden club women, governmental officials and urban beautification specialists will take part in the three-day conference.

HANDS, which stands for Home and Neighborhood Development Sponsors, was developed 11 years ago when a search was made for some type of self-help program to preserve and rehabilitate the neighborhoods of American cities and improve the appearance of public properties, explained W. Clyde Greenway of Atlanta, director of HANDS.

The program was initiated and is sponsored by the Sears Community Improvement Fund. Banks and other local business concerns co-sponsor the program in a number of cities.

Mrs. Gallagher said, hopefully, that banks and businesses in Virginia Beach would become co-sponsors and add to the $500 grant that Sears gives the Council of Garden Clubs each year to present as awards to local garden clubs for their beautification projects throughout the city. Any money contributed and added to the grant would be reinvested by the clubs in further beautification.

Workshops will be featured during the conference to consider such problems as creating community interest in clean-up and beautification programs; getting support from the government and civic officials; and areas of improvement that may be undertaken by garden clubs in cooperation with other interested citizens. Some of the areas of improvement within the city to be considered will be city approaches, business property, residential areas, public properties and historical sites.

First Colonial Receives Freedom Shrine

The Virginia Beach Exchange Club, in cooperation with the Virginia Beach-Princess Anne Junior Woman's Club, presented a special assembly Friday in the high school auditorium.

The Freedom Shrine is a collection of 28 documents significant in United States history, beginning with the Declaration of Independence and ending with the treaty signed aboard the USS Missouri in 1945, which ended World War II.

In his presentation speech Cdr. Norrie Martin (USN, Ret.), president of the Virginia Beach Exchange Club, explained that all of the framed documents were made directly from the originals at the National Archives and the Library of Congress by the most advanced photographic means available, resulting in the highest possible visual authenticity.

Cdr. Martin introduced Adm. Charles S. Minter, Jr., commander of the Hunter-Killer Force, Atlantic Fleet and former superintendent of the US Naval Academy at Annapolis, Md., who presented the speech of the day.

"The need for responsible citizenship has never been greater than today," said Adm. Minter. He went on to liken the United States to ships on which he had served during World War II. Everyone on the ship had a unique, individual job to perform, said Minter, but when the ship came under attack, the entire crew's one purpose was to save the ship.

According to Martin, the Freedom Shrine, which will remain on display at First Colonial, is "to develop the spirit of Americanism" in its viewers.

As funds permit, said Martin, the Exchange Club will continue to present Shrines at the rate of one per year to Virginia Beach High Schools.

Representing the Virginia Beach-Princess Anne Junior Woman's Club at the presentation were Mrs. Jackie Sessoms, president, and Mrs. Stuart Grimes, former president.

The Bayside High School band was picked as "Best Non-Military Band" in the Azalea Festival Parade in Norfolk Saturday.

Parade Moves Ahead

Plans are moving ahead steadily for the annual Armed Forces Day parade in Virginia Beach, according to Asst. City manager, Roger Scott, who is handling publicity for the Chamber of Commerce.

Scott noted that this should be the largest parade ever seen during the May celebration. He said that he planned to call a press conference today or tomorrow to release full details of the parade.

A great deal of planning and coordination has gone into the event, according to Scott, between Virginia Beach city officials, the Chamber of Commerce and military officials in the area.

Military units and civilian units from most of Tidewater usually participate in the Armed Forces Day parade, which this year will be held on the morning of Saturday, May 18. In addition, military bases in the area usually hold open house and feature special exhibits.

The parade will be preceded the evening before by the second annual Armed Forces Ball at the

Teachers To Star

On May 4, the faculty at Princess Anne High School will present their Faculty Follies. It will be held in the school auditorium at 8 p.m.; tickets will be sold for $1.

The show will consist of take-offs of several nighttime quiz programs and ones resembling the "Dating Game." The New-lords, and the "Wizard of Oz." Climaxing this event will be a meeting of the minds with competition between the faculty Hi-Q team and student Hi-Q team.

The S.C.A. is sponsoring the production; Mrs. Jane Macowka is the faculty chairman, and Jim Basgier and Emily Warren are student co-chairmen. The proceeds from this program will be used for the foreign exchange program.

Show-Sale Is Saturday

The annual 4-H Junior Steer Show and sale, sponsored by the agriculture committee of the Virginia Beach Chamber of Commerce, will be held this Saturday at Aldo Farms.

Following display of the livestock the steers will be auctioned off, for beef sales by the quarter, half or whole. Local slaughter houses have made arrangements to prepare the beef for buyers.

Judging of the animals will begin at 9:30 a.m., with VPI livestock specialist Arden Huff presiding over the judging. Sale of the steers is scheduled to begin at 1:30 p.m., with bidding conducted by an auctioneer from VPI. The day long event will feature noon hour entertainment highlighted by a horse show.

Local businessmen, and others interested in agriculture, each year purchase steers which are donated, along with money for feed, to regional

City Directory Is Completed

Albin R. Malhes, executive vice president of the Virginia Beach Chamber of Commerce has announced that the new edition of the city directory has been delivered to subscribers and is ready for reference use.

This year's edition contains over 50,000 entries, including an alphabetical section listing many family names and places of business. The directory includes a classified section of business operations and professional men at Virginia Beach, as well as an introductory section on some of the city's points of interest.

Use Cans for Home Vegetables

Early each Spring you can get a special thrill when you make plans for a vegetable garden. In a very short time, you can enjoy picking fresh vegetables for the table or for canning and freezing qualities. Since a city garden is usually relatively small, choose the seed hybrid plants for the best yields.

Grow a wide range of vegetables in your garden. Concentrate on picking vegetables. If you grow plenty of big and little tomatoes, onions, zucchini squash, and sweet and hot peppers, you can can or freeze the excess when the vines are full of fruit.

Your vegetable garden should be in an open, sunny area with little competition from tree roots or shade from overhead branches. The soil should be easy to work and have good drainage. Organic matter is the answer to many soil problems, so keep a compost heap going to constantly improve the tilth and fertility of your soil.

Plant tomatoes, cucumbers, peppers, and squash when the ground is warm and the danger of frost is past. When tiny new leaves are formed on maple trees, you'll know it's safe to plant cold-tender seed.

Space your tomatoes, so as to allow three feet in each direction between plants. Tomato plants are best set deep with only 4 to 6 inches of a good-size plant above ground. To get plants off to a good start, fill planting holes with Nutro Plant Food Crystals in solution so nutrients are immediately available to the new plant. You should remove the leaves that will be below ground. To prevent root damage later on set sturdy stakes by the plants at planting time.

(1) Use a large nail to make holes around the outside edge of the bottom of the can. (2) Dig a hole for can, leaving an inch of can above ground, and firm soil around can. Make a large circle one inch deep around the can and plant seeds. Firm soil over seeds and water. (3) When plants are about 6 inches high, thin out weak ones, leaving 8 to 10 in each circle. Fill the cans with water each week if rains are light.

Peppers respond to the same starting treatment, but use Nutro Plant Food Pellets for supplementary feeding later on. Mulch the plants with straw to keep soil moist and cool and to keep weeds down.

When the first tomatoes are about the size of a golf ball,

Fellowship Day To Be Friday

Church Women from throughout Virginia Beach will meet at Galilee Episcopal Church Friday, May 3 at 11 a.m. to hear Miss Helen Morgan Brooks, a teacher-author from Philadelphia, speak at the May Fellowship Day sponsored by the Virginia Beach Chapter of Church Women United.

The theme of the program is "Name Versus Number Anonymity." Luncheon will be served following the service. A nursery will be provided.

feed the plants with Nutro Tomato Food and water it in well. This assures abundant fruiting. If you keep all the suckers that grow from the leaf joints pinched out, the fruiting growth will come on strong.

NOW IS THE TIME TO...

Keep newly planted trees, shrubs and perennials well watered.

Plant gladiolus bulbs and for succession of bloom, repeat every two weeks through mid-July. Dig chrysanthemum plants, divide and re-set.

Remove faded daffodil blooms, but no foliage.

Plant your corn and set out tomato and pepper plants.

Feed perennials and biennials, now in strong growth, with Cucumbers and squash give bumper crops each year when fed and irrigated deep in the ground through a 2-or 3-pound coffee can. This method encourages deep rooting and sturdy fruit-filled vines.

a low-nitrogen fertilizer such as a 6-22-16 flower food.

Remove clippings from the lawn resulting from spring lush growth.

Teen Centers Need Teachers

The Virginia Beach Department of Parks and Recreation is seeking instructors for the summer teen program.

Activity areas will include: sewing, knitting, art, cake decorating, charm, ceramics and crafts. Anyone interested in teaching in this program from July 8 through Aug. 12 should contact the Recreation Department immediately.

The Golden Age Clubs under the sponsorship of the Virginia Beach Recreation Department are announcing a planned trip to Philadelphia, Pa., July 19 through 21.

Anyone interested may call H. C. Benjamin at 497-4885 or, after 6 p.m., call 428-7207.

What to Use

Stick cinnamon, rather than ground, should be used in clear liquids such as pickling vinegar and syrup of a fruit compote.

Crabgrass is often a very serious problem to the Tide-water homeowner. This can be controlled before the seeds germinate by using a pre-emergence herbicide.

When using the post-emergence herbicides, crabgrass is easier to kill if the chemical is applied when the crabgrass is less than one inch tall. Pre-emergence herbicides are generally applied between November and April 1.

There are various crabgrass killers on the market today. When using them be sure to follow the manufacturers' instructions and precautions for their application. Most post-emergence crabgrass herbicides should not be applied during periods of hot weather (90 deg. F. or above).

DSMA (Disodium methylarsenate), one of several recommended chemicals, seems to be the chemical ingredient used most in crabgrass killers that are available in this area.

Herbs are easy to grow, useful in the cuisine and are always of special interest to visitors as well as to the feminine gardener. The kitchen or culinary herb garden contains such perennials as sage, thyme, chives, rosemary, mints and tarragon; with annuals and biennials such as sweet marjoram, summer savory, borage and parsley.

Many gardeners not particularly interested in herbs enjoy specializing in fragrant flowers. In addition to roses and lilies such perennials may be featured as dianthus, wallflowers and buddleia. Fragrant annuals are numerous, but among the best known are sweet alyssum, candytut, nasturtiums, petunias, nicotianas, stocks and mignonette.

Q. When and to what extent should holly trees be pruned? E. Marquette, Little Neck.

A. Pruning, especially of fruiting plants, might be done just before Christmas, by cutting short branches for decoration. Other pruning should be limited to taking out dead or diseased wood and crossed branches. Slight trimming to make the tree dense and compact in habit, can be done during early spring, before growth starts.

Q. What time of the year should daffodils be separated? V. M., Lynnhaven.

A. July; by then the foliage has fully matured and the bulbs are quite dormant. After separation, replanting should be done at once.

Q. Do tomatoes require much fertilizer? D. M., Princess Anne.

A. Tomatoes need to be well supplied with nutrients, whether this is achieved by the use of manure and phosphorus or a complete fertilizer. Phosphorus is particularly important for tomatoes, contributing to good yields and to earliness. Overuse of nitrogen under some conditions, and with some varieties, may result in overgrowth of vine and poor set of fruits. Use a good tomato fertilizer such as a 5-10-15.

Q. Are vine-ripened tomatoes more nutritive than those picked when only partially ripe? J. R. S., Alantone.

A. Vine-ripened tomatoes are of better quality and flavor, and are much better for canning. It is probable that they are more nutritious although some authorities dispute this.

Q. Just how should I go about planting a fruit tree? How big a hole should I dig for an apple tree? L. Bates, King's Grant.

A. A hole 12 to 15 inches deep and 15 inches across should be large enough for the average nursery tree. If the roots are too long to fit in a hole this size, cut them back. As the soil is filled in, jiggle the tree up and down a little so that all the roots will make contact with the soil. When the hole is half full, and again when it is full, step on the soil around the trunk of the tree in order to compact it. Finish filling the hole. If the soil is at all dry, pour in a pail of water before the hole is quite full.

Q. What are nematodes and in what manner does soil become infested? G. W., Pungo.

A. Nematodes are roundworms or earthworms, too small to see with the naked eye, that live in moist soil, in decaying organic matter, or as parasites in living plant tissues. They can travel only a short distance in the soil by themselves but spread by surface water, by moving infested soil from place to place and, very commonly, by local transfer and shipment of infested plants. Nematodes are more serious in sandy soils in Southern states. In the North, they may live over the winter in perennials, and can survive free in the soil.

Flouride Helps Ears

What is the state of dental health of five- and six-year olds who have drunk fluoridated water for all or most of their lives?

Initial examinations of youngsters from Flouride-enriched Newburgh, N.Y., the American Dental Association reported, showed that 42 per cent of them had no decay in primary or permanent teeth compared to only 18 per cent of youngsters from neighboring Kingston which does not have a fluoridated water supply.

Kingston children averaged 8.3 times as many decayed, missing, and filled permanent teeth when first seen by the dentist. Kingston children needed an average of more than twice as many dental services as the Newburgh group.

Still another use of the chemical was reported recently. According to ear, nose, and throat specialist Dr. George Shambaugh, of Northwestern University, fluoride helps reinforce the cochlea, the spiral-shaped bone in the inner ear that conducts sound. In some people that bone softens due to a condition known as cochlear osteoporosis, impairing hearing. When Dr. Shambaugh gave patients with that condition daily doses of fluoride he found that the cochlea of one out of five of them reallocated, and the progressive hearing loss was arrested.

Group Explains Difficulties; Rudee Inlet to Open on 15th

Rudee Inlet, that much maligned inlet on the south end of Virginia Beach Borough, will be opened to charter boat traffic on May 15, barring any "acts of God."

That is the word of the City Manager W. Russell Hatchett, Rudee Inlet Authority project director, L. Dean Curtis, George E. Langley, consulting engineer on the project, Ray Richardson, spokesman for the charter boat operators who will operate there, Ellsworth Morse, superintendent of the Erosion Commission and a host of other spokesmen.

This was the date set some time ago and none of the spokesmen see any reason now why the date cannot be met.

"Of course, when you are dealing with the ocean and with the weather, you can never be sure," said Curtis, "but all things being equal they should have a 100-foot wide channel ten feet deep open within the next few days."

There has been considerable criticism of the handling of problems of keeping the channel clear, Curtis said the problems have been "normal in a project of this magnitude."

He said that everyone is now extremely optimistic about the project, which has taken a lot of work on the part of many people over a period of years. He added that some who were part of the original planning and early work on the project are the very ones criticizing it. He said he did not consider this criticism valid in any way.

Although the project has suffered many setbacks in building construction and in court cases, it has progressed to a point now where a number of charter boats are expecting to operate from a temporary marina there beginning next week.

Langley, a member of the firm of Langley McDonald and Overman, has been one of the consulting engineers on the project since 1959. He said that there were times that Rudee Inlet was not really an inlet at all, that it was cut off from the ocean completely by deep sand as has happened to other inlets along the East Coast. He said that bulldozers had to be used often to open the inlet in the early days of dredging.

Financial setbacks have included money that the state said was available from its own and federal coffers last year for the project and since that time has not acted on a request for the money.

"But let us remember that the city was prepared to build the entire project on its own before the state even got in the picture," said Hatchett.

"And our request for funds is still by no means dead," said Curtis. "The matter is simply still under study. But even if we don't get the money, we're only spending what we intended to spend anyway."

The cost of the high level bridge over Rudee Inlet has also been criticized. Curtis and Hatchett said the cost of the city was only about 15 percent of the more than $700,000 cost of construction. The state and federal government paid the rest. Both Hatchett and Curtis described the building of the bridge as a necessary improvement to serve the needs of the city. They said it had to be built since the old bridge was totally inadequate.

The "sand trap" idea of keeping the new channel clear was suggested by the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers after a similar trap was used successfully in North Carolina.

Langley explained that the trap was a pit inside the jetties at Rudee that will bring still water. The trap will originally be eight feet deeper than the channel so that incoming sand will seek the lowest point and settle there. Once or twice a year, perhaps more often, according to Langley, this sand in the trap will be pumped out to become part of the sand nourishment program.

Other programs have included settling of the stone jetties during construction during storms, necessitating more stone and more money. Langley said this is best explained by an article in TIME magazine recently. The article says, "The ocean is a moving thing, alternately yielding and receiving sand from the action of waves and tides." And the article goes on to say that the ocean is entirely unpredictable depending on weather and winter storms.

That same article states that 90 per cent of the beach from New Hampshire to Florida is badly eroded and that dozens of big public beaches are in danger of being carried away. Virginia Beach is not included. Furthermore the article says that more sand is washed away

On a typical afternoon traffic is bumper to bumper waiting to get off the Expressway via the 10¢ toll machine at the end of the Independence Boulevard ramp.

On Expressway

Experts Help Snarls

Hang on, motorists! Help is on the way. That's the word from state toll facilities director, E. H. Orange, on the mounting traffic problem on the Virginia Beach-Norfolk Expressway at Independence Boulevard.

"We have the plans completed," said Orange, "for the addition of a new toll machine and the widening of the Independence off-ramp. The work should begin in about ten days and be completed before the end of June."

That is welcome news to regular Expressway users who have called or written the VIRGINIA BEACH SUN recently to register a complaint. The problem arose with the rush-hour traffic building up at the off-ramp traveling from Norfolk at Independence Boulevard. Only one toll-taking machine is at the bottom of the ramp, and with heavy traffic cars have been lined up bumper-to-bumper backed up onto the Expressway itself.

Many motorists have said they consider it not only time-consuming, but dangerous. Orange agreed and the problem has been under study for some time.

"That road just opened in December, and it was impossible to foresee this problem beforehand," said Orange. "But now that we are seeing it, we are doing something about it."

Orange added that at the time the road was planned one toll machine appeared to be sufficient there, but there was no Pembroke Mall Shopping Center then, Independence Boulevard had not become a major thoroughfare to the northern section of the city at that time.

Planners To Face Many Items

A multi-item agenda is expected to draw an overflow crowd during the City Planning Commission's next regular public hearing, at 2 p.m. next Tuesday afternoon in the new Municipal Court Building at Princess Anne.

The hearing will center around more than 20 applications including an unusually large number of apartments and townhouses, which would add more than 2,000 living units to Virginia Beach. The land involved in these projects is situated near South Lynnhaven Road and Holland Road 1,900 sq. ft. land near the intersection of Baker Road and Newtown Road, a Diamond Springs Road site near Bayville Road, a section of Princess Anne Plaza in the region of Diddle Drive and Club House Road, territory on First Colonial Road near Virginia Beach General Hospital, and South Birchbeck Road near Virginia Beach Boulevard.

Another important item to be considered is a City School Board application to construct a new junior high school near Providence Road and Manor Drive in the Kempsville Borough, which was approved in the January bond issue.

either. In addition Orange noted that there has been a great increase of home and commercial building in that area since the road was planned four years ago.

Also some persons are using the Independence exit to avoid paying the full 25-cent toll. There the toll is 10-cents, but before the next exit at Rosemont Road the main toll plaza must be used for the higher toll. Residents along Bonney Road say there has been a sharp increase in front of their houses as motorists leave the road at Independence Boulevard, then travel Bonney Road eastward.

Orange added that the law in theatres at the off ramps at Independence Boulevard and additional planned construction in the area have also been responsible for the new machine and new construction.

The road will be widened at the bottom and another machine placed next to the present one. Then the road will be tapered to the top of the ramp.

All other work on the major contracts for the Expressway, including access roads, grading, painting and the road complex at London Bridge are expected to be finished on time by Memorial Day, according to Orange. The addition of the other two lanes of Independence Boulevard from Virginia Beach Boulevard to the Expressway, long delayed by weather and funds, will be completed in June, said Orange. A supplementary appropriation was awarded last week by the State.

Other refinements have also been added to the Expressway. Tokens, in 10-cent or 15-cent size are available at the Expressway office, at the main toll plaza. The 10-cent tokens come in a $5 roll, and the 15-cent tokens come in a $7.50 roll.

"They are not offered at any reduced price," said Orange, "but as a convenience to regular users."

He added that a number of

Zoning Is Big Item On Council Agenda

City Council had an extra Monday off, thanks to the calendar. Council meets the second and fourth Mondays of the month, and since there were five Mondays in the month of April, the every-other-week schedule was interrupted.

But next Monday, May 13, Council will be back at work at 2 p.m. in the Circuit Court, and it could prove to be a long meeting.

At that time Council is expected to hear a report from a special committee formed early this year to study the needs for a convention center and stadium for Virginia Beach. That committee is headed by Bayside Councilman Lawrence Marghal. (See related story)

In addition 24 zoning matters are expected to consume a large part of the time for public hearing during the afternoon Council meeting.

Topping the list, as has been the usual in recent months, will be zoning changes and use permits for construction of apartment units and townhouses.

Several parcels of land in the Thoroughgood area east of Ewell Road and near Dunston Lane are also under consideration for rezoning for smaller homes.

Lynnhaven Corp. is applying for permission to construct 95 townhouses in the Arrowhead area near the intersections of Chyenne and Comanche Roads. BOU Enterprises is seeking a permit to build 224 apartment units on Old Great Neck Road near Regan Drive. Also Ferebee's Inc. is asking for a zoning change in the Windsor Woods area to smaller lot sizes.

Kempsville on Baxter Road. Three gas stations and two churches are also seeking approval.

In addition Council is expected to approve an application by the Lighthouse Point Corp. to construct a 200-room motel along the shores of Lake Rudee adjacent to the city's new marina there. Permission is also being sought by the same company to build boating facilities and associated enterprises at the motel.

Ceremonies to Honor Peace Officers Day

The City of Virginia Beach, for the first time, will take part next week in observing National Police Week. The annual observance honors the men and women of the law enforcement agencies who dedicate their lives to the protection of others.

The highlight of the local observance will occur next Wednesday, which has been designated as Peace Officers Memorial Day. Police Chief James E. Moore will preside over a special memorial ceremony at Princess Anne Court house in a tribute to former police officer Charles E. Portteus who was killed in an auto accident while he was on duty in June of 1952.

This special service, which is open to the public, will begin at 11 a.m. in front of the Circuit Court building. During the Memorial Service Mayor Frank Dusch will deliver an address to welcome dignitaries in attendance. Kenneth N. Whitehurst, Jr., Virginia Beach member of the Virginia House of Delegates, will be featured speaker for the service. Five memorial wreaths, honoring police officers who died in the line of duty, will be presented during the service.

Those scheduled to take part in this presentation are Sgt. Harry Seager, president of F.O.P. Princess Anne Lodge #6; Mrs. Mildred Bordner, president of the F.O.P. Ladies Auxiliary; Alvin L. Rodgers, chief Virginia Beach Justice of the Peace; Judge George Vakos, representing the Virginia Beach Judges Association, and J. Frank Gallagher, representing the Virginia Beach Lawyers Association.

Special music will be provided by members of the U.S. Navy Little Creek Amphibious Base.

'Politics' Rears Head in Dispute

City Councilman Robert B. Cromwell, Vice-Mayor, former judge and an attorney now has a new role—that of a mediator between the Virginia Beach Police Department and the Virginia Beach Commonwealth Attorney's office.

Cromwell was assigned that role after discussions at an informal Council meeting Monday reached a virtual impasse. He said yesterday that he plans to meet again with Commonwealth's Attorney Evans and Police Chief J. E. Moore and Detective Capt. W. W. Davis in an attempt to resolve all differences.

Now that the apparent rift is out in the open, no one is taking credit for getting it there.

Chief Moore and Capt. Davis reportedly did not ask City Manager W. Russell Hatchett to bring the matter before City Council. Evans said he did not ask either. But Monday there it was. Several Councilmen, police spokesmen and Evans all said that they did not feel it was a large enough issue to take before Council and that it probably could have been worked out between offices without so much publicity and bad feeling.

The matter stems from pre-trial conferences set up by Evans shortly after he took office in January. The conferences, held in some cases an hour before court appearances or in others the afternoon before a court appearance, are held to gather together testimony and points that may or may not have been made clear in police reports, according to Evans.

Evans also said that he had written the police chief last week when it became apparent to him that policemen were having difficulty meeting that schedule and that he was aware that pre-trial preparation was time-consuming, but that this preparation constitutes "99 per cent of courtroom success."

He added that he would join in a cooperative effort to settle the problem since he expected the demands to get worse in the future due to an increased work load. Evans also said that he sometimes dealt directly with policemen involved in a case to handle the matter expeditiously instead of going through the police chief or chief of detectives. This was in answer to another reported problem brought out by the police department.

After the closed Council meeting no one from the police department wished to make any comment on the matter whatsoever, when questioned by the VIRGINIA BEACH SUN. Evans, however, was more vocal. He told the VIRGINIA BEACH SUN that Capt. Davis told the meeting he does not have enough men to

Adm. Holmes to Be Marshall

Adm. Stephen Paul Holmes, Supreme Allied Commander, Atlantic; Commander in Chief Atlantic and Commander in Chief, U.S. Atlantic Fleet, will preside over the 11th annual Armed Forces Day festivities, scheduled for Saturday, May 18 at Virginia Beach.

Adm. Holmes was named as Grand Marshall for the Armed Forces Day parade during a Tuesday afternoon press conference called by Edward Brogan, chairman of the Armed Forces Committee of the Chamber of Commerce and chairman of the Armed Forces Day Committee.

The parade will get underway at 10 a.m. the morning of

May 18, beginning at 10th Street and Atlantic and concluding at 31st Street. The reviewing stand will be located at 25th Street.

According to Brogan, some 145 units are expected to participate in the parade, including floats, marching bands and drill units sponsored by Virginia Beach schools, civic clubs and organizations and the four military installations within the city's boundaries. A panel of six judges will decide on two prize-winning entries (civilian and military) in each of three categories: floats, marching bands and drill teams. William Kellam will narrate the parade from the reviewing stand as master of ceremonies.

Local Senior Wins International Award

First Colonial High School senior Tom Eagar, 18 son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry D. Eagar, has recently learned of his selection as International Junior Citizen of the year.

The annual award is given to one boy per year selected by the International Junior Citizen Committee, composed of five civilian international representatives from across the United States and Canada.

Alvan Andrews of Norfolk, a civilian international officer, will present the Honor Key to Eagar at the Civitan Chesapeake District Convention, May 17-19, at Alexandria.

Among an impressive list of scholastic and extra-curricular activities, Eagar includes playing varsity football for First Colonial; the presidency of his local Junior Civitan Club and the position of governor for the Junior Civitan Chesapeake District.

A Key Clubber, member of the National Honor Society, both the First Colonial and Tidewater Scholastic Teams and captain of his school's H-Q team, (currently one of four Tidewater high schools to remain in competition for the first place $2,000 award) Eagar is a native of Chattanooga, Tenn.

A much-traveled young man, having lived at Atlanta, Ga. and Raleigh, N.C. before moving to Virginia Beach with his family three years ago, Eagar has been accepted for admittance to MIT in the fall, where he will major in mathematics. He will attend college with the help of a $2,000 scholastic scholarship loan from MIT.

Sales Tax To Affect Rentals

Bailey Parker, president of the Virginia Beach Real Estate Board, says the state sales tax is applicable to seasonal rentals. Parker received confirmation of the taxation in answer to a query of the Virginia Association of Realtors in Richmond.

Under the present law a 3 per cent sales tax is placed on revenue received from the rental of homes, apartments, and/or similar accommodations for periods of up to 90 days. However, this tax rate will be increased to 4 per cent on July 1. Parker points out that under the existing laws rentals which were transacted prior to April 1 will not be affected.

Those affected by the state sales tax law provisions include real estate people, property managers and individuals who offer accommodations for short term rentals, and will have a great impact in the resort city of Virginia Beach.

First Colonial Principal E. Carlton Bowyer congratulates Tom Eagar.

Festival Schedule Changes

Carlos Montoya, world famous flamenco guitarist, will head off the line up of guest artists who will perform during "A Summer Festival 1968," sponsored in August by the Virginia Beach Friends of Music, Inc.

Montoya, a native of Spain, has performed all over the world and in all 50 states. His appearance will be with the Norfolk Symphony Orchestra at the Civic Center on Aug. 3 and 4.

Although a few changes have been made since the original series of concerts was announced, the latest schedule is: Feldman Chamber Music Society, Aug. 5; "The Merry Widow," Virginia Beach Civic Chorus and Orchestra, Aug. 6-7; Concert of Baroque Music, Recorder Society, Aug. 8; Veronica Tyler and William Warfield with the Norfolk Symphony and Cantata Chorus of Norfolk, Aug. 9;

Feldman Chamber Music Society, Aug. 11; Salute to the Armed Forces, Aug. 12; Odette, folk singer, Aug. 14; Concert of Baroque Music, Recorder Society, Aug. 15; Gary Graftman, pianist, along with the Norfolk

First Colonial Out Two Top Men

The discovery Monday that First Colonial's star sprinter Les Whitehorn is out for the remainder of the season due to a separated hamstring muscle came predictably close to First Colonial's first defeat of the season Monday afternoon at Foreman Field when Princess Anne took the Patriots 68-63.

Whitehorn, who ran the 100 in 9.9 for the Tidewater Invitational qualifying trials and took last weekend's Eastern Relays with a flat 10.0, has been troubled by the leg muscle since taking the 100 at the Symphony, Aug. 16 and 17.

On Monday, Wednesday and Friday of both Festival weeks, the Pussycat Puppet Theatre will perform at the Civic Center at 5:30 p.m. All concerts will begin at 8:30 p.m.

Colonial Relays earlier this season.

According to First Colonial track coach Ronnie Etheridge, doctors report that Whitehorn could permanently injure his leg if he runs again this season.

Not only was Whitehorn missing from the First Colonial cindermen, but Tom Bingley who holds the fifth place in high hurdles and slot number three in low hurdles for the state, was also missing; and was tested early this week for mononucleosis.

Gen. Stiles Honored at Retirement

Special ceremonies were staged Tuesday at the Little Creek Naval Amphibious Base honoring Marine Brig. Gen. William A. Stiles on his retirement from 33 years service.

Stationed at Little Creek for the past year, Stiles was in command of the Landing Force Training Command, and was temporary commander of the Amphibious Training Command.

Prior to his Little Creek assignment Stiles had command of the 1st Marine Division's Task Force X-Ray during operations in the Chu Lai region of South Vietnam, and was awarded the Distinguished Service Medal.

Cape Henry Park May Materialize

Just 361 years after the first English colonists to settle permanently in the New World landed on the shores of Cape Henry, plans were finally announced to expand the park at the site.

The landing spot where John Smith's colonists first landed and held a religious service at a wooden cross before going on to Old Point and finally to Jamestown went unnoticed until the 1930's. It was at that time that plans to mark the spot of the wooden cross with a granite one were begun, according to former Virginia Gov. Colgate W. Darden, Jr.

Last Sunday, Cape Henry Day, First District Congressman Thomas N. Downing, made the announcement at a luncheon marking the occasion that the National Park Service had agreed finally to enlarge the half-acre park site at the spot.

Plans are now being formulated, according to a letter Downing received from the Service, and exact park plans should be announced later this month.

The announcement came as somewhat of a surprise, since two weeks earlier, Downing told the VIRGINIA BEACH SUN that efforts to make the area into a national monument as requested by the Virginia General Assembly were not going well. He was hopeful at that time, however, that something could be done.

In his luncheon speech, Downing noted the amount of hard work "behind the scenes" had gone into the probable 10 to 12 acre park.

Downing was introduced at the luncheon by Federal Judge Richard Kellam of Virginia Beach.

Then at ceremonies at the cross, similar to a service used in the Anglican Church in the 1700's, wreaths were placed by representatives of a number of historical societies.

Virginia Gov. Mills E. Godwin Jr. addressed the crowd at the ceremonies, and said that Virginia can be proud of its heritage, while still needing to meet the modern challenges of big cities, transportation, education and mental hospitals.

He was introduced by former Gov. Darden. The ceremonies and the luncheon were sponsored by the Order of Cape Henry, 1607, which each year observes the first landing in Virginia Beach.

Gov. Godwin (in sunglasses) and former Gov. Colgate Darden received a Boy Scout salute as they march in the processional prior to ceremonies at the Cape Henry Cross. They are followed by First District Congressman Thomas N. Downing, who was the luncheon speaker.

The Governor spoke to the crowd assembled at the Cross marking the first landing of English colonists in America in 1607.

More than half of the 27,000 Americans who die in home accidents each year are killed by falls.

Lions Horse Show Set for This Weekend

The third annual Princess Anne Lions Club Horse Show will be held this weekend, May 11 and 12, at Hillcrest Stables. The first events begin Saturday morning at 8:30.

The owner of Hillcrest Stables, Jim Cantwell, has donated the use of the area for three years. He is a member of the Princess Anne Lions. Admission is free, but donations will be accepted, which will be used by the club for its charitable work.

The Princess Anne Lions gives a yearly scholarship to a to a Kellam High School graduate and send a representative to Girls' State and Boys' State each summer, among other projects.

The major project supported by the Lions nationwide is eye-sight conservation. The Princess Anne Club holds classes in sight conservation and provides eye exams for needy children.

The competition and judging will continue through the two-day show. Entrants are from Tidewater and other sections of Virginia.

The public is invited. Hillcrest Stables is reached by proceeding four miles east of the Accade intersection on Indian River Road.

PA Is at District Wire In Last Week of Play

Princess Anne and Granby went into yesterday's games deadlocked in a tight race for the I-A Eastern District baseball championship. In the final week of district play, PA and Granby have locked horns at identical 10-3 records.

Monday saw Granby's Comets take Cox 5-1, while on that day Princess Anne scored a 6-0 win over Kellam.

Yesterday Granby took on Maury (with a 9-4 record for the season and a previous 5-3 defeat of Granby earlier in the season). PA was scheduled to play Norview, which had suffered a 7-0 loss to the Cavaliers earlier this year.

Maury took Norview 5-1 on Monday, while the First Colonial Patriots defeated Bayside 3-2 on the same afternoon. The District title was still in up the air going into yesterday's games.

A PA win and Granby loss yesterday would've resulted in the title being clinched for Princess Anne. By the same token, with the tables turned, Granby could have come out with the championship yesterday.

If the two leading teams had both scored wins, a play-off would have to be scheduled to find the Eastern District champ. Norview and Maury wins would have made a three-sided playoff necessary.

Peterson Named Head of Drive

Jon C. Peterson, of Virginia Beach, president of Colonial Outdoor Advertising, has been appointed 1968 Multiple Sclerosis Hope Chest Drive chairman, according to Harley M. June, local leader for the Tidewater Chapter, National MS Society. Campaign dates for the MS drive run from May 1 thru June 17, 1968.

MS Hope Chest appeal will cover Virginia Beach, Norfolk, Portsmouth, Suffolk, Chesapeake, Nansemond County, Holland, Franklin, Smithfield, Eastern Shore.

It's good that Brasil '66 has succeeded, because it confirms one's belief that, musically, these are fluid times, with more openings than ever before for contemporary creative endeavor.

I cannot see how substantial international achievement can elude this group, who have marketed, with considerable taste, a delicately-mixed blend of planistic jazz, subtle Latin nuances, Lennon-McCartneyisms, some Mancini, here and there a touch of Bacharach, cool, minor chords, danceable up-beat, gentle laughter and a little sex.

To put in the picture-as Beryl Blood once said in a rare flash of wit-Brasil '66 is the name applied with astute euphonic accuracy to the four man, two-girl entertainment unit which was consciously created, deliberately disciplined, and beyond doubt was bound to become beautiful and famous and rich and all of the things for which mortals have, since two wood clubs and a monkey-skin bought one stone ahead, been engaged in a ceaseless, relentless quest.

The 'Brasil' of the title was selected because the group was established in Ipanema and '66, as you've guessed, is the year of the unit's creation.

The story of Brasil '66 actually began a few years ago, in Ipanema when Sergio Mendes, a conspicuous and talented young pianist on the Bossa Nova scene, had formed a quintet and as his travels in North America increased, he began to dig the new, healthy U.S./Latin musical fusion of Getz and he was sufficiently motivated by musical instincts and money to set about making danceable, hummable, singable, melodic 'Jazz-Brazil-Pop' go to work for him.

By spring of 1966 they were ready for much work. Adler and Mendes diffidently asked A & M Record Company to look them over and the record company's enthusiasm was boundless. Herb Alpert took them on tour with him and through Alpert's generous personal and publicized approval of Brasil '66 has been of incalculable value to the group, it emerged that Brasil '66 were certain, clear and critically-appraised artists in their own separate right.

BADGES & BANTER

Among new men who joined the Virginia Beach Police Department this week was J. E. Waters, who took up duties with the First Precinct, operating out of the headquarters building at Princess Anne Courthouse.

The Creeds fire station was the scene last Saturday of a "community dance for youngsters of all ages," sponsored by members of the Volunteer Fire Dept. Ladies Auxiliary. According to Chief Floyd Waterfield the dance was a huge success with everyone attending expressing the hope that similar dances may be scheduled on a regular basis.

Congratulations are in order for Sgt. Harry Seager, attached to the First Police Precinct, and wife Ruth Ann. The Seager's join the list of new proud parents with the announced birth of their son David Wayne.

A reminder this is "Fund Drive Month" for the Volunteer Fire & Rescue Units of the city of Virginia Beach. Support those who stand ready to protect you when they call for donations to continue their operations. This year's goal is $3.65 per family served by the unit headquartered in each borough of the city.

A special seminar for fire department officers held this week in Alexandria, Va., was attended by Virginia Beach Borough Fire Dept. Chief E. B. Bayne, and Asst. Chief Garland M. Atwater. Sponsored by the Virginia State Dept. of Education the seminar featured speakers from various metropolitan fire departments of the East Coast, and centered around fire dept. management and operation.

Sgt. Kenneth A. Belangia, attached to the Police Department traffic bureau, has been named manager of the Princess Anne F.O.P. Lodge #8 softball team. Belangia says the team will take to the field tonight in its first game against men from the Norfolk Police Department.

meet the "excessive demands" for pre-trial investigations and routine day-to-day investigations.

Evans then said he told Davis that the original investigation was only as good as the follow-through of pre-trial investigation to assure courtroom success. He also suggested that either more investigators be assigned him or that more policemen would seem to be the answer to the problem.

Evans now has three assistants and a full-time investigator assigned him by the Police Department. One Councilman said this is why he thought the full-time assistants and investigator were hired. Twelve additional policemen will be hired shortly after the new city budget goes into effect on July 1, but there is no indication as to how these new men will be utilized. Police officials have said for some time that they were short-handed.

Evans told the Council that he had some suggestions on how the Police Department could be improved, but added that Council wouldn't want to hear them and that was not the reason for the meeting.

He said that Chief Moore replied that he would like to hear about it. Evans said he replied that the first thing that could be done is to get the police department "out of politics."

The reference was not explained, but Evans was elected last year after a bitter primary battle with the established organization. Moore is reportedly on the opposite side of the political fence from Evans. Evans told the VIRGINIA BEACH SUN that he thought the police department should be non-partisan. Police spokesmen say it is.

Evans also said that he told Council that the police had a "fundamental misunderstanding of their function in the area of prosecution responsibilities," that they'd rather be out playing cops and robbers than building a good court case."

Several Councilmen said they regretted that remark by Evans, and at least one police spokesman said privately that he wasn't so certain now that Evans had a "fundamental understanding of police responsibilities."

Evans said after the meeting that it was his understanding that the status quo prevailed and that he would expect policemen to come to the conferences as before. Although he stopped short of a threat, Evans added in another interview that unless adequate pre-trial investigations were made, he would have to not prossc some cases where investigation had not been complete and tell the people of Virginia Beach why.

One Council spokesman said after this remark, "The entire matter stems from politics."

Both sides have said they did not want the verbal arguments or "argument by newspapers," but it is now up to Cromwell to resolve the differences.

Cox Students to Present 'Little Mary Sunshine'

The drama and music departments of Frank W. Cox High School will present their annual spring musical Friday and Saturday nights, May 10 and 11. This year's musical, "Little Mary Sunshine," stars Loralee Ernst as "Little Mary." Other members of the cast include eight forest rangers, with Curtis Kemp playing the hero and head ranger.

Eight young ladies from Eastchester Finishing School; a retired Viennese opera singer played by Pat Hartman; a retired general from Washington, D.C., played by Ron Davis; three Indians and a man-crazy maid, played by Nancy Finch, are the remaining members of the cast. The play is a spoof of the melodramatic operettas of the 1930's. It takes place in an inn in the Colorado mountains with the well-known theme: "Good Triumphs Over Evil." Both the musical and the script were written by Rick Besoyan.

Director of "Little Mary Sunshine" is James Garrett, musical director is William Boyll and the student director is Sue Rittenhouse. Showtime both evenings is 8 p.m. in the Cox High School auditorium. Tickets are available at the door for $1 or in advance from the school's student activities office for $1.75.

High Schools To Compete In Track Meet

The annual Virginia Beach city High School Track meet is scheduled for Wednesday, May 15, at Bayside High School.

About 200 competitors from five public schools will participate in 15 events. Trials will begin at 4 p.m., and the finals will start at 7:30. Adults will be charged a $5.00 admission price; children, $2.50.

Manager Is Expected By June 1

The naming of a new City Manager for Virginia Beach is apparently moving closer. Councilman John McCombs said that the new manager may be named before June 1.

That was the original target date set by McCombs, chairman of the special Council committee screening applicants, some time ago. Since that time the more than 60 applications were screened down to four, and they have already been interviewed by the full Council. Two were interviewed Friday afternoon and the other two were interviewed last night.

McCombs would not release the names of the Friday interviewees, but said one was from Virginia and the other from North Carolina. He added that he and other Councilmen had been favorably impressed with both, but not more one than the other.

The two who were interviewed last night were Asst. City Manager Roger Scott, considered a frontrunner for the job, and Richard Weyon, now the city's coordinator of urban affairs. No additional interviews have been scheduled.

Council placed a new advertisement in a municipal magazine recently setting May 15 as the deadline for accepting applications and leaving the salary "open." An earlier ad set the salary between $18,000-$23,000. McCombs noted yesterday that he had received four or five answers to that ad in the way of applications, but would not say whether any would be recommended for interviewing.

W. Russell Hatchett is due to retire on July 1.

Brickell to Speak
School Supt. E. E. Brickell will speak at the meeting of the Parents League of First Colonial High School at 8 p.m. Monday, May 13 at the school. This will be the last League meeting of the school year.

Name Honors Mother

An oil painting will soon be hung in Gus Riganto's Princess Anne Plaza restaurant. The portrait is of a gently smiling woman, dark hair piled high in the Gibson Girl, turn-of-the-century style, eyes serene. Her name was Angelina.

Angelina Chinchello Riganto; Gus Riganto's mother, the matriarch of one of Tidewater Virginia's oldest Italo-American families and now the namesake of her youngest son's restaurant.

"The restaurant had been called 'Freddy's,'" said Riganto, "after her brother. I've wanted to change the name to Angelina's for years, but she was always afraid that someone's feelings would be hurt by the change."

This spring, coinciding with Mothers' Day, and Angelina's May 25 birthday, the restaurant's name has been changed.

Angelina Chinchello, a diminutive woman whom Riganto remembers as "tiny, 4' 11", with dark hair that hung below her waist" was born in the Sicilian province of Messina, Italy, in 1894. In the fall of that year, when Angelina was six months old, the Chinchello family left Italy for Boston. Seventy years later, to the month, she died in Tidewater. But Angelina Riganto was that variety of women who leaves memories, very much alive, with the people she has touched.

"It was nothing to see 18 or 25 people at our table for Sunday dinner," said Riganto. "She would spend 10 or 12 hours preparing the food, then when the dishes were on the table, she would just sit and watch the others eat, satisfied that they were enjoying the food."

"We had a large family," Riganto went on, "and she used to say 'Good things come in bunches.' She liked cooking for all of us."

The Chinchello family--and Angelina--moved to Norfolk in 1905. Five years later, Angelina, then 16, met and married another Italian transplant, 24-year-old Frank Riganto, a native of Bari, Italy.

"My parents were married for almost 54 years," said Riganto, "and during that time, we children never heard them say an angry word to each other. There was a difference of almost 10 years in their ages--the way with most mar-each winter than is rebuilt during the summer.

Jetties, debris, marsh grasses and a number of other remedies have not been the answer according to the article. The only real success has been in the few areas where a beach sand nourishment program has been undertaken, such as in Virginia Beach, where the Erosion Commission has carried out a continuing program for several years.

The TIME article says the entire matter is caused by slowly melting ice from the polar ice cap and that the level of the seas has risen 300 feet in the past 18,000 years, or about nine inches a century. In summary the article says the only things that can save the beaches are a beach nourishment program or other ice age.

Ray Richardson, owner of the 36 foot charter boat Richie, says a boat up to 65 feet will be able to be brought into Rudee Inlet after next week. He also said that use of the Inlet will cut an hour and 40 minutes off the round trip to primary fishing grounds, to say nothing of the nine miles and several gallons of fuel that will be cut.

"I think this will add to the sport fishing image of Virginia Beach greatly," said Richardson.

Richardson added that the ten-foot depth of the channel is more than enough even with waves and tides.

The two Erosion Commission dredges are working seven days a week, 24 hours a day to get it ready by May 15. And according to all concerned, the long awaited project at Rudee Inlet should be in initial use on that day, ten years after the beginning of talks.

Cast for Play Is Completed

CASTING IS COMPLETE for the final production by the Little Theatre of Virginia Beach for the current season.

The play is "Hay Fever"--Noel Coward's light comedy dating from the early 20's.

Cast members are: Mike Barlow, Joe Duffy, Michael Donahue, Mary Lou Hollowell, Gwen Kiser, George Metz, Terol Moore, Gretchen Otto and Laura Rice.

The play is under the direction of Penny Martin and will open May 31, continuing June 1, 2, 7, 8 and 9 for regular season ticket holders and patrons. The run will be extended on Fridays and Saturdays through July 6, as the Little Theatre's contribution to Virginia Beach's Summer Festival.

Quick Recovery Made By School from Storm

Ten classrooms were knocked out of commission, the roof was off an 80-foot section of the building; there were minor walls and ceilings damaged by winds and water; and generally Bay-side High School was a mess. That was the scene on Wednesday morning when officials looked over the damage done the evening before by a twister that touched down there.

By Monday morning, almost unbelievably, the classrooms were back in use; the roof was back on; new steel had been placed; the inner walls were repaired, as were the ceilings; and generally Bayside High School reflected none of the havoc of a few days before.

The transformation came over the weekend as the result of a concentrated effort by about 40 workmen, working in their off-hours to clear away the debris and to rebuild the damaged parts.

Estimates of $50,000 were noted to repair the building the day after the storm, but privately school officials say the actual loss may not be that great. The day after the twister, the school was not expected to be fully ready for occupancy again for a month. The subcontractors, however, cut a bit of time off that estimate.

Two language machines were damaged badly and cannot be replaced quickly, but otherwise it is difficult to tell just where the damage was a week ago.

Expressway

large commercial users had purchased the tokens. Orange suggested that anyone who wishes may stop and purchase the tokens, but preferably when a motorist is westbound since it is easier to stop and park. "I think they're also good for anyone who has difficulty keeping change in his pocket," said Orange.

Orange said his department is also working with Reeves-Johnson, Virginia Beach Traffic Safety director on any problems that may arise at the end of the road in Virginia Beach Borough, but he said the City is handling most of the work there. Johnson has said it may be necessary to raise speed limits there to 35 M.P.H. and to make both 21st and 22nd Streets one way to Pacific Avenue. He said he and members of his department are still studying the situation there.

Meanwhile, traffic continues to increase on the Expressway and is expected to reach a peak this summer of 10,000 vehicles a day.

The latest accepted bid for school construction came last week for the addition to Kempville Elementary School. A-warded the $76,892 contract was Weigand Construction Co. of Virginia Beach. This amount is again short of the $80,000 estimated and appropriated in the January 20 bond issue.

The next school to be bid will be the junior high school in Kempville about June 15. The school will be built similar to the plan of Kempville High.

The new Bayside junior high school to be bid sometime in August will be built on a totally different and new concept plan, according to construction supervisor Ernest Stone. Plans are expected to be presented at the next school Board meeting on May 21.

The final school approved in the January bond issue to be bid is the Vocational-Technical high school. That should be either late in July or August. Stone said there is some difficulty still to be overcome in the planning for the foundation on the low-lying Green Run Farms site.

"The structure is a heavy one," said Stone. "And it requires a little different work."

He added that the site, however, is ideal because of its central location and quick access to all existing high schools. Students will attend regular school classes part of the day and the vo-tech center the other part of the day.

This year's parade shows a considerable increase over the 1967 line-up, when 128 units passed before an estimated crowd of between 16 and 20 thousand people for some two-and-a-half hours. Brogan said that the parade committee "is trying to keep the parade time within three or so hours this year."

"There will be a note of sophistication--which we've been striving for--in the type of floats we'll be showing this year," said Brogan. He continued that, as far as he knew, the Virginia Beach Armed Forces Day was the only official celebration of the day in Tidewater. Designated as the third Saturday in May, by the Federal government, Armed Forces Day here will culminate with the second annual Armed Forces Ball, at the Virginia Beach Convention Center.

Approximately 600 armed forces personnel and civilians are expected to attend the Ball, at which Adm. Holmes will be the Chamber of Commerce's guest of honor.

All four of Virginia Beach's military installations (NAS Oceana, Little Creek Amphibious Base, Ft. Story and Dam Neck--including the three tenant commands of the Fleet Anti-Air Warfare Training Center, the Computer Center and the Guided Missile School) will be represented at the Ball, as well as the major civic organizations, the Chamber of Commerce and the city administration.

Brogan, who has been chairman of the 27-member Armed Forces Day committee for the past seven years, explained that the day "is one time set aside to honor all of the city citizens in uniform."

Chief E. B. "Bubba" Bayne is chairman of the parade. The traffic problems resulting from the parade will be eased by military police and shore patrol men provided by the military.

A Naval Academy graduate, Adm. Holmes was commissioned Ensign June 5, 1930. He attained the rank of Admiral, effective as of June 17, 1967. Among his many decorations, Adm. Holmes holds the silver star, and the bronze star with gold star.

Adm. Holmes, a native of downstate N.Y., is married to the former Nancy Jane Sellers of Denver, Col. They have two children, Diane Hathaway and Lt. E. P. Holmes, Jr.

New Beach Concert Group Is Growing

Drawing on backgrounds that include Europe, New York, and, of course, Tidewater Virginia, a group of determined musicians/singers are now well on their way to providing Virginia Beach with a concert orchestra and concert singers.

Fran Ferrigno, a tenor with the Virginia Beach Concert Singers, whose wife Olga is pianist for the orchestra explained that an abortive attempt was made at beginning the orchestra four or five years ago. Finally, in 1966, the orchestra and singers got off the ground, both groups under the direction of L. Douglas Waldorf.

The orchestra and singers both draw members from the Norfolk area. First violinist Herbert Newton, a student of I. E. Feldman and a member of the Norfolk Symphony for 15 years, is only one of the Norfolk natives lending his talents to the Beach orchestra. Two others are Stuart Edwards, clarinet, and Charles Peralto, viola.

"We are trying," said Ferrigno, "to establish a permanent concert orchestra for Virginia Beach, a community project." Ferrigno stressed the point that the idea of a concert orchestra should not conflict with the Virginia Beach Symphony. "We play music in a lighter vein," he said, "with fewer instruments than required for symphony orchestration. Which is not to say that either we or the symphony are restricted to playing only one kind of music—we can both experiment."

During a performance last week at Norfolk, the Concert Orchestra presented an eclectic program of Verdi, Rodgers and Hammerstein, Chopin, Victor Herbert and Tchaikowski, among others.

"One of our objects," Ferrigno added, "is to provide the opportunity for musicians to meet and perform, for young students to supplement their education with practical experience. We want to develop a concert orchestra that will be available to touring companies—plays, musicals."

The concert singers, who have also been working together about a year, "hope, in the main, to perform with the orchestra," said Ferrigno. "But with the prospects of liquor-by-the-drink, and the subsequent growth of supper clubs here, there will be a greater demand for entertainment, and perhaps there will be occasions when we will be asked to perform without the orchestra."

The love duet from Act 3 of Verdi's "La Traviata", sung by Frank Ferrigno and Sally Suter, was one of the highlights of the Virginia Beach Concert Orchestra and Concert Singers' performance.

The Beach Concert Singers, some ten voices strong, includes several professional back-grounds—as well as people who just like to sing.

Sally Suter, a soprano, sang professionally for three years at New York City, and one year with the Arlington Opera Company. A past director of shows for the Army Special Services in Europe, Mrs. Suter has served as music director for the Fairfax Players, starred for three seasons with the Virginia Beach Civic Chorus and is currently director of Sing Out Virginia Beach.

Another solo soprano, Mary Barraco, began her musical studies at age eight in Renata and Ghent, Belgium, and later was graduated from Belgium's National Conservatory of Music. In Europe she performed at the Brussels Opera House, the Follies Bergere at Anvers and before King Albert of Belgium. Coming to the United States after World War II, Mrs. Barraco had a weekly radio program in Massachusetts, where she also sang with the Massachusetts Symphony Chorus.

Still another soprano soloist with the Concert Singers is Julia Manherz, wife of a Navy Captain and a graduate of the New England Conservatory of Music at Boston. Mrs. Manherz has sung professionally all over the United States and in Europe, with radio, television and theater appearances to her credit.

Cecelia Greenberg, alto, whose husband Meyer sings tenor with the Singers, studied at the Manhattan School of Music, is a former member of the Norfolk Civic Chorus and has taught piano at New York and Norfolk for the past 25 years.

Theresa Worrall, alto, soloist, has sung with the Norfolk and Virginia Beach Little Theaters, at the Summer Sands Playhouse and has had starring roles in the Virginia Beach Civic Chorus productions of "sounds of Music," "South Pacific" and "Oklahoma," among other roles.

Pat Speight, an alto, has sung semi-professionally with the Fireside Singers at High Point, N. C.; Harold Baker, tenor and baritone, who says he "just likes to sing," has sung with the city's Civic Chorus and with several church choirs in the Virginia Beach area.

According to Ferrigno, the Orchestra and Singers have a May 29 concert scheduled for Pembroke Mall, and tentative dates set for a summer concert at Redwing Park and a fall performance at Virginia Wesleyan.

Big Day Planned At Knotts Island

An estimated 3,000 persons are expected to gather on Knotts Island, in the Southern-most extremity of Virginia Beach, this Saturday. The day will be marked by a variety of events in celebration of the Fifth Annual May Day Parade and Festival.

The main event of the day will be the selection of the "May Queen 1968." Selection of the winner is based on the amount of money each contestant has raised through "a penny a vote" campaign. In addition, to receiving her crown the May Queen will receive a bouquet of roses, a $50-U.S. Savings Bond and a number of other gifts.

This year's contestants are Sandra Lilley, Knapp (N.C.) High School freshman, Amy Hetrick, a student of Kellam High School, Diane Morrisette, who also attends Kellam High, Ellen Dudley, a junior at Kellam High, and Michael Ann Slate, who attends Bettie F. Williams School. Miss Elaine Whitehurst of Creeds, who was last year's May Queen, will crown the new queen and present her court with a variety of gifts.

The day's activities will get underway with a parade featuring a number of floats, military bands and drill teams, bands from various high schools, drum majorettes, fire trucks from various volunteer units of the city, with Milton Holland, chief fire marshal of Virginia Beach, acting as parade Grand Marshal.

Prior to the crowning of the May Queen, a special program will take place at the Knotts Island Fire Station. At this time appearances are scheduled by Virginia Beach Mayor Frank A. Dusch, Ivan D. Mapp, Commissioner of Revenue; Capt. Stuart T. Sadler, commanding officer of the Fleet Anti-Air Warfare Training Center at Dam Neck; Miss Donna Watkins, "Miss Knotts Island"; Miss Linda Dixon, the Cape Henry Woman's Club "Lotus Queen"; Miss Elaine Whitehurst; May Queen '67 and Bungle of WVCC-TV, with a featured appearance by the Knotts Island May Pole Dancers, Rev. W. Fred Bonney, minister of the Knotts Island Methodist Church, will act as moderator as the parade passes in review at the fire station, and Virginia Beach Fire Dept. Chief E.B. Bayne will serve as master of ceremonies for the May Day program.

The day long activities start with the parade which begins at 10 a.m., and continues throughout the afternoon with a number of games, and events designed to please youngsters of all ages. Members of the Knotts Island Ladies Auxiliary will be on hand throughout the day, at the Fire Station, serving a variety of refreshments, with a ham and turkey dinner begin served to those in attendance beginning at noon.

Job Fair Wheels Turning

Promotion of the Tidewater Job Opportunity Fair has gone into high gear.

Edwin C. Wallace, Jr., chairman of the Public Relations and Promotion Committee and vice president, personnel, Virginia National Bank, has announced that his committee is receiving excellent cooperation from all local advertising media in publicizing the 2-day event to take place May 14-15 at the Norfolk Arena.

The Fair is being sponsored by the Norfolk Chamber of Commerce in cooperation with the Virginia Beach, Portsmouth and Chesapeake Chambers and the Southeastern Tidewater Opportunity Project.

Wallace reports that among other means of promotion will be 75 billboard spaces donated throughout Tidewater, public service spot announcements being made by all area radio and TV stations, 100,000 handbills distributed door to door, at STOP centers around Tidewater and as grocery bag stuffers, bumper stickers be displayed on STOP workers' cars and other vehicles and a street banner erected on Virginia Beach Boulevard.

In addition 10,000 balloons and 10,000 lapel pins with the Job Fair insignia will be handed out, window posters will be distributed to all shopping centers, 100,000 fact sheets will be available to be filled out with information about job seekers and presented at employer's booths at the Fair, motion picture trailers are being processed for use in local theaters and Tidewater ministers will announce information from their pulpits. Serving with Wallace on his committee is Mrs. Frances Hudgins, Supervisor of Guidance and Counseling Service, Virginia Beach School Board.

SUN Adds Reporter

The Virginia Beach Sun has a new addition to its editorial staff: correspondent Rod Amis from Kellam High School.

Rod, a 16-year-old junior and the son of Mr. and Mrs. N. S. Amis of Indian River Road, joins the Sun's corps of high school reporters with this week's issue, and will continue his coverage of Kellam during the 1968-69 school year.

Vice president of the high school's student Cooperative Association and interested in creative writing, Rod calls himself "still rough around the journalistic edges," but promises his readers "a year of personality spotlights, sports round-ups, calling 'em as I see 'em."

Along with SCA president Rick Williams, Rod co-authored "Fragile: Handle With..." a one-act play which won district honors and went on this spring to presentation at the state one-act play competition at Charlottesville.

We at the SUN are pleased to add Rod to our list of weekly by-liners.

The Waters of Rudee

Before we go to press again Rudee Inlet will be open for charter boats. A great deal of hard work by so many people has gone into the project. The road has not been an easy one, and many of those people have had to endure the slings and arrows of outraged critics.

The battle to complete the work there, including a permanent marina, and further development is far from over. The battle to get more funds from the state and federal governments is by no means over. These will go on, no doubt, to successful conclusions.

The waters of Rudee Inlet have long been muddled by controversy and criticism, most of it entirely unwarranted. This, however, is usually the case. It is easier to criticize when one doesn't understand the situation and can make political "hay" out of problems.

Instead of heaving a heavy sigh of relief with the opening of the inlet and marina we should look with favor to all of those who had the foresight years ago to plan for this, no matter how difficult the problems have been.

We should look to this new facility as a bright spot on the Virginia Beach horizon and as a first step in the whole development of the south end of the beach.

The Virginia Capes marina should be a hope of the future, not a skeleton in the closet of the past. Now that we have it, let us forget the problems and look to the future.

Commuters Take Heart

We offer a vote of confidence to Mr. E. H. Orange and other state officials who have moved so quickly to head off an increasing problem on the Virginia Beach-Norfolk Expressway.

They have announced that construction will begin on the widening of the off-ramp from Norfolk at Independence Boulevard with the addition of another toll machine. This will speed up traffic there and eliminate a time-consuming and dangerous situation.

In defense of the problem, we doubt if anyone could have foreseen the need at that point when the road was planned, but once these folks saw the problem they moved quickly to correct it.

It takes time to design even the widening of a road and to get a new machine, and the officials have moved in the right direction with dispatch.

A Penny a Day

May is fund-raising month for all but one of the volunteer fire departments in Virginia Beach. Only the one in Virginia Beach Borough does not participate. Theirs comes later.

The city is fortunate to have these volunteer departments, comprised of competent and dedicated men, who give of themselves and their time for all of us. They receive no compensation from the city for their efforts in firefighting or rescue. They are constantly attempting to better themselves also through study and practice, all at their own expense.

They buy their own equipment, expensive and complex. The city aids them in construction of buildings and in paying some of the utility bills and the like, but the money received would not begin to pay the bills.

The men of the volunteer fire departments throughout the city rely on the residents of the area they serve, and they need help. When they arrive at your door shortly seeking a little help, please give whatever you can. You never know when you may need their services in a hurry. Of course, they'll come even if you do not give, but please remember if we had paid fire departments our newly increased taxes would be even higher.

They are asking a penny a day per family per year. That's $3.65...a cheap price to pay for safety and peace of mind.

Politics and Police

A sort of rift has developed between the Commonwealth's Attorney and the police department. The matter itself does not amount to much, and could probably have been worked out quietly between departments.

But now the matter of police time in pre-trial investigations for Andre Evans is public and the breach grows wider very time another uncalled remark is hurled.

Evans has accused the police of not understanding their role in his work, of preferring to play "cops and robbers" and has suggested that the police department is involved in politics, although he did not say how.

The police are not saying anything.

We have a good police department, hard-working and competent, as well as overworked and underpaid. We also have a Commonwealth Attorney's office that is competent.

This kind of political shenanigans is just not necessary and can do everyone much harm.

ted during the afternoon rush hour.

They said that they would study the matter and see what could be done. How long does it take to study something like this? I am one of those commuters who gets caught there every afternoon. It is the closest edit to my home or I would use another exit.

Not only do I resent being held up there to pay my toll, but I consider it dangerous when I am parked on the road itself in stacked up traffic waiting to get off. Somebody is going to get hurt badly there. Maybe then the study will be speeded up.

SPOTS

By H. Joseph Lowenthal, Jr.

"Would you help me, please?" he pleaded. "Help you with what?" she asked. "Sleep? You haven't moved from that spot and I've been up for hours." "Help me get up," he said as quietly as he could. "For some reason I can't move at all."

"Oh, for heaven's sake. Don't be so dramatic. I know you worked on the roof all day yesterday," she said as she helped him up gingerly. "You don't have to remind me." "I'm serious. I ache everywhere," he said. "You have no idea what it was like up there." "I have the feeling I'm about to hear."

"Now, that's not fair. Part of my pain is your fault," he said. "My fault?" she said loudly. "Explain that."

"Well, when you went to the store and left the garage door open, I was on the top of the second story," he began. "The blasted dead cat got out and got into one heckuva fight with a much bigger dog. The dog yelped like he had been hit by a Grayhound bus as he raced home with the cat behind him."

"So?"

"So I got down to the garage room okay, but then I couldn't get the ladder adjusted for five minutes so I could get to the ground level, and the fight was raging the whole time the ladder was slipping apart. Then when I got down I had to chase the fighters until I caught the cat right at the door of the dog owners. They gave me a dirty look."

"I'm sorry. I thought I looked the cat up," she said sweetly. "That wasn't so bad," he began. "But just a little while later I had to repeat the entire process when you yelled for me because the steak on the grill had caught on fire. Couldn't you have done what I did...pour a little water on the fire instead of screaming like you were dying a horrible death? I think I got all the way down in ten seconds. I've considered jumping off the garage, but I thought better of it."

"I couldn't think what to do," she said. "Isn't it nice to know that you're needed around the house?"

"Yeah," he said sourly. "Especially when I'm on top of it." "You know, as much as I love our trees, you can't imagine the leaves and pine needles and other junk I cleaned out of those gutters."

"But it's worth it," she said. "To have a pretty yard." "Maybe to you," he said. "You don't have to clean the gutters. Do you know I was chased all over that roof by four wasps when I disturbed them while they were building a nest in the front gutter? I finally drowned them with the hose."

"Doesn't that screening you put in help?" she asked. "Yes, it helps collect the pine needles and leaves inside." "There's one thing you don't know about that happened yesterday. I didn't have the heart to tell you last night when you finished," she said.

"What?" he asked cautiously. "One of our neighbors called and wanted to know if you had flipped. She said she saw you sitting on the roof watering the lawn."

"Of course I felt alright. It just seemed like the thing to do after I finished hosing out the gutters. I could hit most of the yard from there, and it needed watering. But come to think about it, you should have seen the look on the face of that neighbor in the convertible who drove by and saw me."

"Well, now all you have to do is rake up the mess you made yesterday," she said brightly. He keeled over on the bed and groaned. "Wake me next week."

Virginia Beach Juvenile Court

Case Summation April 26 to May 2, 1968

The court had hearings on 43 juvenile petitions which concerned persons 17 years of age or under accused of violating state laws, or city ordinances. None of these cases involved felonies.

Other cases which the court settled involved seven on alleged traffic law violations and nine on family domestic problems. There were five cases of parental non-support during the above calendar dates.

Controlling the Landslide

The logjam of legislation on one subject consumed a great deal of time in the 1968 session of the legislature. The following report from the Governor's office discusses the traffic safety legislation enacted.

Public opinion and the General Assembly have put on Virginia's law books stiff new legislation designed to curb the rising death and accident toll on the State's highways.

Alarmed by the record toll of deaths marked up last year and the experience of seven years of continually mounting tolls, Virginians have made known their impatience with statutes that have not been effective in removing offenders from the public roads.

Last year's new high of 1,223 deaths topped the previous record of 1,110 deaths reported in 1941. It compared with 1,106 fatalities in 1966. Killed last year were 27 pedestrians, 46 motorcycleists and 12 bicyclists.

In addition to the deaths resulting from the 110,059 crashes last year, there were 43,122 injuries. Economic loss was estimated at $230,000,000.

This year fatalities are running just a little behind last year. Authorities are hopeful that better designed highways, better enforced laws, and a more concerned public, along with the new legislation, may help to counter the effects of such influences as faster vehicles and the increase in the number of motorists using the highways.

One of the key measures recommended by the Traffic Safety Study Commission is aimed at keeping off the highways the worst menaces, those individuals who repeatedly are involved in accidents. Persons who commit within a 10-year period 12 or more offenses of speeding, reckless driving or others for which the operator's permit may be suspended will now have their licenses permanently revoked. The driver who has had his license revoked under this statute and who then operates a vehicle invites a mandatory penalty of at least one to five years in the penitentiary. No portion of the sentence may be suspended.

The penalty for driving without a license is increased on the second conviction to provide for a mandatory jail sentence of not less than 10 days and up to 6 months.

Severe penalties will be imposed on anyone attempting to take an examination for another, and in addition, the violator loses his license for 10 years.

Classified as reckless driving are driving abreast in the same lane and driving a motor vehicle on any highway under construction or not yet open to the public recklessly or at an excessive speed. Any person who aids, abets or helps plan a race on the highway will be guilty of a misdemeanor.

Tires must have at least 1/16 of an inch tread or no inspection sticker may be issued. Studded tires will be given a two-year trial on Virginia's highways.

Motorcycles are required to be equipped with foot rests and if the vehicle is not equipped with a proper windshield, the operator must wear safety glasses or goggles. After Jan. 1, 1969, motorcycle operators must take special driving tests.

After Jan. 1, 1970, only those 16 and 17-year olds who have passed a driver training course will be granted permits. Others must be 18. Commercial driver training schools must be licensed by the State after Jan. 1, 1969.

Visual examinations will be administered when operators' licenses are issued or renewed after Jan. 1, 1970. A visual acuity of at least 20/40 in one or both eyes without corrective lenses and a field of at least 100 degrees of horizontal vision in one or both eyes will be required. A daylight only license may be issued to a person with a visual acuity of at least 20/70 in one or both eyes with or without corrective lenses, provided the person has at least a field of 70 degrees horizontal vision. Where need for a physical examination is indicated, the Division of Motor Vehicles is empowered to require one.

Plastic coated licenses with color photographs will be issued after July 1, 1969. Fee for the four-year permit will be $9 beginning Jan. 1, 1970. For motorcycleists the fee will be $12 with a renewal charge of $11. The fee will defray the cost of the plastic permits and contribute $1.33 in the Driver Education Fund.

A Drivers License Compact was enacted to provide for exchange of traffic conviction reports with 20 other states.

Pedestrians have the right of way in any clearly marked crosswalk at mid-block, as well as at the end of any block, under provisions in the new legislation.

Other legislation calls for private school buses to be painted yellow and for their operators to comply with the same standards required of public school bus operators, and set up safety standards for ambulances and rescue vehicles.

A Highway Safety Division will be set up in the Governor's Office and an 11-member commission will assist in administering the state safety program.

Each locality is required to establish a Highway Safety Commission and to adopt a safety program subject to approval of the Governor.

Mrs. White (Aufenger Studios)

Miss Evans Weds Mr. White

The marriage of Miss Carole Ann Evans and Pressley Byrnes White Jr., took place at 8 p.m. Saturday, May 4 at Larchmont Methodist Church in Norfolk. The Rev. John Setzer of Brevard College, Brevard, N.C., performed the ceremony.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Evans Jr. of Norfolk.

The bridegroom is the son of Judge and Mrs. Pressley Byrnes White of Virginia Beach.

Mrs. John Setzer of Brevard was matron of honor, and Miss Sally Claude was maid of honor.

Exchange Student To Speak to BPW

Lawrence E. Marshall Jr., Princess Anne High School senior, will be the guest speaker at the May meeting of the Princess Anne Business and Professional Women's Club, according to Mrs. Rose Bissett, president. He will speak on his life and experiences as an exchange student to Brazil.

Featured on the same program will be a musical skit under the direction of Bruce Montgomery. The meeting will be held at 7 p.m. May 13 at the Cavalier Hotel.

The program is under the direction of Irma E. Bell, world affairs chairman for the local club.

Group Meets

Operation Stand-Up will meet at 7:30 p.m. Friday, May 10 at Wycliffe Presbyterian Church on Great Neck Road.

This will be the first open meeting of a recently organized, integrated group which is meeting together for dialogue.

Award Won, New Project Proposed

Tuesday night was an evening for good food and a little back patting at the Arnold Circle home of the Philip Traversers, when Mrs. Traveer hosted a pot luck supper for approximately 70 members of the Princess Anne-Virginia Beach Junior Woman's Club.

The back-patting had to do with the Marjorie Branch Award, presented at last week's state convention of Women's Clubs at Roanoke to Mrs. Jackie Sessoms, president of the Virginia Beach Club.

The Marjorie Branch Award was given for recognition of the club's outstanding work toward better mental health at Virginia Beach. The club's two projects in that area—handled through the group's 15-member Department of Youth and Children—involved the initiation of a Sunday School for retarded children and the accumulation of information and tentative plans for a half-way house for the city.

The Sunday School is held at Callee Episcopal Church and is taught by members of the Woman's Club Youth and Children Department. Mrs. Barbara Almond, one of the teachers at the Sunday School, said that the children have made marked progress—from just sitting quietly when the classes first met in September, to participating now in songs and games.

Mrs. Linda Jenkins, chairman of the department and writer of the prize-winning report that was submitted to the state convention, explained that the number of children attending the classes is still very small, due more to parents' reticence about entering their mentally handicapped children in the class than to the number of children who could profit from it.

Prize-winners at last week's Ft. Story Officers' Wives Salad buffet were (left to right) Mrs. Jerome Hostetler, most versatile salad; Mrs. James C. Hardwick, Jr., most original; Mrs. Norman A. Turnbull, most attractive salad; and Mrs. Louis Goetzka, who won an award for her oatmeal cake.

The half-way house, still very much in the planning stages, would be designed to fill a gap now existing between the state's correctional homes and foster homes for homeless children.

Mrs. Jenkins said that the club's work to date had involved gathering information about the need of a half-way house at Virginia Beach and in offering themselves as panelists to PTA and other organizations to discuss that need.

A half-way house, she continued, could meet the needs of minors who are forced from their own homes by overly-harsh parents, or children who have left a detention home but not yet been placed in a foster home.

"We would be rehabilitation-oriented," Mrs. Jenkins went on. "That sort of operation would, of course, involve professional staff members."

The half-way house would, naturally, involve a sizeable budget, more than the Woman's Club could provide from their annual Follies proceeds. "The job we are trying and will try to do," said Mrs. Jenkins, "is to coordinate the entire community's donations and activities toward building a half-way house for the city."

Military Wives Club Notes

By Mary Wright

Last Thursday was the day for greenery at Ft. Story's Officers' Club—not spring greenery, but the salad stuff.

A long, centrally-placed table held the salads brought by the 70 or so officers' wives attending a salad buffet sponsored by the wives club, on display for tasting and for judging—by a panel of seven club wives.

Mrs. Norman A. Turnbull was awarded the prize for her "Lively Lime" salad, in the Most Attractive category. Mrs. James C. Hardwick, Most Original, for her "Candle Salad"

Mrs. Jerome Hostetler, Most Versatile, for her "Hot Chicken Chip Salad"; Mrs. Louis Goetzka, received the Best Cake award for her oatmeal confection.

Judges at the buffet were Mrs. Robert J. Warner, Mrs. Harry L. Watts, Mrs. Herbert Garrell, Mrs. Marvin Keenan, Mrs. Charles Jackson, Mrs. Edward Turner and Mrs. Robert Norris.

During the buffet, Col. Thomas D. Emery made a special appearance at the meeting in order to present Mrs. Kenneth L. Blunt, wives club president, with the Ft. Story special Certificate of Achievement.

Woman's Club Sets Program

A talk on homes being renovated in Virginia Beach by the Historical Society plus films of the Norfolk Botanical Gardens will make up the program for the meeting of the Princess Anne Woman's Club of Virginia Beach on May 14 at Pine Tree Inn.

Mrs. L. Crawford Syer will speak on the homes and Jesse Fanshaw will present the film. Mrs. Thomas J. Follary, conservation and garden chairman, is in charge of the program.

The Choralettes from Maury High School, under the direction of Mrs. Hortense M. Pease, will furnish music for the program. Mrs. George Aldridge is music chairman.

Mrs. Blunt, whose husband is a Ft. Story Chaplain, has been active in the post-chapel's Vacation Bible School as a teacher; she is organizer for the Sunday services and pianist for the Sunday School.

A source at the post's public information office pointed out that the presentation of an achievement certificate to a woman is most unusual.

Here's a flavorful and inexpensive way to enjoy the delicate flavor of lamb. PERSIAN PILAFF, a savory steamed rice steeped in the flavors of lamb, onion and fresh tomatoes, will bring the plates back for second helpings.

3 tbs. oil
2 lbs. lamb shoulder (cut in 1" cubes)
1 cup chopped onion
1 cup peeled fresh tomatoes, chopped
1 1/2 cups uncooked quick-cooking rice
2 1/2 cups hot water
1 chicken bouillon cube
2 tbs. butter
Salt, pepper, garlic salt to taste

Preheat oven to 350° F. Braise meat cubes in hot oil. Drain excess fat. Add onion and lightly brown with meat. Add tomatoes; cover and simmer for 15 minutes. Put meat mixture in oiled 2-qt. casserole. Put uncooked rice in center on top of meat. Put butter in center of rice. Dissolve bouillon cube in hot water. Pour around edge of casserole. Bake for 1 hour. Serves 4 to 6.

You can make this thrifty dish for less than $3, and the cost of electricity is about 5¢. Quite a bargain, electricity.

Mothers Are the Greatest -- Just Ask the Kids

(Ed. note: We decided the best way to commemorate mothers on Mother's Day was to get the opinions of the children who know them best.

Third graders seemed the ideal age--still young enough to be honest, but old enough to express themselves. The following letters came from the pencils of third graders in the class of Mrs. Eugenia Johnston at Thalia Elementary School, and they are, we believe typical of children everywhere. The wording and spelling is unchanged.

The art work above is by Susan Hodges who added something extra to her composition.)

My mother is a good mother. She help me. I help her, sometime. My dad is as good as my mother sometime. Jimmy S.

My mother to me is very good. She is--mean some times too. I love my mother very very Good. She takes me places and so does my father. G.

My mother is nice to me.

She gets me a lot of thing. And she lets me go to work with her at night. And she might take me to see a movie Sat. No name

My mother is very nice, and gives me all most everything. I love my mother very much, and like her too. Sometimes she plays with me and my brother. My mother is pretty too. Kathryn L.

My mother is nice to me. She lets me go with her to the store. I always being some money. I always get candy, candy, candy. I always eat it all. Sometimes I get a stomach ache and I won't eat my dinner. But she doesn't mind. She is so nice. Douglas S.

My Mother is a good Mother. She helps me. Her makes my breakfast in the morning. Her helps me get dressed. Yes, her is a good Mother. My Dad is just as good as my Mother. Jimmy

My Mother sews and cooks for us, and works very hard too. I think I have the best mother in the world. My mother gives us 10 cents allowance, and takes us to the store and buys us candy. I love my mother very much. Robin F.

My mother is so sweet and nice so I kiss her on the cheek. When she said I don't have shoes on my feet I laud and say I don't need shoes and she smiles a merry smile and looks at me and tells a joke to make me laud again. I love her so but on Mothers Day she had a hunt to find her gift and card she thought it might be candy or money, or it might be honey from the honey store but much to her surprise it was roses full in bloom and a card that said Happy Mothers Day to you and best wishes to you Elizabeth J.

On mothers day I laud and play, and have a lot of fun. We keep on laughing through the day when our work is done. My mother is not at all mean. She doesn't look like a bee. She looks very funny, but not at all like a bunny. No name

My Mother is very nice. She lets me do my Homework after supper. But I don't like baths. I do not like her vegetables. Terri A.

The Best thing is my mother. She buys me lots of stuff like cars, trucks, and a whole bunch more. She even gives my 50 cents allowance. She spends so much time on the telephone, yak, yak, yak, yak. But I love her anyway. My mother is still the greatest. Brent T.

Parents Don't Listen, Says Speaker

Miss Helen Brooks, a teacher at a disciplinary school in Philadelphia, told local church women she is "appalled by the overall lack of interest of parents in their children in school."

Miss Brooks, a member of the Society of Friends and also a poet, has taught in the disciplinary school for 10 years. She spoke in Virginia Beach last Friday for May Fellowship Day at Galilee Episcopal Church, sponsored by Virginia Beach Church Women United. The theme for the day was "Human Values in a Technological Society: Anonymity and Community."

"We live in an age that depends on technology," said Miss Brooks. "Children must be taught what is real and true. To cherish the parents on whom he depends--this is the bedrock for mothers."

"Moral, spiritual and human values set a standard we must meet. No child can do this alone."

Miss Brooks said that mothers are not to be blamed for the rebellion of children today. They are to be cautioned if it instead.

"The basics have not changed-- love and understanding. Parents must be able to carry on a dialogue with their children," she said. "Children are not fighting their parents; they are abandoning them."

By requesting her guests at that first commemorative service to wear a white carnation, her mother's favorite flower, she also established it as the traditional Mother's Day bloom. It still is, but other seasonal flowers have taken root alongside the carnation as appropriate floral symbols.

Also, to Anna Jarvis's wear-it-yourself suggestion has been added the idea of arranging with a florist to send a bouquet, corsage or bunch of seasonal flowers to Mom every month as a mother's Day tribute. However, one remember--Mama tribute was daily! England's Lord Chancellor Richard Haldane wrote his mother a letter every day--for 50 years! And then there was the late Prime Minister Mackenzie King of Canada, who once posted salutation to his mother in a letter 21,000 words long!

Today's expressions of devotion are less long-winded but more far-reaching.

a startling degree, have turned their children over to the school for rearing. We must spend time, not money for children."

She emphasized that listening should be a keyword along with communication. "Parents don't know what children are thinking because they don't listen. They are self-centered, materialistic and hypocritical."

She concluded by using the example of Mary, the mother of Jesus, as an example of a mother who had time to be with her son during his times of trials and troubles.

After a luncheon at the church, Miss Brooks read some of her poetry to the women.

Art Show Announced

The Woman's Club of South Norfolk will sponsor the 4th Annual Lakeside Park Art Show on May 25-26 from noon to 5 p.m.

The park is located on Baybridge Boulevard and Byrd Avenue in South Norfolk.

Those wishing to enter may do so by registering with either Mrs. G. Wayne Irbly at 545-7233 or with Mrs. Herbert Curtis at 543-0584 no later than May 23.

Works will be divided into five classes: oils, watercolor, pastels, graphics and other media. Works will be judged and cash awards given. Richard Lafean of the Norfolk Museum Art School will be the judge.

High School and junior high school students will also compete for cash awards and will be judged separately.

That's Just Ducky

Sylvester double-crossed us. He (?) laid three eggs behind the bushes in our yard.

Now everyone knows ducks lay their eggs close to water--everybody knows but Sylvester, that is. As far as we know Sylvester has no mate, but that doesn't seem to discourage him (?) her (?).

I thought the brats were kidding when they ran in with the news that Sylvester had built a nest behind the bushes. But they weren't.

Not only is there a nest, Sylvester has established "squatter's rights" and won't allow anyone within ten feet of the bushes. Can you imagine trying to explain that to all the neighborhood kids, all of whom want to take a peek at that ill-natured bird?

All this has done wonders for my flower bed which was just beginning to sprout in front of the shrubs. Between Sylvester and the kids, there's not much left.

Eggs or no eggs, Sylvester sticks to its former schedule of twice a day treks to the front door to demand food. Woe to any human, or dog for that matter, who makes a move in the general direction of the shrubs.

My one worry now is what happens if the eggs hatch? The ducklings will have to have water, and it's just too far away for them to hike. I can just see us with the kids' wading pool full of ducklings this summer. Enough is enough.

And they will do wonders for my food budget. Can you make a wild estimate how much bread four ducks lined up at the front door could consume in a week?

Mom's the Word

The millions of mothers who receive flowers on their Day this year will be enjoying the symbol of a sentiment that runs through history.

An Egyptian pharaoh carved into his mother's tomb the words: "One thing alone is better and more beautiful than anything under the rays of the Sun God. It is a mother."

And Abe Lincoln said: "All that I am, or hope to be, I owe to my mother."

One town honored a mother who took care of 53 children in her time; it erected a plaque to her--400 years later. Napoleon echoed the feelings of many children when he said of his mother that she was "unique among women."

Today's custom of sending flowers to mothers is rooted deep in history. The Mediterranean and Mideastern pre-Christians showered down flowers in annual honor to the Mother of the Gods, who went by a variety of names. She was Letia or Astarte to the Babylonians.

Under the name of Cybele, she was borrowed from the Phrygians of Asia Minor by Emperor Claudius and incorporated into Rome's March salute to spring--a three-day fiesta that featured wreaths of violets.

Although Mother's Day had spread to England as "Mothering Day" by the Pilgrims' time, it missed the boat to Plymouth Rock. Scandalized by the holiday's pagan past, the stern Puritans let the custom wither when they planted themselves in the New World.

But nearly three centuries later, in 1908, Anna M. Jarvis of Philadelphia arranged a special church service in Grafton, W. Va., in tribute to her own recently deceased mother and other community mothers, both living and dead. By 1914, the idea had taken such a grip on the country that President Woodrow Wilson proclaimed it a national holiday to be celebrated on the second Sunday of May. Anna Jarvis had become the mother of Mother's Day in America.

A 17-year-old Cox senior, Miss Deborah Ann Wood, has been awarded the Louise Reider Scholarship for the fall semester of 1968-69 by the Chesapeake Beach Woman's Club.

Miss Wood, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Elton E. Wood, is co-chairman of Sing-Out Virginia Beach, sings and plays the 12-string guitar and plans to major in music at Old Dominion College. She hopes to teach music on the elementary school level.

The Club will hold its last luncheon meeting of the club year Tuesday, May 14, at the Ocean Hearth Restaurant. Mrs. Otis B. Gregg, Tidewater District president of the Virginia Federation of Women's Clubs, will speak on "Club Institute." Also on the program will be Miss Wood, who will sing and play the guitar.

Representing the Chesapeake Beach Woman's Club in Roanoke at the recent state convention of the Virginia Federation of Women's Clubs were Mrs. M. Q. Roper, president, and Mrs. A. G. Aycock as delegates, and Mrs. Harry W. Fulford and Mrs. Harvey Riley, Tidewater District Crafts chairman. Mrs. G. D. Roslie won a red ribbon for ceramics.

QUESTION BOX

Q. I want to convert one of our flowerbeds into a small vegetable garden. How do I prepare the soil?
MSD-Kempsville

A. A flowerbed which has been well fertilized should be in good shape to grow vegetables. Thorough and deep digging and the application of a complete fertilizer will put it into prime condition. As you probably know, a vegetable garden should be located in full sun. Don't convert a bed where you grew shade-loving flowers.

Q. We're anxious to plant some peonies, as my husband and I recall their beauty in our mother's gardens. In reading, I learn that authorities suggest planting in the fall. Yet, the stores have peony root divisions for sale in the spring. Will it be safe to plant now?
VDK-King's Grant

A. The time to plant peonies has been debated among gardeners for a long time. With good healthy root divisions you can have success with either spring or autumn planting. Most authorities recommend planting in September or October. Plant in an area of good sunlight and soil drainage.

Q. We want a low bed of begonias at the edge of our shady patio which overlooks a wooded backyard. Our patio has white furniture, with cushions and pillows of turquoise, deep rose and green. Can you recommend a begonia that would unify the setting?
Mrs. TCR-Little Neck

A. A new fibrous begonia, Begonia Melody, should be the perfect selection for you. Growing 6 to 8 inches high, the moundlike plant has deep-bronze-tinted foliage. Blooms are deep salmon pink, shading to a white center.

In addition to the bed of begonias, you will want to use a few pots of the same plant on patio tables.

Weedkillers Control Lawn Problems

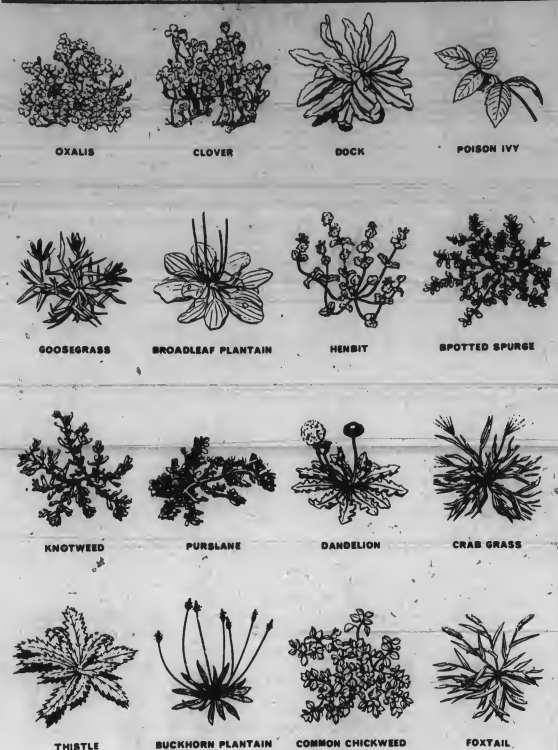

As summer approaches, it is easy to see that a neat, attractive lawn makes your home more attractive. Throughout Tidewater, there is added activity now to control lawn weeds such as dandelions, dock, broadleaf plantain and many of the other common lawn weeds illustrated.

Now is an excellent time for weeding your lawn as you feed it. Several fertilizer-herbicide combination products contain such weed killers as 2-4, D and dicamba (Banvel D) to control both broadleaf and vine weeds. Fertilizer usually enhances effectiveness of the weed killer. The fertilizer feeds the lawn while the weed killers knock out the weeds. The grass then grows to fill in where the weeds are killed.

If your weeds are localized in the lawn, the use of a turf weed killer spray may be just the answer. This emulsifiable concentrate should be diluted and applied with a hose end or tank type sprayer. For best results, apply the turf weed killer when weeds are actively growing during the spring or early summer.

Don't cut your lawn too close. Allow it to grow and fill in the bare spots. This also shades out the weeds. After you control weeds in your lawn, a combination of fertilization and proper mowing is fundamental for a good lawn.

A word of caution, budding shrubs and trees are easily injured by herbicides, so follow product instructions exactly. If 2-4, D drifts in the wind onto roses, or if dicamba (Banvel D) reaches roots within the drip line of ornamental trees and shrubs, damage can occur. Most lawn grasses are not bothered by these selective herbicides that nearly eliminate lawn weeds such as dandelion from the grass. It is always smart to thoroughly read every label, so please do so.

IDENTIFY YOUR WEEDS

NOW IS THE TIME TO...

Feed camellias and azaleas with an azalea-camellia-evergreen 5-8-7 food up to the middle of May. If wax scale has been observed, white waxy coating over red eggs-watch for the crawlers going up and down the stems. They can usually be controlled at this stage by spraying two or three times with Malathion at 10 day intervals. Using a systemic azalea-evergreen food will control them without spraying.

Spray roses weekly and feed them for dozens of prize-winning blooms. The regular feeding rate is one-half to one cup of 7-9-5 rose food every four weeks.

Control dandelions, chickweed, clover and other broadleaf or vine weeds. Use either a fertilizer-herbicide combination or a turf weed killer that contains 2-4, D and dicamba.

Speed the growth of trees. Almost all of the year's growth is made in May and June. Make an extra application of regular turf food under drip-line of tree or drill holes and put a special tree fertilizer near to the roots.

Cut the grass short enough to walk on but don't scalp it. Frequent mowings at a 2" height is better than taking a lot off at less frequent intervals. Never mow grass when it is wet. Water according to the weather and get up early enough to water in the morning so grass can dry before nightfall. A water timer will help you do this job automatically.

Try some tomatoes this year. Tie plants to stakes, feed with a 5-10-15 tomato food, water in dry spells and dust weekly to discourage insects.

District I Has Meet In Franklin

Women representing two cities and seven counties gathered in Franklin for the annual session of District I Virginia Federation of Home Demonstration Clubs.

Approximately 525 members and guests were in attendance from Accomac, Northampton, Surry, Sussex, Isle of Wight, Northampton and Southampton counties, the cities of Chesapeake and Virginia Beach. Mrs. Thomas P. White of Southampton, president of District I, presided. A total of $453.69 was contributed to "Pennies For Friendship and International Understanding" which helps finance the "International Farm Youth Exchange Student Program."

Mrs. R. B. Wiles of Virginia Beach introduced Calvin Schlemann of Chesapeake who gave a talk and showed slides of his recent six months stay in Argentina as a Farm Youth Exchange Student.

Mrs. C. Wade Ferguson, state vice president of the Federation, brought the President's message.

About $211.80 was contributed to the "Halle Hughes Fund" which is used as a scholarship to help rural girl student graduates of accredited high schools of Virginia in studying to become Home Economics teachers.

H. S. James, director of public relations for Union Camp Corporation, gave a talk using as his topic "Conserve, Reserve, Deserve" after which the entire group was given a guided tour of the Union Camp Plant.

Airport Faces Hurdles

Virginia Beach may yet get an airport of its own, but there is still a bumpy landing ahead before that day comes.

In what was considered by many to be a surprise move it was announced recently that a group of Virginia Beach businessmen had put together three tracts of land on North Landing Road near City Hall for a general aviation airport. It was announced at the same time that it could be ready to serve as an airstrip or at least part of one by next year.

The three parcels of land involved are the so-called Upton Farm owned by a corporation headed by Dr. Bernard Ballerman; a parcel owned by C. H. Byler of Byler Realty; and a smaller tract owned by Bailey Parker of Commonwealth Realty.

Byler is a member of the Chamber of Commerce special committee looking in to the feasibility of an airport in Virginia Beach. He is working with James P. Sadler, also a member of that committee and a member of a special Mayor's committee looking into the same thing. Sadler is also a member of the Virginia Beach Industrial Authority.

"The Mayor's committee has not been too active in recent months," said Byler, "and we want to see this thing move now."

Byler and John Sirene have formed a firm known as Virginia Beach Aviation Sales Ltd. to represent the interest of an airport on the proposed site.

Byler and Sadler disclosed the plan to the Virginia Beach Industrial Authority which noted its approval of a plan of this type to further aid in the development of industry in Virginia Beach.

Less than a month ago, Col. Willard G. Plentl, director of the state Division of Aeronautics addressed a meeting of the Virginia Beach Development Council and suggested a plan of general aviation airports in Virginia Beach similar to Byler's plan. Plentl did not mention that plan specifically.

But Byler told the VIRGINIA BEACH SUN that Plentl had been informed of the present plan and that he approved it, prior to his address in Virginia Beach.

Byler said that plans now call for the general aviation airport to be heard before City Council in executive session next Monday, and if Council approves, application to the FAA will be made. Obviously this is where the trouble will begin.

"But we are still entitled to a hearing," said Byler. "And we're going to get one."

The site is bound to cause comment from the Navy, whose airfields at Fentress and Oceana lie near the proposed site. While Oceana air corridor extension does not reach directly overhead, it is close by and the air corridor of Fentress would be affected.

A Navy spokesman said that he can foresee a fight "because our runways just can't be moved. They aren't on turntables, you know," he added. Byler, however, said he believes something can be worked out. "I understand we'll have some problem with the Navy. He said, "but they just can't block everything in the area."

He added that he does not want to go all the way to Creeds for an airport which will be out of the Navy's way. He said access is all-important, pointing out the accessibility to the proposed site of Independence Boulevard extended and even the inland waterway.

Byler said he and his associates are ready to move on the matter, and that he can envision a Virginia Beach airport in the future with a taxi service to nearby areas, flight school and sales offices for plane dealers. Byler and Sirene are both pilots. Byler flew in both World War II and Korea.

There are many hurdles to fly over, including City Council, the FAA, the City Planning Commission, Navy objections, to name but a few, but Byler still says he believes the problems can be overcome to the satisfaction of everyone and that Virginia Beach can have its own general aviation airport partly in operation within a year.

Other groups are still pushing for a large municipal, regional or even international airport in Virginia Beach, leaving Norfolk Municipal for general aviation and as a supplement.

These parcels of land at the intersection of North Landing Road and Indian River Road in the Princess Anne Borough are the future sites of the Virginia Beach Industrial Park and Municipal Airport.

Demo Convention to Pick Delegates to State Meet

The Virginia Beach Democratic Convention will be held in the Circuit Court at Princess Anne at 7:30 p.m. on Thursday, May 23.

The delegates elected at the May 1 meeting of the city Democratic committee will select 31 delegates that evening who will represent Virginia Beach at the state Democratic convention in Salem in July. There delegates to the national convention will be chosen.

City chairman Owen Pickett said he was pleased with the election of the delegates to the city convention.

"I think we have all factions well represented," he said. Anyone wishing to become a candidate for one of the 31 state delegate seats is asked to contact Pickett no later than 5 p.m. on May 17.

Mediator Meets with Both Sides

In his role as mediator, Councilman Robert Cromwell met last night with Commonwealth's Attorney Andre Evans and representatives of the Virginia Beach Police Department to work out differences between them concerning pre-trial investigation time.

Cromwell was appointed as a committee of one after City Council heard the matter a week ago at the request of City Manager W. Russell Hatchett. It was reported that policemen had complained that Evans wished too much of their time just prior to trial for the discussion of pertinent facts. They allegedly felt that demands of other investigations precluded their giving pre-trial investigations the time Evans wanted. Evans told Council that he considered pre-trial investigation quite important to the success of a court case. Neither side has commented since that time.

Evans has three assistants and a full-time police investigator permanently assigned to his office. Evans remarks that some Councilmen have called "unfortunate," Cromwell, because of being a former judge and an attorney, was chosen to settle the matter.

Evans said that police would rather be out playing "cops and robbers" than working on the pre-trial investigations. He also indicated that he would not prosecute some cases where he did not have enough information and would tell the citizens of Virginia Beach why. It was at this point that Cromwell became the mediator.

Police Check Dog Tags

Dog days may not be until August, but dog owners could have their dogs...in court...if the dogs do not have shots and licenses.

A door-to-door inspection is currently underway in all sections of the city to crack down on negligent dog owners. A summons will be issued to the owner of a dog without rabies shots and a license, according to R. L. Reid, sup. of the Police Dept.'s Animal Control division.

All dogs, six months and older must be inoculated and licensed. City ordinances also provide for a summons if the dog is found running loose. In Virginia Beach a dog is not allowed to be on streets without close supervision of his owner or responsible person. In addition no dog is allowed on any beaches in the city between May 15 and Sept. 15. Violators of this ordinance will also receive summonses.

Center Report Adopted

Virginia Beach City Council Monday accepted a long-awaited report from its special convention-cultural center and stadium feasibility committee, headed by Lawrence Marshall.

Council then adopted the report which asks that the City Planning Commission be set up as the agency to study the entire needs for any new facilities of this kind to be built in Virginia Beach or in conjunction with other areas.

Marshall told Council in the report that he and others had made a trip to several southern cities to view such facilities but did not feel qualified to make any concrete recommendations concerning type or site in Virginia Beach.

The report asks that the commission study present and future needs for a center, and to determine size and capability. It also asked that a report include the effects on the economy of the city and the attraction of tourists. Evaluation of sites is also to be included.

Marshall did not set any time limit on the receipt of the report, but said after it is completed then it will be up to Council to determine if professional consultants need be brought in.

In other action Council finally approved a request by Beach Transport Inc., operators of the jitneys to branch out transportation of ten or more persons on charter runs in the city. The approval was for six months after much discussion.

Complaints were also heard that the jitneys do not always stop only at their assigned stops. Council assured the complainants that the operators had been warned and that unless they complied in every way their permit to operate could be revoked.

Council lowered the fee from $700 to $200 for special charitable carnival promotions in shopping centers; passed on second reading an ordinance giving authority to call a curfew during civil disobedience, but to the Chief of Police, as amended from first reading instead of Director of Public Safety on advice from the Virginia Attorney General; passes on second reading uniform water and sewer charges within the city over the objections of the Tidewater Association of Home Builders who wanted more time to study the matter; gave the City Manager permission to agree to take part in the next phase of construction of Independence Boulevard to Route 60, and accepted a deed of conveyance of a part of Camp Pendleton to the City.

Council also agreed to rent

he said he hoped to get all Councilmen together in closed session after the regular executive session of Council Monday morning for the purpose of naming the Manager.

Other Councilmen said yesterday that this might be premature, and spoke of the indefinite delay.

The first advertisement in a municipal publication for a City Manager called for a college graduate in public administration at salary between $18,000 and $23,000. The second ad, with the May 15 deadline left the salary "open" and deleted the requirement of a college degree. This reportedly brought in a number of new applicants, mostly those who were managers in other places or those who were older and experienced in related fields but did not necessarily have a degree in public administration or any degree for that matter. The "open" salary was thought to be another inducement.

Thus the indefinite delay has come due to one or possibly

Interviews End; No Manager Yet

There is an indefinite delay in the naming of a new City Manager for Virginia Beach. It was originally thought that a replacement for retiring Manager W. Russell Hatchett would be named by the end of this week. Now the earliest hope is Monday and that is only a faint glimmer.

The delay has been caused by the late, but strong entry of another man in the City Manager sweepstakes. Two candidates, thought to be the last, were interviewed Tuesday, and according to several Councilmen, they were both most impressive.

But then the VIRGINIA BEACH SUN learned that at least one Councilman wishes to go to a nearby city in North Carolina to interview another man. It was not known how many would go with him, if any, according to reliable sources.

The deadline for entering the race was yesterday. To that time 52 applications were received, and six of those were interviewed by the full Council. The only two who were ever identified publicly were Assistant City Manager Roger Scott and Coordinator of Urban Affairs, Richard Webber, both of Virginia Beach. The others were from both Virginia and North Carolina.

The chairman of the Council's special committee set up to screen applicants, John McCombs, said as late as Monday that it was possible that a new manager could be named by the end of the week, possibly as early as the afternoon of the 16th.

He said he hoped to get all Councilmen together in closed session after the regular executive session of Council Monday morning for the purpose of naming the Manager.

Other Councilmen said yesterday that this might be premature, and spoke of the indefinite delay.

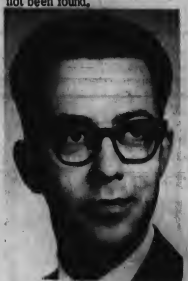

An application of Empire Investment Corp., before the city nearly 18 months, was again deferred for construction of a gas station at the off-ramp of Independence Boulevard and the Virginia Beach-Norfolk Expressway.

Residents of Thalia Village appeared to oppose a gas station at Thalia Rd. and Virginia Beach Blvd., across from an existing station. Council deferred action on the matter until the City Planning Commission can make an overall study of remaining residential property on Virginia Beach Blvd. and offer its recommendations. That is expected to take 90 days.

Several other applications were withdrawn and several others deferred. The applimore of these circumstances, leaving McCombs' target date of June 1 still in doubt for naming a new manager.

Hatchett made his retirement effective on July 1, but said he would stay on until Sept. 1 if a replacement had not been found.

Roger Scott

From the beginning of the search it has been evident that a number of Councilmen have been partial to Scott, 31, who was Assistant of the City Manager for two years and Assistant City Manager for a year.

One Councilman summed it up by saying, "I don't think there's a man on this Council that doesn't like Roger Scott and who doesn't respect him, but we've been keeping an open mind and trying to find the best possible man for the job."

McCombs said in the beginning of the search that regardless of a split at any time that the final vote for a new man would be a unanimous one. He still sticks to that, adding only that the unanimous vote is important for the right Council-Manager relationship.

McCombs said also that he did not believe any split meant a dispute or open warfare among Council members. He said he thought that aspect had been played up too much.

In spite of old and new delays and new interviews, there is still strong speculation that Scott will get the job when Council finally gets down to the voting table. The question that remains now is exactly when that will be. Even City Council doesn't seem to know.

Motel, Marina Approved

In the zoning part of its meeting City Council Monday gave final approval to an application of the Lighthouse Corporation to build a 200-room motel and marina facilities on Rudee Inlet. The marina, which will be started soon will have about 82 slips.

Wayne McCloskey, speaking for the corporation told Council in answer to a question that financing had been somewhat difficult to get for the motel because of recent adverse publicity concerning Rudee Inlet. In the same meeting Hatchett announced the formal opening of the City's marina inside Rudee Inlet Friday.

Gas stations had a rough time again at the hands of Council. An application of Empire Investment Corp., before the city nearly 18 months, was again deferred for construction of a gas station at the off-ramp of Independence Boulevard and the Virginia Beach-Norfolk Expressway.

Residents of Thalia Village appeared to oppose a gas station at Thalia Rd. and Virginia Beach Blvd., across from an existing station. Council deferred action on the matter until the City Planning Commission can make an overall study of remaining residential property on Virginia Beach Blvd. and offer its recommendations. That is expected to take 90 days.

Several other applications were withdrawn and several others deferred. The application of Herbert L. Kramer for a zoning change to make smaller lots on five parcels of land in the Thoroughgood area caused considerable controversy, although the Civic League in the area approved.

Downing Will Speak At Dinner

The Honorable Thomas H. Downing, of the First Congressional District, will be the guest speaker at tonight's annual dinner-meeting of the Virginia Beach Development Council at Bow Creek Country Club.

The business session will include progress reports from the Council committee chairman and voting on a slate of new officers and board members.

The nominating committee's slate of officers is: A.R. Cockrell, president; Virgil Hudson, first vice president; Lewis Johnson, second vice president; Jack Tidnor, treasurer. The secretary will be appointed by the president.

Nominated members for the board of directors, to serve three year terms expiring in 1971, are Clenton Shanks, Richard Kline and Russell Rucka.

The social hour begins at 6:30 p.m., and dinner will be served at 7:30 p.m.

Plans Move Ahead for Pembroke East

Architectural, engineering and design plans have been completed for the proposed 122,000 square foot Thalhimer's store, the first to open in the Tidewater area at Pembroke East Mall Shopping Center, Virginia Beach. The announcement was made by William B. Thalhimer, Jr., president of Thalhimer Brothers, Inc.

Scheduled to open in the fall of 1969, Thalhimer's at Pembroke East Mall has been designed by Dudley, Morrisette and Cederquist, A.A. of Norfolk. Thalhimer stated that the interior layouts, made by Copeland, Novak and Israel of New York, and departmental classification developments "have also been completed in the last minute detail."

On the other end of Pembroke East Mall will be Woolco's Discount Department Store. Other stores in the mall are expected to be announced in the near future.

Pembroke East Mall will cover 30 acres adjacent to Pembroke Mall Shopping Center. Both centers are owned by Pembroke Associates including Emilio Olivieri, of New York, and Horace A. Cistola and Frederick Napolitano of Virginia Beach.

Combined with existing Pembroke Mall, Pembroke East Mall is expected to achieve in its first combined year of operation $55 million in annual sales. The combined shopping complex will incorporate 1,056,000 square footage of retail area and accommodate 7,000 car parking.

The temporary Marina at Rudee Inlet is ready for the charter boats which will sail into the Inlet tomorrow at 1 p.m.

Charter Fleet to Enter Inlet

Weather permitting, the charter boat fleet will sail into Rudee Inlet tomorrow afternoon at 1 p.m. The boats which will tie up at the temporary marina there, will be home ported just inside the Inlet at the high-level bridge.

As the boats reach their new home, they will be greeted with ceremonies marking the official opening not only of the temporary marina, but also the Inlet itself.

Weather had played an important factor in the opening of the Inlet from the Atlantic Ocean until the last minute. High northeast winds and heavy seas prevented the final clearing of the sandbar until deadline day-yesterday, May 15. But it was cleared and open to a depth of ten feet in the 100-foot channel, on time as promised.

A boat, which draws more than four feet of water was taken into the Inlet last weekend and out again at low tide. There was plenty of water still under the boat then, according to L. Dean Curtis, project director for the Rudee Inlet Authority.

Because of winds and tides, the ten-foot depth is considered about minimum for safe operation of boats through the Inlet and system of jetties.

Representatives of city government, City Council, the Erosion Commission, Rudee Inlet Authority, the Chamber of Commerce and the Inletkeepers Association are expected to be on hand at the official opening ceremonies. The public also is invited, according to Curtis. "And I hope they will come," said Curtis, "to see this fine new area."

For some time Rudee Inlet has been landlocked not only in sand but also in controversy ranging from shortage of funds to court action. The opening tomorrow marks the culmination of more than ten years of work and planning.

Authorities have also warned of the dangers of anyone walking on the new jetties even in good weather and point out that this is posted government property. Trespassers will be punished, according to Curtis.

Already some emergency equipment on the end of the jetty has been stolen. The expensive photoelectric cells that operate the foghorn on the end of the jetty can be operated by radio signal from the bridge nearby in bad weather. The radio control is kept in the fire station nearby. The light flashes "R" for Rudee.

British Farmers Tour

Two Virginia Beach farms were visited this past week by a group of British farmers touring the United States in a study of American farming methods. The 65 farmers were conducted on tours of the croplands and dairy farms of Bayville Farms and shown a demonstration of the hog feeding operations at Malbon Farms. Members of the Houlder Brothers & Co. Ltd. of London, the Englishmen, expressed surprise over the size of American farms, as well as the quality of livestock and crops. The group left Virginia Beach enroute to Roanoke, then Columbus, Ohio with plans to travel through New York state before returning to London this Saturday.

Question Raised

State Sen. Edward T. (Ned) Cason, III, has requested Atty. Gen. Robert Y. Button to rule whether conflict of interest is involved in the purchase of emergency equipment for the police cars of Virginia Beach. The question centers around Richard S. Holland's firm, A. Wrenn & Sons, Inc., which has been supplying the city with police car red lights and sirens for a number of years, while he also holds the position of Police and Trial Board chairman. City Purchasing Agent Carroll Clough has indicated the purchases from Holland's firm were made without seeking competitive bids, however this practice was ended some eight months ago. Clough has also indicated his purchases have nothing to do with politics, but are based solely on price and quality. He also said the equipment purchased from the firm in question was less expensive than the city had been paying.

The matter was deferred for two weeks for a meeting between opponents.

An application to operate a restaurant at a new motel near 22nd and Atlantic was also deferred because of a squabble over on-site parking.

Apartment cases came in for their share of discussion also. Lynnhaven Bldg. Supply Corp. was granted permission to build 346 apartments near existing Regency Apts. and G.C.S. Co., Inc., was allowed to build 27 more in the Birdneck Village area. Lynnbrook Corp. also received permission to build 95 townhouses in the Arrowhead area.

BOU Enterprises' application to build 224 apartments on Old Great Neck Rd. was deferred for 30 days while agreement is attempted between civic clubs, traffic officials and the builders.

The Planning Commission recommended denial of an application of William Chironna for 106 apartments on First Colonial Road near the hospital, but the matter was finally deferred for 60 days to attempt to correct deficiencies. Two churches were approved without opposition, one in Sandbridge and the other in Southern Points.

has ordered a 17-year-old juvenile held for grand jury action for the second time on a murder charge. The juvenile has been charged in the fatal shooting last December of Jack P. Simon of Mediterranean Avenue. The second murder charge was filed moments after the first charge was not pressed on grounds of a court technicality. Simon was shot to death as he stood in front of a Christmas tree display at a London Bridge shopping center.

Body Discovered

The body of a missing Chesapeake man was found on the Virginia Beach ocean front Tuesday morning. Authorities said the body was identified as that of Rueben (Bob) Daniel Blake, Jr., 45, of Springwood Drive, Blake was one of four men who disappeared in the capsizing of the cabin cruiser "Duchess" last December off Cape Charles. Police said the partially decomposed body was discovered by Thomas Lee, of Dawson Road Virginia Beach, as he was taking an early morning jog along the ocean front.

Winter Appeals

As requested, Virginia Beach City Democratic Committee chairman, Owen Pickett, has passed a letter on to the First Congressional District Democratic Committee.

The letter sent to Pickett from Rolland D. Winter directed attention to the selection of delegates to the City Convention concerning his home precinct, Aragona. The delegates, 76 of them, were chosen on May 1. The City Convention later this month will select delegates to the State convention in July.

Winter's letter to the First District Democratic Committee appealed the election results in which he was a losing candidate for one of the delegate seats.

He said in the letter that the requirement of living in a particular precinct was set up by the committee but was not met by his two winning opponents. He said they formerly lived in Aragona and still maintain their voting precinct there, but he added, "I (the rule of the committee) specified actual residence is what should be expected."

He called for a correction to this oversight. He asked that Pickett be allowed to appoint two new delegates from the Aragona precinct and said he thought he should be one of them since he had previously been a candidate.

In his letter to Pickett, Winter said, "I fully expect you will put the good of the Democratic Party above any partisan view that you may hold regarding the local political environment."

Pickett said he had no comment, but had forwarded the letter immediately, as requested.

Today marks the first day of duty for two men who have just joined the Virginia Beach police department, James G. Butler has begun duty with the 1st precinct, while John P. Lowe has been assigned to the 2nd precinct. Lucian L. Thompson resumes duty with the department today after having tried another endeavor. Thompson will be working out of the 3rd precinct.

The Princess Anne F.O.P. Lodge #6 softball team goes up against men of the Norfolk police detective bureau in their next game at 8:30 p.m. at Crossroads Schools tonight, Lt. "Mickey" Bailey is captain of the team. Thus far the men have won one game and lost one. Home runs have been hit thus far this season by Sgt. Carl West and Officer George Ball.

We understand most of the talk around the 3rd precinct centers around the improvements Lt. Elwood Knowles is making in his new interest in the game of golf. One source tells us Knowles is "really tearing up the links."

the unit this week. Dept. Chief Robert E. Lee says Dana Ambrosen and Darz Brown have both entered the U.S. Army for two year terms of duty.

A class of new men who have just joined the Virginia Beach police department will begin two weeks of recruit training next Monday. Capt. Harry Terry, dept. training officer, says the instruction will consist of police responsibilities, law enforcement and basic fundamentals of modern-day laws.

Senior Chief P.O. George C. Queen, Virginia Beach Shore Patrol Detachment, broke into the new fishing season in a big way this past weekend. Queen says he and a friend caught 27 tautogs while fishing in the Baltimore Channel near the Chesapeake Bay Bridge Tunnel.

Another reminder, this is Funds Drive Month for the Volunteer Fire Departments of the city of Virginia Beach. Continue your support of these men who stand ready to protect you and yours with a donation when they call on you. This year the units are asking a small donation of $3.65 per family for the unit serving their neighborhood.

PA Bags Berth at Regional Ball Game

John Klefer is a hero at Princess Anne this week, after having slugged the one solitary run of Monday's Eastern District play-off at City Park against Granby.

The one-point win brings PA to an Eastern Regional berth, and tomorrow's game against Peninsula District champ James Blair, scheduled for 8 p.m. at Hampton's War Memorial Stadium.

Princess Anne and Granby went into the play-off with identical 11-3 records, following last week's victories over Norview and Maury, respectively. The play-off was the third PA-Granby match of the year, and the third one-point lead in game scores for the closely-matched teams. Granby took the first game of the season, with 7-6. PA took the next game a month later, with a 2-1 score, followed by Monday's victory.

Until Klefer's home run late in the 10th inning, Granby's right-hander Jim Fair and Princess Anne left-hander Ray Strickland had held the game stalemated.

Klefer had the only other Cavalier hit off Fair, a second-inning single. Granby's first hit of the day came in the sixth, when John Danneman singled with two out. The Comets' only other hit of the game was a single by Fair in the seventh inning.

Granby never got a man to third base, and only three runners advanced to second.

James Blair of Williamsburg has a 11-3 1-A record, and 13-3 overall. In the opening game of regional play Friday night at Hampton, Southeastern District titlist Wilson, 11-1, plays Peninsula runner-up Warwick at 4:30 p.m.

Friday's winners will meet in the regional play-off Saturday, 8 p.m., to decide Tidewater's entry in the state tournament.

Tickets for all the regional games will be priced at $1, with the exception of children's tickets priced $3.50 for Friday games. Tickets can be purchased at any of the participating schools or at the games.

Hospitality House Finds Temporary Home

The Virginia Beach Hospitality House has found a home at the 11th hour. The center for servicemen will be located this year on the oceanfront at 36th Street, in one of the buildings formerly part of Country Day School for Girls.

Algy Cohen, liaison between the Virginia Beach Department of Recreation and Parks and the Virginia Beach Ministerial Association, and long the major force behind the Hospitality House, made the announcement at a luncheon meeting Monday at the Black Angus Restaurant.

Along with a number of others, Cohen has been looking for a site for some time. Twice recently the group thought the site had been found, but both times the deal fell through.

The Hospitality House has been plagued for some time by location. It all started in the old Galilee Church when it was on the oceanfront and used as a servicemen's center on week-ends. When that was torn down, the basement of the old hospital was used, but that was reactivated. Last year a location on Atlantic Avenue was used, but that was too small and was torn down anyway this past winter.

Unfortunately even the new site is still only temporary. The new location will be torn down this winter, and the search goes on for a permanent home.

"Maybe someday," said Cohen, "the city, the Ministerial Association and all interested parties can find a permanent home for this worthwhile endeavor."

Last year more than 1,000 servicemen and their dates used the center per week for reading, relaxing, to change clothes and a place to enjoy free coffee, doughnuts and other food.

Cohen said he often received letters of thanks from the young men, and added that there has never been an "instance of trouble" in the center's operation.

The center will be open this year in rather spacious headquarters from Memorial Day and Labor Day, during the week and on weekends. It was rented for the entire summer for $1,000.

The Rev. Thomas Britton, president of the Ministerial Association said volunteers are still needed to help with the activities, which will include volleyball, cookouts, dances, television, a number of games and the service of food.

Military and civilian officials inspect the new Hospitality House for servicemen. The house is at 36th Street and the Oceanfront.

ing, relaxing, to change clothes and a place to enjoy free coffee, doughnuts and other food.

Cohen said he often received letters of thanks from the young men, and added that there has never been an "instance of trouble" in the center's operation.

The ministers and United Communities Fund have provided the money for operation this summer, as last year. The chairman of the committee which will operate the center is Rev. John Jordan, rector of Galilee Episcopal Church. He will be assisted by Larry White and a hostess, who will be on the premises full-time.

Quick Repairs Save Funds

Repairs to Bayside High School following the twister two weeks ago cost far less than original estimates, according to Ernest Stone, supervisor of construction for the Virginia Beach School.

Estimates of storm damage made the day after the twister struck ranged about $50,000 to repair a large section of roof that had blown off, as well as wall and ceiling damage inside. Some structural damage to steel beams was also done and water filled a large section of the language arts wing of the building. Five days later, not a single scar of the damage could be seen. Repair crews moved in and worked in off-hours to put the school back in business immediately. And Stone said the bill is $20,000, which insurance will pay.

"That doesn't take into consideration the equipment that was lost or damaged," said Stone. "But it does go to show that if they'll just get in there and go to work, it can be finished in a hurry and the cost will be less."

Residents Protest Rezoning

Close to 100 Acredale and Bellamy Manor residents appeared at Tuesday's Virginia Beach Planning Commission meeting to protest Bel-Alton, Inc.'s application for a change in zoning from Residence Suburban District 3 to Residence Suburban District 4 in parcel one of Bel-Alton's holdings in the Acredale-Bellamy Manor area.

Parcel one is presently zoned R-S3 (10,000 sq. feet minimum per lot.) Developer B.B. Willis of Bel-Alton is asking that the land be re-zoned to R-S4 (minimum 7,500 sq. ft. per lot.) However, at Tuesday's meeting, Willis assured the protesting residents that the parcel of land in question would be subdivided in minimum lots of 8,500 sq. ft.

Adjoining residential areas of Bellamy Manor, with R-S1 zoning (20,000 sq. ft. minimum) and Acredale, zoned R-S37 (both maintain minimum lots over the square footage required by their zoning regulations.)

Ernest Morris, president of the Acredale Civic League, and Walter Menden, president of the Bellamy Manor Civic League, represented the opposition at the meeting, presenting arguments that the proposed reduction in lot size in the Willis holding would lower the value of the established residential property in their respective neighborhoods.

The only other strong opposition concerned the application for the proposed construction of apartment units in the Princess Anne Plaza area by Bernard Kroil, Albert A. Kroil and Ruth H. Cohen.

In a letter received Monday by the Planning Commission, the applicants had voluntarily reduced the previous number of proposed apartments, to be constructed on North Holland Road east of South Lynnhaven Road, from 1,000 to 350. Herbert Kramer, attorney at law, represented the applicants at the meeting.

Glenn McClannon, president of the Princess Anne Plaza Civic League, explained that the opposition he spoke for was not concerned with the actual building of the apartments, but with the great influx of children that could be expected with 1,000 apartments available as rental property in relation to the limited school room space in the Princess Anne Plaza area. He added that additional school space must be provided in that vicinity before any extensive residential building should be considered.

300 acres of land on Camp Pendleton for 25 years for a total of $292. That land will be used for a municipal golf course.

Agreement was reached with Green Run Corp. to build a water and sewer line to cover its planned unit development, but that the city would not collect tap fees for residents hooking on in order that the company could defray part of its cost.

Funds were appropriated for the continued operation of the salt water pumping station at Back Bay, and $25,000 was appropriated for balancing the Civic Center budget. Sam Scott, director, said the center was too small to bring in the "name" attractions needed.

Holiday Inn Opens New Hotel

The Bridge-Tunnel Holiday Inn, the second of the chain motor hotels at Virginia Beach, opened for business last week on Northampton Boulevard.

The 120-room operation, including color televisions in every room, Captain Bob's Seafood House and the Pirate's Den Lounge, both decorated on a nautical theme, will be managed by Innkeeper James M. Renfrow, formerly with the Lake Wright Motel.

According to Renfrow, Captain Bob's is expected to be "one of the best seafood houses in Tidewater," with live lobsters one of the choice items on the menu. "It will be 99 percent seafood," said Renfrow, "with steak another specialty—a good Chateaubriand, that sort of thing." Chef Lonnie Johnson, previously with the Cavalier Yacht and Country Club, will be in charge of the kitchen.

Virginia Beach residents Gerald L. Lavenstein and Robert L. Mott are the owners of the new Inn, which will employ a staff of approximately 70. The Holiday Inn chain is currently planning to build a third Virginia Beach Inn at Oceanfront, tentatively scheduled for completion before 1970.

Holland Rd. Hearing Is Tonight

Improvements planned on Holland Road will be the subject of a public hearing at Kellam High School tonight at 8.

Plans at present call for resurfacing and widening of the road beginning shortly after the end of school. Money has been provided by a bond issue, but officials were waiting until school buses would be off the road for the summer to begin work.

Where possible the road will also be straightened, according to one city official. Public Works Director, Charles Kiley, said that work would begin near Kellam High School and go as far toward Independence Blvd. "as the money will go."

Kiley, Councilman Curtis Payne, and highway department officials are expected to be present at tonight's meeting to discuss the traffic situation with residents and those who use the road frequently. Holland Rd. is badly in need of repair work and is considered top priority by the city at this time.

Tests Offered in Lieu Of High School Degree

The Virginia Beach City School Board is making plans to administer the General Educational Development Test to interested persons in this area on Saturday, May 25, between 9 a.m. and 4 p.m. The State Department of Education supplies these tests for each local school board. Persons who pass the test successfully are given a certificate the equivalent of the high school diploma.

In order to take the examination the applicant must satisfy certain requirements.

The minimum requirements are:

- (1) The applicant must be 20 years of age. Under no conditions may the applicant be permitted to take the test prior to the time that he would have graduated had he remained in school.
- (2) The applicant shall have earned at least 8 units of high school credit, grades 9 thru 12 exclusive of physical education courses.

Persons who have attained their 21st birthday may not be required to present the above units.

(3) The applicant shall have resided in Virginia one year prior to applying for the battery of tests and must reside in the school division through which he makes application.

(4) The applicant must attain a passing score on the complete battery of tests provided by the State Department of Education.

Persons who desire to take this test should secure application form from F. E. Taylor, High School Supervisor, Virginia Beach Va. (Telephone 427-4581-4582) The deadline for submission of applications is May 8. The test will be administered at the Princess Anne High School, 4400 Virginia Beach Blvd., Virginia Beach, between 9 a.m. and 4 p.m.

Golf Tournament Scheduled

The First Annual MacArthur Memorial Invitational Amateur Golf Tournament, sponsored jointly by the Lake Wright Golf Course and Millers Department Stores, was announced recently by Claude King, golf professional at Lake Wright.

The tournament, scheduled to be an annual classic, will be held Memorial Day weekend, Wednesday, May 29 through Saturday, June 1, open to all male golfers and will be limited to a field of 150. Entry fees and applications must be received no later than May 23. Applications are available at all Miller department stores as well as from Lake Wright Golf Course. Entry fee is $30.

Contestants will play a total of 54 holes at medal or stroke play, weather permitting. Rain out on any scheduled golf round will be continued on Sunday, June 2 for the final round.

The tournament will be divided up into five different flights determined by the qualifying round. A total of $1,500 in merchandise prizes, plus trophies, will be awarded winners. There will be ten winning places in each flight, or a total of fifty cash awards. In case of tie in any flight, a sudden death play-off will determine the winner.

A special weekend package has been developed by the Lake Wright Motor Lodge for participants wishing to spend the total five days at the Lodge-golf course. This includes entry fee, all green fees, lodging, two dinners, four breakfasts, two cocktail parties, a seafood feast, and four night's lodging. There is also a special package for golfers desiring to bring their wives.

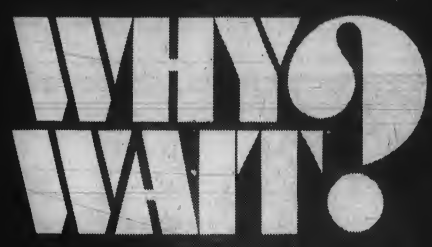

All trophies to be awarded will be on display at the Miller Department Store or at Lake Wright Motor or Golf Shop. A perpetual trophy will also be kept year 'round at Millers with the winner's name inscribed from year-to-year.

Church Schedules Revival

Dr. Oliver B. Greene, evangelist from Greenville, S. C., will conduct a revival service at Tabernacle Baptist Church at 717 Whitehurst Landing Rd. May 17-19.

Dr. Greene is best known for his Sunday broadcasts of "The Gospel Hour" from his own studio in Greenville. He will speak here at 7:30 p.m. each night and at 11 a.m. Sunday. He will also lead the dedication service for the new church building at 3 p.m. Sunday.

The congregation met in Kemperville Elementary School until the recent completion of the church building.

The Next City Manager

Hopefully City Council will select a new City Manager soon without any serious problems. We do not doubt that all the gentlemen that Council has seen fit to interview from the more than 50 applicants are capable and would be excellent choices.

But prior to any vote by Council members we would like to go on record as favoring and endorsing Assistant City Manager Roger Scott for this important job. He has kept in the background during his three years in the city, but has done more legwork and liaison work than will ever be known outside City Hall. While he has worked quietly, he has worked forcefully and with a large measure of success.

He is a personable young man with the drive and youth to guide Virginia Beach through the all-important years which lie just ahead. He is nobody's "man" and would never be. He is known to be fair and as non-partisan as one can be in dealing with elected officials.

His education and background in the field of public administration clearly show him suitable and capable of the job.

But Roger Scott probably has one additional factor in his favor that no one else could possibly have. He has lived here and has dealt with the pulse of the problems of the city for three years. Anyone coming in from outside is bound to take much time arriving at the point where Scott already is.

We believe in the wisdom of Council and know that the right man will be chosen for the good of Virginia Beach. Yes, we favor Scott and hope it is he who is given the administrative reins of the city for the years to come. But if it is not, we defer to the judgement of that Council to make the right decision.

'Solemn 'Ole Judge'

A week ago a distinguished citizen of Virginia Beach died and his death, like the last years of his life, went almost unnoticed, except to those who remember.

George Dewey Hay, the original "Solemn 'Ole Judge" of the Grand Ole Opry, lived in the Mayflower Apartments in Virginia Beach, and he died there. He originated the name of the famous country music show and was a radio pioneer. He was responsible more than most others for making country music known nationwide from Nashville.

But he shunned publicity in recent years while he lived here. He didn't really want the VIRGINIA BEACH SUN to do a story about him last year, but one day he came into the office and talked for hours, then allowed the story. He was a grand ole man, and his friends in Virginia Beach, in Nashville and everywhere will miss him.

A Soar Point Ahead

The idea of a general aviation airport in Virginia Beach, as recently proposed, is a fascinating one. We hope it will come to fruition, but we can't help being a little skeptical.

The land chosen is certain to evoke opposition from the Navy, with or without good logic. We do not feel qualified to make that judgement. We only know that Virginia Beach needs its own airport of some kind, preferably this general aviation type for the increased development of industry and tourism, and for that reason we would like to see it come to pass.

We are also aware of the military needs of the air corridors over and around all of Tidewater, but we hope some link can be made in the brass to work out a satisfactory plan that the Navy and the residents of Virginia Beach can live with.

The only way this can really be accomplished is the support of all involved and a lot of hard work by the dedicated people who want this airport. As in the study of an areawide stadium, too many splinter groups and too many committees studying the matter have come to nothing so far since they are not working together. In the case of the stadium other cities may be involved, which are not always known for cooperation, but in the case of the airport this is not so. Only Virginia Beach is involved.

We feel this is at least a positive step in the right direction and urge those involved on.

Help Fill the Chest

Multiple Sclerosis, or MS, is a chronic, crippling disease of the central nervous system. It strikes without warning mostly at young adults in the prime of life.

Research goes on tirelessly through the MS Society, but the facts so far about the disease are little known. MS clinics have been set up to aid those afflicted.

The 1968 MS Hope Chest campaign is being conducted now through Father's Day, June 16. The campaign needs the help of all of us. Through research, someday a cure and prevention will be found.

There is no known treatment now. When you are asked to help, please do so, generously. Help fight this mysterious and debilitating menace.

Going to the Dogs.

Editor, the Virginia Beach Sun:

Yesterday, someone from the Bureau of Animal Control came to my door and wanted to know if my dogs had licenses. Is this legal? My dogs are in a fenced yard or in the house—all the time, never outside my property.

I received a citation because the dogs did not have city licenses. They have had their rabies shots, though. That is the important thing as far as I am concerned.

What about all the cats running loose in the city? They don't need licenses, and they certainly are carriers of rabies too.

I can see why the dog catchers might check on dogs without shots or dogs that are running loose, but disturbing me in my home is too much. Besides, who's taking care of the dogs running loose while the dog catchers are going door to door checking on dogs that are penned?

I come from a city where rabies clinics are held at fire stations once a year with shots only costing a dollar. That would encourage more people to get shots, I think, than the threat of a fine.

Besides, most local veterinarians make you wait an hour or so before you can get in. The clinics would help them while doing a public service. The city might even have somebody at each clinic to sell dog licenses. Then the dog catchers could go out and round up the loose dogs like they're supposed to.

Marksmanship in Flower

The following editorial is reprinted with permission from THE AMERICAN RIFLEMAN, a monthly publication of the National Rifle Association.

During a memorable period of international strife, one small proud nation preserved itself by resounding victories due to superior marksmanship. The nation is no longer small, its early triumphs are aged, and the world has changed—but not so much that the lesson is totally lost.

The victories were won by England, then a struggling young country, over France and Scotland in the 13th, 14th and 15th centuries. They were won with the longbow, not firearms. The principle that survives is that of civilian marksmanship training.

The essential role of civilian marksmanship in national defense continues into this nuclear age. It is, in truth, a basic means of avoiding a nuclear war by making conventional military manpower effective in ordinary warfare.

What civilian marksmanship meant in the finest days of archery is well explained by Donald Featherstone, an English military author, World War II veteran and physiotherapist, in his new book, "The Bowman of England." As he tells it:

Though nearly all the peoples of the world used bows at some time, methodical training under English law brought archery to its maximum development. Training began at the tender age of 7. Mature products of this long, careful instruction could put an arrow through a plank—or chain mail—with accuracy at ranges above 200 yds., using 6-ft yew bows with pulls up to 100 pounds.

Regular "civilian marksmanship" sessions continued through manhood. King Edward I made archery practice compulsory by law after Mass on Sundays and holy days. To eliminate distractions, football, handball, and cock-fighting were outlawed. The English concentrated on improving their aim.

"The skill and deadliness of the English archer were not a matter of chance," Featherstone writes. "The law prescribed the bow-weights which were proper for youths of various ages, because the weapon was little use without special training.

"Bishop Latimer (Hugh Latimer, 1490-1555) wrote: 'My father was diligent in teaching me to shoot with the bow; he taught me to draw, to lay my body to the bow, not to draw with the strength of the arm (only) as other nations do, but with the strength of the body. I had my bows bought me according to my age and strength; as I increased in these my bows were made bigger and bigger.'

Longbowmen thus trained won over the French, who relied largely on hired Genoese crossbowmen, and the Scots, who drew "only with the arm to the chest." The list of victories, Falkirk, Shyry, Crecy, Agincourt, Flodden Field and many more, attests that marksmanship paid off centuries ago as it has many times since.

The last known use of the longbow in battle occurred almost symbolically at one of Britain's darkest hours. On May 27, 1940, Featherstone reports, Capt. Jack Churchill of the Manchester Regiment, an international archery competitor in peacetime who had taken his yew bow to war, killed a Nazi with a single arrow in covering the Dunkirk retreat.

King Edward I's law requiring marksmanship practice after Mass has long since fallen into disuse. Some influential people in both Britain and the U.S. profess to see no point to marksmanship or aimed fire in this nuclear age. National marksmanship competition at Britain's Bisley and America's Camp Perry has been given the governmental cold shoulder. There are persistent attempts to downgrade the need for accuracy with small arms. These, if successful, could damage the defense potential of the Free World. They might even make it necessary to resume practice with the longbow after prayers—and to do a lot of praying, too.

SPOTS

By H. Joseph Lowenthal, Jr.

"I'm starving to death," he said, over the roar of his stomach. "Well, it's not a diet," she answered. "You're the one who decided to go on a diet."

"I know, and it's rather sad," he said. "You remember, Uncle recently I could eat anything I wanted, as much as I wanted and anytime I wanted...and I couldn't gain a pound. Now I smell fried chicken cooking and gain six ounces."

"It's just the middle age spread," she chided.

"I'm not middle aged yet," he said sharply. "How can you say that? It would mean you are married to a middle aged man?"

One Potato, Two Potato

"I hadn't thought about it that way," she admitted seriously. "But I still don't think you're too fat, so why the diet?"

"No, I'm really not too fat, but everything I eat seems to show in my tummy and...elsewhere," he said sadly. "And the final blow came when I looked at my profile in those new bathing trunks."

"You did look kind of funny," she said quickly. "Besides, have you looked in the mirror lately?"

"That's different," she said. "I'm going to lose all this weight in less than two months all at one time. Can you say that?"

"Not unless there's a new modern medical miracle," he said. "I understand Harvard has a million bucks for the first man who has a baby."

"Okay, you win," she said. "How can I help you? I can't stand that noise of your stomach growing."

"Neither can I, as a matter of fact," he laughed. "It's downright embarrassing when I'm talking to the City Manager and my stomach does the talking. But you can help. Stop serving me all those fattening foods."

"Fattening foods? Remember, I can't gain too much more weight before July or the good doctor will scream. I don't serve fattening foods."

"So serve less. Potatoes, two vegetables, salad, meat, rolls and dessert is too much."

"But you're the one who taught me to fix meals like that," she said.

"That was when I could still eat," he moaned.

"All right," she said. "I'll help you. I'll fix non-fattening meals and make them small. But you've got to promise you won't complain about all the low calorie stuff I'll be giving you."

"Somehow or other, you just made this diet even harder."

"Maybe I'll just buy a giraffe for you," she said. "That way you could hide the fat like women do."

"You can't hide it," he said. "It's got to come out somewhere, and I bet I know where it would show on me."

"How much have you lost since you went on this self-imposed crash diet?" she asked.

"About a pound-and-a-half," he said sheepishly. "Well, that's not too bad for two weeks, you know. It takes the body a little while to adjust."

"Sure it does," she stifled a snicker. "The diet has certainly made you miserable and jumpy. It reminds me of the time you stopped smoking."

"That's when I started gaining weight," he said. "It's a vicious circle."

"I've got a brilliant idea," she said. "Why don't you wait until after the baby comes. Then I'll have to go on a diet too to take off a few extra pounds. We can go on one together then and make it a contest."

He thought for a few seconds.

"That's a grand idea," he exclaimed. "I just won't go to the beach 'til August. Hand me that can of salted peanuts."

Celery Is Ideal Vegetable

Celery is in all ways an ideal vegetable. Eat it raw or cooked, in appetizers, soups, salads, sauces. It is flavorful enough to serve as a seasoner of other foods; an economical hot vegetable to serve with all meats, poultry, seafood or meatless dishes. It is a healthful vegetable, but so low in calories that it can be eaten freely by the dieter.

It is more than likely that the crisp-green celery on your produce counter was grown in Florida. Forty percent of all celery consumed annually in this country comes from Florida. From November through June, the Sunshine State supplies half of all celery used.

Older homemakers may wonder whatever happened to the blanched celery of the 1920's. Once these so-called golden varieties were predominant, with the green Pascal type seldom seen. Then more and more green varieties were perfected, ones which did not need blanching to be sweet and tender. This cut down considerably on the costly labor needed to produce celery. Now golden celery is the rarity in the market.

Modern big business methods of growing, harvesting and shipping have made celery a major Florida vegetable crop, one which can be offered at tempting prices, especially in spring months.

As proof of the versatility of celery, do try these good, tested recipes.

Keep Cool

Florida sweet corn growers rush crates of newly picked ears to a nearby hydrocooler for prompt chilling, then ship ears under snow ice. This keeps ears sweet, tender. Always refrigerate corn as soon as purchased.

Yarn-dyed cottons usually are deeper and richer in color, and tend to be more colorfast than dyed piece goods.

Now Possible To Shrink Hemorrhoids

And Promptly Stop Itching, Relieve Pain In Most Cases.

Science has found a medication with the ability, in most cases, to relieve pain, itching and shrink hemorrhoids. In case after case doctors proved, while gently relieving pain, actual reduction took place. The secret is Preparation H. It also soothes irritated tissues and helps prevent further infection. Just ask for Preparation H Ointment or Suppositories.

CELERY AND CHICKEN ORIENTAL

- 3 chicken breasts, split, boned and skinned
- 4 T. olive or salad oil
- 3 c. thinly sliced celery
- 2 1/2 c. sliced mushrooms
- 1 1/4 teas. salt
- 1 3/4 c. hot chicken broth
- 2 T. sherry wine
- 3 T. cornstarch
- 1/2 teas. sugar
- 1 1/2 teas. soy sauce
- 1/4 teas. ground ginger
- 1/8 teas. ground black pepper
- Chinese noodles
- Hot cooked rice

Cut chicken into 1-inch pieces. Set aside. Heat 2 T. of the oil in large skillet. Add celery, mushrooms and 1/4 teas. of the salt. Saute 2 to 3 minutes, stirring. Add broth and cook 2 minutes longer. Remove mixture to bowl; set aside. To skillet add remaining 2 T. oil and 1 teas. salt; heat. Add chicken. Cook 3 to 5 minutes, turning. Add sherry and reserved celery-mushroom mixture. Mix cornstarch with 1/3 c. cold water and sugar. Stir into skillet. Bring to boil. Add soy sauce, ginger and pepper. Cook 2 minutes, stirring. Serve with Chinese noodles and rice. Yield: 6 portions.

CELERY, NUT AND BANANA SALAD

- 3 c. thinly sliced celery
- 2 medium-sized bananas, sliced
- 1/2 c. chopped pecans
- 3 T. mayonnaise
- 3 T. sour cream
- 1 1/2 teas. fresh lemon juice
- 3/4 teas. salt
- 1/8 teas. ground white pepper

Celery leaves

- 2 c. grated fresh carrots

PENSACOLA CELERY

- 1/4 c. butter or margarine
- 1 qt. Florida celery, sliced diagonally, 1/2 inch thick
- 1/2 teas. salt
- 1/16 teas. ground black pepper
- 1 c. sliced fresh mushrooms
- 2 teas. finely chopped green onion
- 3 T. dry white wine
- 1 teas. cornstarch

Melt butter in a medium-sized skillet or saucepan. Add celery, salt and black pepper. Cover and cook over low heat 10 to 12 minutes or until celery is crisp-tender. Add mushrooms and green onion; cover and cook 4 minutes longer. Add wine. Mix cornstarch with 2 teas. cold water. Add to celery and cook 2 minutes longer, stirring. Serve with meat. Yield: 6 portions.

Sooner or later, that day comes, the day when a woman feels she's changing. It's not a good feeling either. And she could use a good old-fashioned medicine then.

Could be you feel a little edgy, or maybe cross. You might even have what we call hot flashes and feel sad and slightly off-balance.

Whatever you feel, we have something for the day you need a little comforting. Lydia E. Pinkham Tablets. They're made with gentle, natural ingredients that work to give you a better sense of well-being.

With an old-fashioned problem like this, couldn't you take an old-fashioned medicine?

Military Wives Club Notes

By Mary Wright

When sherry and elephants are mentioned in the same breath, pink pachyderms stand a five-to-one chance of being referred to more often than their white brethren.

At Dam Neck
The Dam Neck Navy Wives Club of America #207 will host a luncheon-business meeting for the Tidewater Area Council of Navy Wives Clubs Wednesday, May 23, beginning at 10 a.m.

But tomorrow, it will be white elephants and sherry, together, when the Oceana All-Wives Club hostesses a sherry party, and white elephant sale, between 10:30 a.m. and 12:30 p.m., at the Oceana Officers' Club for the benefit of the Vicky Lynn Umphlett Fund.

An admission price of $.35 plus one white elephant, will be asked.

At Little Creek

Dr. Judith Gleske, M.D., will be the guest lecturer at the Little Creek Amphibious Force Officers' Wives lecture series program, Wednesday, May 22 in the Lynnhaven Room of the Little Creek Officers' Club.

Dr. Gleske is a graduate of Wellesley and the Johns Hopkins Medical School. She took her internship and residency at Massachusetts General Hospital.

Mother of two small sons, three and 22 months old, she is married to Dr. James C. Gleske, surgeon at the Little Creek Infirmary. She will speak to the wives on child care.

Chief Petty Officers' Wives at Little Creek have elected officers for the coming year. They are Mrs. Samuel H. McCarrall, president; Mrs. Raymond Caughlin, first vice president; Mrs. H. Goldberg, second vice president; Mrs. Kay Murphy, secretary; Mrs. C. Neeson, treasurer, and Mrs. W. Weidrick, chaplain.

The ladies will be installed at a luncheon meeting at the Little Creek CPO Club, Saturday.

Turn a reversible cotton Terry towel into a handy pocket apron. Fold one end of the towel one-third back and sew selvages together on either side to form the pocket. Make a casing at the other end of the towel for a drawstring. The belt, which can be a length of cotton cord.

During the meeting, Mrs. Kenneth Smith, past Junior National president, will address the wives concerning Memorial Day. Mrs. James Latham, Council president, will brief members on the recent Southeast Regional Convention, held May 4-8 at Charleston, S.C.

and Ft. Story

The third annual Ft. Story Luau, leled on by the post Officers' Wives Club, will be Friday, May 24 at the Ft. Story Officers' Club. The evening will begin with cocktails, served from 7 p.m., followed at eight by an accordingly exotic feast of curried shrimp, roast pig and an abundance of fresh fruit.

"The Klasmers" will be on hand to provide the night's music. According to Mrs. Freeman Daniel Lane, chairman of the party, the band will be located in a simulated oasis (complete with fountain and palm trees) in the center of the room, encircled by tables of ten for dining. The band will share prominence with the center buffet table.

Mrs. Thomas King is in charge of the luau decorations; Mrs. Robert Amick has arranged for the entertainment (Army wives-turned-bula-dancers and a comic dance routine by the masculine side) and Mrs. Thomas Adams and Mrs. John Bonnacors are taking charge of the food. The luau is an OWC-sponsored party of the spring season at Ft. Story.

Ball in Mall to Benefit Symphony

A Mall Ball is being planned by the Norfolk Symphony Orchestra's Women's Auxiliary--at Pembroke Mall that is, on May 23.

Tickets are now on sale for $25 per couple. Funds raised will begin an endowment fund to subsidize musicians' salaries. Mrs. William F. Heyer (588-7995) is in charge of tickets. Mrs. David Barry is chairman of the ball.

Music will be provided by Keith Henderson, whose brilliant and unusual career runs the musical scale from playing the piano for Crosby and Sinatra to conducting the New York Philharmonic Orchestra, and is now in the society orchestra business.

The black tie ball, scheduled from 9 p.m. to 1 a.m., is the first to be held in the Mall. After stores on the open Mall close Saturday evening, auxiliary members will quickly transform the Mall into a ballroom as a cleaning crew cleans and waxes the brick floor space.

Mrs. Henry Shook of Virginia Beach, secretary of the symphony board, holds a handful of tickets for the ball.

Concerning the Symphony Ball, Russell Stanger, music director of the Norfolk Symphony, said, "In order for the Symphony to make any significant progress and to insure its continuous growth, it is imperative that we have a plan for the Symphony's development and an endowment fund which will enable us to assure all musicians a reasonable salary as well as funds to draw accomplished artists to the Symphony.

"I am extremely pleased to learn the Women's Auxiliary has decided to take the initiative in beginning the endowment fund through this important and exciting event."

Mrs. E. Tinsley Amis, president of the Women's Auxiliary, commented, "While we have not attempted a project of this magnitude before, we anticipate success and look forward to making a substantial gift to the Symphony to establish the necessary endowment fund."

Mrs. Counselman Named Woman of Year

Mrs. Richard L. Counselman was named Woman of the Year for the Cape Henry Woman's Club at their Thursday, May 9, luncheon meeting at the Ocean Heath Restaurant.

Mrs. Counselman, currently the club's publicity chairman and incoming second vice president, has previously served in both those positions as well as corresponding secretary, and chairman of the Ways and Means and Hospitality committees.

New officers for the 1968-69 club year were installed at the meeting, following Mrs. Counselman's presentation as the outstanding club member of the year.

President for her second term will be Mrs. C. E. Upton; Mrs. Earl W. Learnard, first vice president; Mrs. Counselman, second vice president; Mrs. A. J. Chewning, third vice president; Mrs. Forrest Williams, recording secretary; Mrs. E. Gilbert Keen, corresponding secretary; and Mrs. V. Alfred Etheridge, treasurer. Mrs. Arthur B. James installed the new officers.

Mrs. Counselman smiles as she opens the gift presented her by the Cape Henry Woman's Club as their Woman of the Year.

Mrs. D.Y. Malbon, who installed the new officers, hands a gavel to Mrs. B.F. White, the new regent of the Princess Anne County Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution. Other officers, left to right, are Mrs. R. E. Standing, custodian; Mrs. Owen Moore Jr., registrar; Mrs. Fred Robinson, librarian; Mrs. S. J. Iantosca, corresponding secretary; Mrs. W.F. Donahue, recording secretary; Mrs. C. J. Smith, treasurer; Mrs. J. W. Squire, chaplain, and Miss Ruth Ford, vice-regent.

Installed as new officers at the Ocean Park Woman's Club luncheon Wednesday, May 8, were (left to right) Mrs. R.L. Oliver, recording secretary; Mrs. W.F. Salkowski, president; Mrs. Giles Englelove, guest speaker for the luncheon; Mrs. W.O. Sherman, second vice president; Mrs. C.B. Ostrander, first vice president; Mrs. Charles McCoy, treasurer.

Regatta Opens

The dates for the Broad Bay sailing regatta will be June 1 and 2, rather than May 25-26, as reported recently in a Norfolk newspaper.

The regatta, sponsored by the Broad Bay Sailing Assn., will be sailed on Broad Bay.

Home Ec Students Win Prizes in Show

Five blue ribbons were won by Virginia Beach students in the recent Culinary Art Show in Norfolk, sponsored by the Tidewater Food Service Executives Association.

The show, the seventh annual, won a national award for inviting school students to participate. This was the first year Virginia Beach Students had entered the show. Mrs. Mary E. Spencer of Princess Anne High School, co-ordinated the efforts of local students.

Students earning honorable mention were: Becky Stakes,

How about a Wig?

Everything was great until the five-year-old told her seven-year-old sister she looked like a boy.

Unfortunately this was shortly after the seven-year-old returned from getting a "pixie" haircut. The haircut was her own decision--in fact we even tried to discourage her. Her earlier ambition was to let it grow down to her waist. It had gotten just below her shoulders.

Her first signs of distress appeared at the beauty shop. Some kindly woman there said, as she gazed at me, "Oh, you aren't really going to cut off her hair, are you? What a shame." (She never had to listen to the screams when I combed it.)

Betty lost a little more confidence with each snip of the shears. About half way through she wanted to call the whole thing off. I kept reassuring her, until, by the time she got home, she was quite happy again--until her sister caught sight of her.

Tuesday she announced that she didn't want to buy ice cream at school--her greatest treat--she was saving her money for a hat to cover her shorn locks. It seems the boys on the school bus teased her.

But the crowning blow came when the five-year-old announced that she wanted her hair cut "just like Betty's." Her daddy can take her, I refuse.

French Salon Plans Final Meet of Year

The last meeting of the season of the French Salon of the Woman's Club will be held at the Club House, 524 Fairfax Ave., on Sunday, May 19th, at 3 p.m. There will be an illustrated lecture given in French on "The Symbolism of the sculpture and stained glass windows of the great Cathedral of Chartres". Mrs. Bertha Fanning Taylor, chairman and founder of the Salon, will give the lecture.

After the lecture discussion will take place on the organization of the Salon into a chapter of the Alliance Francaise and a social hour will follow. All interested in this development are earnestly asked to attend, as well as those interested in French culture. Students of French and teachers are cordially invited. The Salon is sponsored by the Woman's Club and by Pierre Schmitz, French Consul in Norfolk.

'Kate' Opens Friday

Four performances of Cole Porter's "Kiss Me Kate" have been scheduled for this weekend and next.

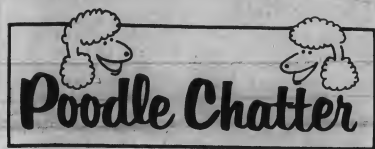

The show, presented by the Virginia Beach Civic Chorus and sponsored by the Virginia Beach Rotary Club, will open at 8:30 p.m. Friday, May 17, and will be presented again on the 18th, 24th and 25th at Princess Anne High School. Proceeds will go to provide $750 scholarships for four Virginia Beach high school seniors.

The scholarships will be awarded at the opening of the show Friday, according to William H. Brown, project chairman. Recipients will be Donna L. Ireland, daughter of Mrs. Norman Scott Ireland and the late Mr. Ireland, of Princess Anne High School; Anne E. Ivery, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Ivery Jr., of Union-Kempville High School; Victor F. Kalasinsky, son of Mrs. Frank Kalasinsky and the late Cmdr. Kalasinsky, of Bayside High, and Chris Taylor III, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. Aubrey Taylor, First Colonial.

Starring in the musical based on Shakespeare's "Taming of the Shrew" will be Marie Phillips, Scott Kunkel, Virginia Opallo, Maurice Roebuck, Ed Ed-Long, Bob Furniss, Sam Ernst, Walter Mattigan, Bill Utley, Oscar Northern and Theresa Worrall.

Tickets are $3 each and are available at the door at B&M Delicatessen, Price's Inc. at Pembroke Mall, The Clothing Chest on Laskin Road and Howell & McNamara, Opticians on Laskin Road.

Author's note: I have always had the sneaking suspicion that dogs, if they could communicate with us, would pass along some very interesting information. I have been successful in getting to understand most of the chatter given out by two of my good canine friends, a male poodle of French derivation with the bold name, "Pierre du Pompadour," and a female of the same species, of English descent, but with the exciting appellation of "Cherie de la Nuit." I have taped and translated many of their after-dinner chats and I would like to present some of their valuable, though somewhat exotic comments for your consideration.

"Greetings, Ma Cherie! How are you feeling this fine day?" "Gladly, Pierre. I have heard an ugly rumor our humans are not as devoted to our welfare as I had believed."

"Mon dieu, how is that? I can scarcely believe one of my humans would think less of me than one of his own children."

"Unfortunately it is true, Pierre. One of my girls told me just this afternoon she understood many of the dog grooming salons have had a rash of poodles turning up for their 'spring clip.'"

"What a minute...what do you mean by 'spring clip,' Cherie?" "Well, I'm told many poodles get trimmed only twice, maybe three times a year. The poor deahs! Pierre, honestly, I believe some humans just let their poodles 'winter over' during the cold months. Merciful heavens, can you imagine how I'd look, with my beautiful trim, if my human let me go much longer than six weeks without a new coiffure? Oh, I shudder to think of it! The dirt, the long nails, the itchy ears-how could any human be so thoughtless?"

"Ma Cherie, que voulez-vous? What can we do about this? I know what you mean. I've watched my little beggar friend down the street scratch at his ears until they're red and sore. How I wish I could pull out the long ear hairs for him and soothe his irritation with some peroxide. Shades of De Gaulle! I have noticed his humans make certain they have their customary baths, their manicures, and their hair cuttings. Why should we poodles suffer through their forgetfulness?"

"Pierre, what you say is truth, the gospel truth. But don't get too excited about it all, Egads! Remember, humans don't learn as quickly as we do. Ha...can you imagine one of them going through an obedience class in 12 weeks and being ready to take a blue ribbon at a human show? Why, I remember..."

"Cherie, I have it! I know what we can do to correct this thoughtlessness on the part of our humans. We'll pass the word to all our friends; we'll start a movement- I understand that's all the vogue now with humans."

"What movement, Pierre? Don't keep me in suspense, you scheming poodle. What are we going to do?"

"Ma Cherie, it's so simple. We'll start a whisper campaign so that every poodle in the neighborhood, no, in the whole area, will hunt out and find the dirtiest mud poodle he can locate, play in it, and then go home to his human. Voila! You can bet they'll make an appointment with their favorite professional groomer, right away. And there we'll be...a clean bath, a new trim, our nails cut, our ears cleaned! Why, we'll all feel like a million bones again."

"Pierre, you dog! I swear you're so smart. How would you like to take a little walk with me?"

"Where would we go, Cherie? I'm a little tired now."

"Come, my sweet, I remember a beautiful mud hole I passed yesterday! It's just down this way a bit..."

Kempville Sports Hit 'Big Time'

By Roxie Knight

Next year, Kempville will have its first varsity teams--football, baseball, etc. And it stands to reason that someone will have to cheer them on. So, on May 1, cheerleader try-outs were held.

Six of the ten girls chosen to cheer on Kempville players were on the 1967-68 junior varsity cheering squad. The varsity cheerleaders are Leslie Falls, Cindy Domme, Leslie Camp, Barbara Garrison, Barbara Kostner, Dianne Lily, Gail Owens, Becky Cummings, Jeanne Liles and Debbie Bennett. In baseball, Kempville recently scored its seventh straight victory, in a no-hitter game pitched by Jimmy Crofts against Norfolk Catholic Crusaders. Kempville's Ricky Scarper drove in two runs.

More than 150 schools took part in KHS's Shakespeare Festival, held in late April. First place in the competitive readings went to Ferguson; Kempville came in fourth. Other area schools participating in the Festival were Princess Anne, First Colonial and Kellam.

Kempville High winners in the Bard's contest were Becky Adkins for dramatic interpretation; Paul Johnson, humorous readings; Linda de Vries, a Shakespeare project; Becky Adkins and Robert Stewart, for duo-acting; Don Nugent and Leona Faranda, for make-up.

May 8, the Fidelis Tri-Hi-Y elected its new officers for the coming year. The new officers are Linda Wilson, president; Becky Adkins, vice president; Brenda Musselman, secretary; Grimsley, treasurer; Sue Crumley and Deanna Carroll, historians; Cindy Domme and Linda Lane, arguments-al-l-ers; Linda Newbern, corresponding secretary; Cindy Martin, chaplain.

Cinderella Problems Overcome

Enchanted pumpkins, glass slippers and the eternal Prince Charming will be onstage this weekend when the Bayside High School drama department presents the full-length musical comedy "Cinderella."

Directed by drama teacher Hugh R. Copeland, the classic legend will be performed by a student cast at two matinees; 2 p.m., Saturday and Sunday, May 18 and 19.

"The difficulty of turning a ragged Cinderella into a sparkling princess onstage presented something of a problem," sighed Copeland. "But we have that, and even the pumpkin-to-carriage scene magically in hand now."

The cast includes Barbara Tavalis, Cinderella; Mike Menasco, Prince; Darlene Brickel and Christine Baxter, ugly sisters; Denise Drachets, the wicked step-mother; Mike Stephenson, king; Lani Dungan, queen; Melany Stephenson, court jester; Dawn Webb, fairy god-mother and Susie Scott, Cinderella before her transformation by the fairy god-mother.

Tickets for both performances are $.25 for adults and children, and may be purchased at the high school box office. Proceeds from "Cinderella" will go towards financing the drama department's awards night and purchasing backstage equipment. The awards night is scheduled for 7 p.m., May 25 at the high school. According to Copeland, Tidewater actors and singers will be on hand to perform and to present awards to their junior counterparts. The awards are open to any grade level. The awards night is open, free of charge, to the public.

Job Seekers Make Fair a Success

Tidewater's First Job Opportunity Fair concluded yesterday at the Norfolk Arena, with over 8,000 job-seekers having participated in the fair as of this paper's prestime.

Sixty-six companies in the Tidewater area were signed by the Norfolk Chamber of Commerce Employment Opportunity Task Force to maintain booths at the Arena.

The job fair's basic purpose was to bring employers and potential employees together, with the main target group the hard-core unemployed. High School seniors expecting to be graduated this spring were another primary group the job fair was trying to reach.

According to John L. Roper II, Norfolk Chamber Task Force chairman, the fair hopefully accomplished a few extraneous ends, too: to familiarize locally unemployed men and women with the preparation necessary and to motivate young people to get the career training they need for better jobs; and to show what Tidewater businesses are doing to help these people qualify for jobs.

One of the keynotes of the fair was the effort to offer job opportunities in which the employee could earn a salary while still being trained.

When interviewed at the Norfolk Arena Tuesday night, Bob Whitley of the Virginia Beach Chamber of Commerce said that the first day's attendance at the fair had been "much better than I'd expected."

The booth for the city of Virginia Beach had accepted approx-mately 50 applications for City jobs Tuesday. "The applications vary from stock boy to technician to policeman," said Whitley. "We've had several applications for accounting jobs."

Since Whitley could only accept applications from city residents for city jobs, he was forced to refer a large number of people who were not Beach residents to booths sponsored by other cities.

The job fair represented the combined efforts of the Chambers of Commerce of the cities of Virginia Beach, Norfolk, Chesapeake and Portsmouth, with the assistance of the Virginia Employment Commission, labor and private business and the Southeastern Tidewater Opportunity Project.

Revamping At Seaside Two Teams Face Finals

A sound-engineered "Frolics" dance pavilion and newly designed game and refreshment midway great visitors to Seaside Amusement Park, when it opens Friday, May 17, for the 1968 season.

The "Frolics," has been completely remodeled and now has a new, lowered acoustical ceiling, improved sound amplification, and soundproof curtains, which also give the pavilion a cozy atmosphere. "The Rocking Jewels," local recording group, will provide music for continuous dancing nightly and on Saturdays and Sundays from 2 p.m.

The park's midway area will feature many new games of skill operated by concessionaires who were previously with the Canadian "Expo" World's Fair, as well as several remodeled refreshment stands.

DE Banquet Is May 22

The annual Princess Anne High School Distributive Education Employer-Employee banquet will be held Wednesday, May 22, at 6:30 p.m. at Bow Creek Country Club.

The event, sponsored by the DE club has invited DE students, Virginia Beach employers who participate in the DE program, Princess Anne High School teachers and administrators and representatives of the Virginia Beach School Board.

The featured speaker of the evening will be VIRGINIA BEACH SUN managing editor, H. Joseph Lowenthal, Jr. His topic will be "Growth and Potential of Virginia Beach."

Two Virginia Beach High Schools may possibly face each other in the finals of the Channel 10 Hi-Q competition, vying for $2,500 in prizes.

Sunday, May 19, First Colonial High School faces Newport News High School, May 20, Princess Anne comes up against Great Bridge High School.

The winners of the two contests will meet for the Grand Championship June 2, the final program of the current season. The winning team receives $2,000 in college grants for their school; the runner-up, $500.

The grants are being made possible through the Scholarship Grant Foundation of the Giant Open Air Markets and Time Giants.

Representing First Colonial this Sunday will be Tom Egar, captain; Ronald McAlhaney, Chris Well, Duncan Smith, and Howard Richardson, III. The coach is Mrs. Thelma Houck of the social studies department.

Ellis Leads Golfing

Cox took its second Eastern District golfing medal Thursday when Jim Ellis, Jr., led the field with a low 71 at Bow Creek Course to defeat Churchland. In addition to Ellis' 36-33 combination, the Cox scores included Vern Berlage's 79; Jim Dickerson's 82 and Curtis Kemp's 84, for a 316 total.

Garden Problems Explained, Solved

Annually insects and related pests cost you, the home gardener, millions of dollars in time, labor and money. Most of these pests that attack ornamental flowers, trees and shrubs can be controlled by using insecticides and good cultural practices.

We should know a few basic fundamentals about insects and pesticides. Plants are attacked by both insects and diseases. Insects are classified by the way they feed, or by the type of mouth parts they have. There are many variations of the type of mouth parts, but for discussion we can consider there only being two. First, is the insect that has chewing mouth parts; they are controlled by stomach poisons. Some examples are: leaf eating beetles, grasshoppers and caterpillars. Secondly there are the piercing, sucking types. These are controlled by contact poisons. Some examples are: aphids, scale insects, leafhoppers, mealy bugs and mites.

Knowing something about the life cycle of the insect is an important aid for control purposes.

Most insects pass through either a complete, or incomplete metamorphosis. A complete metamorphosis is (1) egg, (2) larva (often called grubs or caterpillars), (3) Pupa (cocoon), (4) adult (winged stage).

The life cycles of some insects leave out one or more of these stages and some even give birth to live young without fertilization. These are exceptions to the above. Insecticides and fungicides come in different forms, (a) dusts, (b) sprays, (b-1) wettable powders, (b-2) emulsifiable concentrates.

The advantage of dusting is that it is much easier and faster than spraying, and no mixing is required.

The advantage of spraying is that better coverage is realized over the plant parts, and it is generally less expensive than the dusting powders.

The equipment that is used in applying insecticides and fungicides is important to their effectiveness.

For applying sprays, the compressed air type of 3-gallon capacity will give good distribution. Most of these types have adjustable nozzles. The sprayer that attaches to the end of the hose is very convenient. The trombone-type sprayers are especially useful for shade and fruit trees.

Dusts are sometimes sold ready to use and are often packaged in their own squeeze applicators and are easy to use. The rotary crank dusters are very efficient, and there is a plunger-type hand duster that is inexpensive and eliminates bending over. A good insect and disease control program will aid in providing the employment you desire from your plants.

For trees and shrubs, use a broad control insecticide to control leaf feeders, aphids, mites, bagworms and leaf-miners. Use when insects appear on plants and repeat weekly, as needed.

For vegetables, a weekly preventative application should be made from the time the plants appear above the ground. A tomato-vegetable dust, or Sevin in dust or spray form can be used to combat the common insects that endanger vegetable crops. On flowers, again weekly preventative applications are desirable, especially on roses, dahlias, iris and gladiolus. Use a broad control or multi-purpose insect spray.

FRUITS. Most all fruits are susceptible to insect damage and require a definite timing of sprays for ample protection. Apples, peaches, cherries and pears should have received a dormant spray to control overwintering mite eggs.

The ingredients in a complete fruit tree spray will give an excellent all-purpose combination for many foliage pests, and also many diseases.

Refer to the handy spray charts provided on most labels, for proper timing.

The first rule of safety in using any pesticide is "read and follow the directions and precautions listed on the container label." Do this every time you use an insecticide.

Secondly, pesticides should be stored in closed, well-labeled containers out of the reach of children and pets. Leave them in their original containers and make sure the label stays on. Do not save nor reuse empty containers. Rinse them out with water and dispose of them immediately.

Third, apply pesticides safely. Keep them off food and cooking utensils. Remove pets and their food and water. Dilute or mix sprays outside or in a well ventilated area. Avoid breathing dusts or mists. Wash thoroughly after use. Do not use them inside the home, unless specifically stated on the label.

You can control pests around your home and garden if you have a spray program and use pesticides safely.

Every year about this time, I receive many calls about, and twigs showing, azaleas affected by the leaf and flower gall fungus.

In the average home planting, the disease is more alarming from the standpoint of the disfigurement and unsightly appearance it causes than from actual damage to the plant.

On azaleas, the disease causes the leaves or the flower parts to become thickened, curled, fleshy, and pale-green to white or pink in color.

The lower leaves are usually affected most, but under the very humid conditions of Tidewater, and in densely shaded locations, infections may even occur on the top branches. Not only azaleas, but camellias and rhododendrons are also affected by this fungus.

In the home garden where the number of plants is small, control of this is a simple matter of hand picking the galls and burning them as soon as you first notice them.

If the number of plants is too great for this method of control to be feasible, then you can use chemicals to control it. Two tablespoons of ferbam or zineb per gallon of water will do the job. A spreader sticker should be used with these chemicals.

They should be sprayed just before the buds open and immediately after blooming. During very rainy seasons, especially if this has been a problem in the past, additional sprays may be necessary.

GCV Plans Annual Meet

The 1968 annual meeting of the Garden Club of Virginia will be held May 21-23 at the Hotel Chamberlin in Hampton. The Huntington Garden Club of Newport News is hostess club.

Attending will be GCV officers, directors and committee chairmen, and the president and a delegate from each of the 43 member clubs.

One Vote Can Make Difference Marshall Tells Mid-City Club

City Councilman Lawrence E. Marshall of Bayside Borough told members of the Mid-City Democratic Women's Club last week at the Bow Creek Country Club that women should get into politics--"become more interested."

"More people should vote including service people," Marshall said. The women were urged to influence service people to become residents of Virginia. "It might be less expensive to support the state you're currently living by paying taxes and taking part in local and state elections."

Marshall cited a number of cases in history where one vote made the difference, including Pres. Andrew Johnson who missed impeachment by one vote. "If Richard Nixon had received just one vote from every precinct in the U.S. he would have been elected president."

Marshall also spoke out again in favor of a 12-month school system with students attending on a rotating basis. "One third fewer schools would accommodate one third more students."

Ladies Commemorate Sinking

In commemorative ceremonies dating back to 1962, members of the Ladies Auxiliary to the Virginia Beach Borough Volunteer Fire Dept. threw a wreath into the ocean in memory of persons who have lost their lives at sea.

A similar ceremonial event is held each year in Moss, Norway. These two cities have this ceremony to pay tribute to those who died in the sinking of the Norwegian ship "The Bark Diktor" off the shores of Virginia Beach on March 27, 1891.

The ceremony was held at the Norwegian Lady statue at 25th Street and Oceanfront. The original head was made of wood and was found by Mrs. B.P. Holland on the beach at 16th Street. The replica was made with the body added and placed in its present location facing the sea from which she came.

Mrs. Beverly Hicks, auxiliary president, throws the wreath as Mrs. Jenny Pinner, vice president, and Mrs. Cecilia Morse watch.

NOW IS THE TIME TO... QUESTION BOX

1. Check over your window boxes and planters. Make any repairs necessary. Treat the wood with some good wood preservative. Check the fasteners. Most important, is to check the drainage by making sure there are some drain holes in the bottom, or by placing a layer of gravel or broken clay pots in the bottom.

2. Spray around your foundation. By doing this, you provide a chemical barrier over which the insect must cross to get into the house. If this is done twice a year (spring and fall) a foundation spray will give effective control. Do not spray flowers, trees or shrubs --only the soil and foundation to the point of run-off.

Spray around porches, steps, and into crevices around concrete slabs.

Do not contaminate wells or cisterns with sprays.

Spray about a 3 inch band of soil along the foundation.

Chlordane is one of the emulsifiable concentrates that can be used. A hose and sprayer does an excellent job.

Women to Meet For Wallace

The Wallace for President Women's Committee will meet at 1:30 p.m., Thursday, May 16, at 200 Sandpiper Dr., in Portsmouth.

Q. I just have a few dandelions in my lawn. Should I go over the whole lawn, or just dig them out? RTK, Virginia Beach.

A. The aerosol weed bombs are very handy to eliminate just a few weeds. It's easy, and you can spot treat from time to time. Most have foaming action to show exactly where you have sprayed.

Q. How long does it normally take for weeds to die after I spray them? P.T.C. Kempville.

A. Under normal conditions, you should be able to see the characteristic gnarling and twisting of the weeds within a day or two. At the end of the week, if weather is warm, they should be turning yellow. They will dry up and disappear.

Q. What are some good annuals to plant in the shade? C.T.A., Virginia Beach.

A. Among some of the proven annuals for shade are: periwinkle, flowering tobacco, lobelia, wax begonia, impatiens and tarenia.

Q. My birch tree had brown leaves last year. What can cause this? Y.A.T., Windsor Woods.

A. It possibly could be the Birch Leaf Miner. Damage is usually on the new growth. The insect mines out the leaf tissues producing brownish blotches. Control can be realized by spraying the trees in mid-May, and again three weeks later with Sevin or Malathion.

Make soft after-bath slippers from cotton terry washcloths. One washcloth, folded and gathered around the edges, will make a slipper. Trim with matching cotton ball fringe.

P.A. Collects Blood

By Kacey Chuilli

Princess Anne High Students and faculty members donated 36 pints of blood to the Red Cross in a Bloodmobile sponsored by the PA Bible Club, May 10.

With the aid of its sponsor, Frank Collier, and two members, Elizabeth Taylor and Dorothy Yoder, the Bible Club converted the choral and band rooms at Princess Anne into a makeshift clinic. Students and faculty members were given the chance to donate blood between noon and 4 p.m. last Friday. Despite the fact that donors must be 18 and have written parental permission to give it under 21, the turnout was nearly twice what was expected.

Princess Anne High sponsors will hold a mock democratic National Convention tomorrow Friday, May 17 from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. in the PA auditorium.

The purpose of the mock convention is to exemplify to government students the method of choosing a candidate used by national conventions.

The permanent chairman of the convention is Senior Jeff Jewett, Senior Robert Woodridge is temporary chairman, and William Asher will be a guest speaker.

The convention is the culmination of two weeks of campaigning by seniors for their favorite candidate. The entire class has been divided proportionately into groups of delegates for all 50 states, each with a certain number of votes, as in the real convention. Besides separate party groups, four committees—Permanent Organization, Credentials, Rules and Order of Business and Platform and Resolutions—have been elected to run the mock convention.

Nation speeches will be made by delegates from the states supporting each candidate and voting will be held until one candidate is elected.

The Princess Anne Senior Prom will be Saturday, May 25 from 9 p.m. to midnight in the PA gymnasium.

The theme of the Prom, "A Roman Holiday," will include decorations such as a Roman garden, columns and colonades.

Music will be provided by Charlie McCendon and the Storm Causes Problems

By Mike Moore

Due to the high wind damage Bay-side High School received in the severe April 30 storm, the school has undergone a revamping of its 100 Hall. While the classrooms were being repaired, classes were detoured into the library, cafeteria, teachers' lounges and the auditorium.

Classes continued without mishap and with surprisingly little confusion. Monday, May 6, all classrooms but two were reopened. The two rooms not in use at present are the language labs, where there was extensive damage to the electrical wiring.

The only major problem that resulted from the storm damage was the inability of many students to reach their lockers—and the textbooks inside. While one hallway remained inaccessible, students shared locker space and textbooks.

Sunday, May 19, is the date for the second Annual Spring Concert, presented by the Bay-side Chorus. Led by Faye McKinnon, the Mixed Chorus, Concert Chorus and Madrigal Singers will perform for the public, in the high school auditorium. The curtain will go up at 7 p.m. Tickets may be purchased from any chorus member, at $7.50 for adults and $5.00 for students.

The concert selections will vary in style and form, a contrast planned to display the students' various talents.

Cox High Sets Dance

The Cox High School will sponsor a dance, called "Flower Power" May 18 from 8 p.m. through 11 p.m., in the school gymnasium.

Music will be provided by the psychedelic and soul bands, The Inner Sanctum and the U.S. Male. A WGH radio announcer will be there. Tickets are $7.50 single, and $12.50 doubles. Proceeds from the dance will go to the foreign exchange program.

Magnificents, McIntosh Studios will take pictures of the occasion.

The new Student Cooperative Association officers for the 1968-69 school year are: president, Linda Wilkins, class of '69; vice-president, Diane Fisher; secretary, Helen Spence; and treasurer, Joyce Touchton.

Several Princess Anne baseball players won places on the starting and second teams for the All Eastern District Baseball Team Saturday, May 11.

Third baseman Pete Carpenter and pitcher Ray Strickland were chosen for the starting team. Pete leads the Eastern District in batting.

Shortstop John Kiefer and right fielder Steve Barlow were placed on the second team. Honorable mention went to outfielder Bob German and catcher Bobby Lewis.

Mayor Proclaims

May 22, 1819 was the day that the SS Savannah set out on the first transoceanic cruise by a steamship. And on May 22, 1968—next Wednesday—the United States will recognize National Maritime Day.

In recent proclamation ceremonies at Virginia Beach, Mayor Frank Dusch recognized that "the American Merchant Marine is insuring that America's economy will flourish by carrying America's trade, and that the freedom of this country and her allies will be maintained." In his proclamation, Dusch pointed out that "last year alone, they delivered about 4 million tons of wheat to our friends in need in foreign lands. In the same year, they transported 12 million tons of our products to our trading partners—and returned with 10 million tons of foreign goods."

'Opal' Qualifies as Comedy

Good comedies with a lot of heart are hard to find these days, but "Everybody Loves Opal" by master playwright John Patrick definitely qualifies. The production of the play now at Cavalier Dinner Playhouse is a fairly good one, although we would quarrel with casting in at least one instance and with the slowness of much of the pacing.

The play revolves around an old spinster who lives at the edge of the dump. Opal collects junk and sells it to maintain herself and her meager needs. Her old family home, run-down and ill-furnished with junk, reflects the circumstances and profession of its owner. She befriends a young girl of seemingly few scruples who works with a defrocked chemistry professor and a professional con-man making and selling "brand name" perfume sold in Opal's collected bottles, unknown to her. When their business is limited due to police interference in their business site they all rent a room in Opal's house.

When they realize she has no relatives or friends they insure her and then plan to murder her by various means. It is a comedy of the misfortune to be a trifle young for the role, but her antics coupled with her raucous laughter and sweet innocence make a delightful characterization.

Barbara Lewis as Gloria does a fine job generally as the floozy. Her nasal twang and her Brooklyn accent are nicely executed, but her short-stepping hops across the room added to free movement of the hips make her look like a Chinese rickshaw with the driver's motor running. This is not needed to make her sexy or dumb and should be dropped to add warmth to the role.

Joel Simon has an age problem too. He is also too young to play the disillusioned professor with a couple of problems. He is not dry enough. He is not nasty enough. And when he spouts the romantic poetry, it comes out "words, words, words."

Hank Mauro turns in a pleasing performance as the Damon Runyon type con-man. The role seems to be a natural for him, and he has a good time.

Both Glenn Graham and Tom Story add nice bits to the show with characterizations of the not so typical policeman and doctor respectively.

The big problem seemed to be in lines, either unlearned or badly delivered. The pacing is jerky and uneven. When it moves well, the production is beautiful. When it doesn't, it's not too good.

Although director Harry Cauley has put together some very good individual performances, the cast does not appear to be working as a team at all times.

With all the problems, this is a good play, and the flaws cannot ruin that. And the flaws are not so serious as to ruin a pleasant evening anyway. It just needs work. HJL

Parade, Ball Honor Military

Saturday is Armed Forces Day, when the city traditionally shows its appreciation for its military citizenry. But the military will be just as genial hosts to their civilian neighbors, when all the military installations at Virginia Beach open their doors to visitors.

Col. Thomas D. Emery, commanding officer at Ft. Story, has announced the post's plans for the May 18 Armed Forces Day observance. The post open house will include demonstrations, amphibian rides and equipment displays throughout the post.

The main exhibit area will be located between Ft. Story's 17th and 19th Streets. Army buses will take all visitors to all exhibit sites. For children, there will be jeep rides and continuous showings of free cartoons in the post theater nearby.

Post festivities will begin at 9 a.m., and end at 4 p.m. At the city's Armed Forces Day Parade, scheduled to begin at 10 a.m., at 10th Street and Atlantic and concluding at 31st Street, Adm. Ephraim Paul Holmes will serve as Grand Marshal for the parade, while William Kellam will be in charge of the reviewing stand at 25th Street as master of ceremonies. The Virginia Beach Sun and WVAH Radio will be represented in the parade.

A six-man panel of Virginia Beach judges will award two prizes (military and civilian) to winners in each of the three categories of competition: floats, marching bands and drill teams.

Edward Brogan, chairman of the Chamber of Commerce Armed Forces Committee, is chairman of the Armed Forces Day committee.

The second annual Armed Forces Day Ball will be held from 9 p.m. to 1 a.m. About 300 civilians and 300 military are expected, according to Fred Napolitano, who is in charge of plans.

Medical Meeting Held Here

About 200 physicians and surgeons and their wives held a two-day meeting at the Cavalier Hotel in Virginia Beach last weekend. The doctors are members of the Virginia Society of Ophthalmology and Otolaryngology.

"Just call O and O," said Dr. F. M. Williams of Virginia Beach vice-president of the organization and the man who arranged for the meeting. "The doctors are eye and ear-nose-throat physicians and surgeons."

The annual meeting heard the presentation of several technical papers on the two fields, and six well-known doctors from all over America addressed the meeting also.

Dr. Peter Wallenborn of Roanoke, president of the organization, turned the gavel over to next year's president, Dr. Henry Baslian of Arlington Saturday at a breakfast meeting. One of the featured speakers during the meeting was Dr. Conrad Stone of Roanoke, the first civilian doctor to practice in Vietnam. He presented a lecture and slides on his two tours of duty in Southeast Asia.

Dr. Stone said the South Vietnamese army was always short of medical supplies but that generally the men were healthy and took good care of the wounded. He also described the poor health conditions in the backward villages.

Architect's rendering of the new-concept Bayside Junior High School to be built on Newton Road. William McClurg and Edward Wall are the architects.

Newton Road, William McClurg and Edward Wall are the architects.

New School May Set Pattern

Among the many items on the agenda for the May School Board meeting Tuesday was a slide presentation of plans for Bayside Junior High which Ernest Stone, supervisor of construction, earlier predicted might become the pattern for future junior high schools in Virginia Beach.

One of the main features is built-in departmentalization designed to cut down noise and confusion. The school plans, designed by McClurg & Wall, must now be submitted to the state for approval. It will be constructed on Newton Road, Area 1, (see picture) contains the auditorium in seat 790, graphic arts and music.

Area 2, will be the administrative center housing offices, guidance counselors, teachers lounge and work space, resource center (library), speech therapy, remedial reading and health center. This unit is equidistant from each classroom center.

Areas 3, and 4, are identical instruction-units, each consisting of five classrooms in each of four quadrants with restrooms equidistant from classes to serve each quadrant. There are four science laboratories in the middle.

Area 5, is the cafeteria and kitchen which will seat 590 students. There is a separate dining area for teachers.

Area 6, will be for industrial arts and homemaking. Area 7 is the gymnasium to seat 1,400 plus an auxiliary gym and two corrective gyms.

The plans provide for future expansion by 50 per cent with identical wings each half size of the center wings being added without infringing upon or impeding the existing building function.

The School Board also approved a number of new principals. Carlton Boyer, who has been assistant principal of First Colonial High School since James C. Moulie became director of secondary education this spring, was named principal. Charles Caldwell will be the new assistant principal there. He has been at Kellam, F.J.P. Riley will be assistant principal at Princess Anne.

Elementary appointments include Harold Revis, principal of John B. Dey; Terry Perry, principal of Kempsville Elementary; Mrs. Anna Margaret Rhodes, principal of Malibu Elementary; Charles Kelton, principal of the unnamed school in Windsor Woods; Mrs. Elizabeth Spaulding, principal of the new Pembroke Meadows; C.M. Rawls, principal of the new Point O'View; Anthony Mancini, principal of Tranwood; Ed Brown, assistant principal of Seaboard; Richard Thompson, assistant principal of Seaboard; and Richard Thompson, assistant principal of Kempsville.

Thaddeus Gaber, director of the Tidewater Rehabilitation Institute in Norfolk, requested funds from the board to offset a $21,000 per year deficit caused by Virginia Beach students who attend special education classes at the institute. The institute has 86 students from a four-city area who could not otherwise attend classes because of multiple handicaps. Gaber said the $95 a month per pupil deficit is now made up by the United Communities Fund which has helped in the planning and construction of the area-wide facility. Gaber has also asked help from Chesapeake, Portsmouth and Norfolk.

"We won't hide behind our budget," said J.W. Buffington, board chairman, "but it's too large an item for us to take action on today." He referred the matter to the school administration and to the policy committee.

An expanded, yet more concentrated summer school program for elementary schools received the contract for completion of Independence Boulevard from U.S. Route 13 west of the Chesapeake Bay Bridge-Tunnel to U.S. Route 60 at the Little Creek Amphibious Base to the end of the present four-lane near Haygood Road. Work is already underway.

was reported by Bruce McGuire, director of elementary education.

All classes in all programs this year will be held in 10 centers this summer rather than spread out all over the city. Several of the programs are offered for the first time: remedial English, remedial arithmetic and art enrichment. This will combine 89-10, summer school, kindergarten head-start and enrichment courses in central centers.

McGuire said more than 600 rising seventh graders had applied for band, a non-tuition course. Other courses carry a tuition fee of $20 to $35 or according to the ability to pay. Classes will be from June 17 to July 30.

He said it is "more economically and educationally sound to operate one large center rather than a bunch of small ones."

All centers except Thalia and Court House Elementary Schools will include Head-start.

Other centers are W. T. Cooke, Sealack, Alantion, Shelton Park, Laxford, Arrowhead, Brookwood and Seaboard. All will have their libraries open to students this summer. In addition the libraries at Hermitage, Aragona, Woodstock, Kempsville Meadows, Lynnhaven, Kingston, Tranwood and Creeds will be open.

Other courses will be remedial reading and science enrichment. Students from outside Virginia Beach and from private schools are being accepted on a space available basis.

The School Board, with one dissenting vote from Spencer Lett, voted to recognize the Virginia Beach Education Association as the only negotiating body for teachers in the city.

Master Plan Awaited At Monday's Council

City Council is expected to receive from its consultants a master plan for the municipal complex at Princess Anne next Monday at its regular meeting.

A city spokesman said that the plan will take into consideration future land and building needs in the City Hall area. There has been a moratorium on rezoning of nearby land pending the report of the consultants.

It is thought that projections will show that the city will need a considerable amount of additional land, but it is not known how this will affect pending applications for rezoning. Virginia National Bank is seeking to build a branch in the area, and is one of the applications for rezoning awaiting the outcome of the survey.

In addition City Council will make it official for Roger Scott on Monday, appointing him City Manager as of July 1. Voting so far has been unofficial in an executive meeting.

Several zoning matters deferred from the last meeting are also scheduled to be heard, and additional plans for the city's golf course on land recently leased from Camp Pendleton may also be divulged. Acceptance of an architect's fee is expected.

The city's tax collectors have received official word that the one per cent tax on rentals does apply to Virginia Beach rentals of cottages and houses on a transit basis or short-term basis.

According to a city official the tax will be collected and enforced beginning immediately, and all summer rentals will be expected to pay.

An opinion from Virginia Attorney General Robert V. Burton recently noted that summer rentals did fall under the tax laws. Collection of such taxes has not been enforced in the past.

Phase I Ends; Next Is Planned

Phase One of the campaign to get signatures on petitions calling for a November referendum on local option liquor-by-the-drink is nearly over, and indications are that it has been successful.

The first part of the campaign has involved a door-to-door walk through all city neighborhoods by volunteer workers selected by the joint Virginia Beach Chamber of Commerce-Virginia Beach Jaycees committee plotting the entire campaign.

Workers have said that residents have been happy to sign for the most part, and many have indicated their approval of liquor-by-the-drink, although the workers have been urged not to get into any extended conversations on the subject.

Several problems have been faced by the volunteers. Many people are not registered to vote. (See "Phase I" page 2)

Scott Declares Himself As '24-Hour a Day Man'

Roger McDonald Scott, 31, is proud of Virginia Beach. He says there is no need for the city to make any excuses for itself. He also says right now he would be content to remain here the rest of his life and retire here.

Roger Scott is the new City Manager, chosen from 52 applicants for the job. He has been in Virginia Beach for a little more than three years, as an assistant to retiring City Manager W. Russell Hatchett.

On July 1, he takes over the "No. 1" job in the city, and he readily admits it is a difficult job.

"I'll be a 24-hour City Manager," he said. "The growth and personality of Virginia Beach demand that."

Scott is the youngest City Manager in America of a city with more than 100,000 residents, but he sees his age as an asset.

"I think my age gives me the stamina and durability to be there day or night, whenever a problem arises."

Scott is not politically aligned. He has made it quite clear from the beginning that he will not be a party to partisan politics, and his absence has often been conspicuous.

"The City Manager must be put in the perspective of a non-political job," he said. "I am hired by City Council. I owe my allegiance to them and to the citizens of Virginia Beach."

He added that he will work hard with both in his line of application for the job, he said. "I will be as close as I can to the city, but I will be as far as I can from the city, so that I will be able to be beholden to anyone or any group."

Although Scott has said little publicly in the past, he is an easygoing person, with a smile on his face most of the time, but he can also be outspoken when he feels it is necessary.

Scott came to Virginia Beach highly recommended, but where the City Manager's job is concerned, he said, "I would not have applied unless I felt I could serve capably."

He said he is in no way criticizing the administration of Hatchett, and that few drastic changes can be expected in the near future, but he did offer some indications for the future.

"I propose to attempt to refine existing procedures and departments, so that the City can run like the big business it is," said Scott.

He added that the City is the only really "big business" in the city, with a $35 million annual budget, and 12,000 employees. He said he would introduce more professional methods through specialization.

Specialization may be the key to Scott's administration. Although he said he could not discuss the matter yet, he will probably hire specialists as his assistants.

He is allowed at least one assistant and an administrative aide in the new budget. There is a likelihood of an additional assistant besides one. One assistant from a small town in Virginia may be announced soon, Scott noted that money problems, as well as those of utilities and roads seemed the greatest areas to be concentrated on in the near future. It is a fair bet that Scott's assistants will be specialists in those fields.

"I realize the next two or three years will be most trying for the city of Virginia Beach with the financial problems and the need for water and other utilities and more roads," said Scott. "And I can recognize my job as the greatest challenge that perhaps any City Manager has had to face."

Scott said he faced also the realization that within 15 years, Virginia Beach is destined to be the largest city in Virginia with the most potential.

"I feel that I can grow with the city," he said. "Nothing would please me more than to retire here."

Scott almost never got here in the first place. He changed his major so many times in college that he almost never became interested in public administration.

And without his wife, whom he describes as "one of his greatest assets," he might have remained a draftsman without a college degree.

"She put me through school," said Scott. "I owe a lot to her today."

He went to a junior college, Mars Hill, to study art and engineering, but at his wife's insistence, returned to night school at the University of Virginia extension in Roanoke and then to Virginia Polytechnic Institute, where he graduated in 1962 in public administration.

Another great influence on Scott's life was his former boss and a close personal friend, Arthur Owens, former City Manager of Roanoke, who gently nudged Scott in the direction of public administration. Owens highly recommended Scott when he first came to Virginia Beach, as did his former boss, S. A. Roos, City Manager of Albany, Ga., where Scott served as assistant City Manager from 1962-65.

When he left that job, the City Council adopted a resolution commending him.

But Scott came to Virginia Beach the hard way. He was recommended to Norfolk City Manager Thomas Maxwell, who had heard Hatchett was looking for an assistant. He told Hatchett, and the rest is history.

Since that time he has done most of the legwork for the City Manager's office and has worked with the budget closely, as well as serving as liaison between Hatchett and all City department heads.

The broad grin on the left belongs to retiring City Manager W. Russell Hatchett and the big smile on the right to Roger Scott, new City Manager, effective July 1.

Council Re-Elects Cockrell

E. R. "Dick" Cockrell, the city's extension agent, has been re-elected president of the Virginia Beach Development Council. His unanimous election came at the annual dinner meeting of the Council at Bow Creek Country Club.

Guest speaker for the event was First District Congressman Thomas N. Downing. The meeting was attended by about 75 Council members and their guests including several City Councilmen, city officials and the city's two elected House of Delegates members.

Cockrell called the Council "a group of citizens interested in the potential of Virginia Beach."

The Council studies and analyzes a given situation and passes along to City Council its findings and recommendations.

Since last October Cockrell said that a tax committee had been set up to study the tax structure of the city, and that the study was underway. Another committee studying public transportation is also at work, according to Cockrell and surveys in Princess Anne Plaza and other areas have been started.

He also reported that the cultural-convention center committee had completed its work and had sent the recommendations to Council that such a facility be built as soon as possible to accommodate the needs. The committee did not name a site. Another committee is now studying the feasibility of a city or regional stadium.

Cockrell said a committee had been working closely with the plans to build a new municipal golf course at Camp Pendleton, while another is studying educational needs, particularly vocational education.

Recently, he said a municipal airport committee had moved ahead with a study of service, including general aviation in the city, and that another committee was working on a study of industrial expansion.

"We are just getting ourselves in position now so that we can be of service," said Cockrell.

Downing delivered an off-the-record light talk about Congress and Congressmen, but later answered on-the-record questions.

He said he hoped he could be of help to Virginia Beach in getting an airport or possibly two for the city.

In response to questions pressed on him, he refused to commit himself on his possible candidacy for Governor next year.

"Right now I'm running for Congress, and I'm happy and pleased to be where I am," he said. "That other race is over a year away."

But he did not shut the door tightly. He said any man in public office may make a statement on that subject at any time.

Regarding the Paris peace talks, Downing said he hoped they will end in an honorable and proper peace, but he cautioned his audience to expect long and frustrating talks. He said negotiation could last a year, and if all else failed, the United States should be willing to finish the fight completely.

3 Remain in Hospital After Bus-Car Crash

Three persons remain hospitalized after a school bus accident last Wednesday afternoon in the Southern Points section of Virginia Beach. The accident occurred as a private bus transporting students of the Frere Jacques School reached the intersection of General Beauregard and General Longstreets Drive, shortly after 2:30 p.m.

Mrs. Jo Ann Robinson, 27, of Dauphin Lane, driver of the bus, received head, back, and neck injuries, including fractures. She was last reported in satisfactory condition at Norfolk General Hospital, Mrs. Robinson's two-year-old son Troy, riding with her in the bus, was listed in satisfactory condition at King's Daughters Hospital in Norfolk with head injuries. Another passenger on the bus, Michael Bowman, 9, of Sadler Court, was hospitalized at Virginia Beach General Hospital with fractures and contusions. He was last reported in fairly good condition.

The accident resulted in injury to 15 children and two adults. Of the 17 persons injured, only five required hospitalization. However, the other 12 were taken to area hospitals for emergency treatment before being released.

Police officials identified the driver of the car as Mrs. Kathleen Ujick, 24, of First Colonial Road. She and her 13-week old daughter, Deanna, who was riding with her mother in the auto, were given hospital emergency room treatment and released shortly after the accident.

Investigators at the scene reported the impact of the collision spun the bus around and overturned it. Residents of the region ran into the street to assist passengers from the bus, and did whatever they could to.

New Lane for Independence Set

Work is underway in the construction of another traffic lane on Independence Boulevard, between Virginia Beach Boulevard and the Virginia Beach-Norfolk Expressway. The work was included in the initial contract for Independence Boulevard awarded April 16, 1968 to E.V. Williams Co.

The contract was awarded on a bid of $95,069.68 and listed an estimated work completion date of June 30, 1968.

The D.W. Winkelman Carolina Co., of Greensboro, N.C., received the contract for completion of Independence Boulevard from U.S. Route 13 west of the Chesapeake Bay Bridge-Tunnel to U.S. Route 60 at the Little Creek Amphibious Base to the end of the present four-lane near Haygood Road. Work is already underway.

Independence Boulevard is being widened from the intersection of Virginia Beach Boulevard to the Virginia Beach-Norfolk Expressway.

Art Is Therapy at W.T. Cooke

Charlie Brown visits Lucy Van Pelt for Indescribable psychiatric sessions...and the reasons go deeper than the fact that Charlie Brown manages a losing baseball team and that his love for the little red-headed girl is unrequited.

The real reason is Charlie Brown's self-doubts, his feeling of inadequacy.

At W.T. Cooke school, the faculty and administration have a project underway that could possibly help an incipient Charlie Brown.

Principal George Chandler explained that children, just as easily as adults, are discouraged when they always seem to lag behind their peers, can even be discouraged to the point of no longer competing. For the first through sixth graders at Cooke, and most elementary schools, the competition has traditionally been academic. But now there's art, as well.

The children's work, including tempera, wash, chalk and prints, are hung this week along the school's corridors and on display panels in the central hallway. Several are in black frames, to be kept as part of the school's permanent collection.

"We are trying to use art as a form of expression, especially for children who have problems academically," said Chandler. "The art can be an additional outlet for the children, give them a sense of achievement. We think their pride will carry over into their academic work."

The display is open to the public, and it should be seen. Not because the artists involved are all under 12 or so, but because of the color, the originality of subject matter and execution, the freshness, etc.—all those things that make an art display worth seeing.

SCA President Plans Changes

By Rod Amis
Kellam High

It was our good fortune to catch newly-elected Student Cooperative Association president, Rick Williams, at one of his free moments. Rick is the son of Mr. and Mrs. A. R. Williams of Plainsman Trail. He is a sophomore, and active in many school activities, including being a member of the Scholastic Team and co-authoring the one act play that won district merit earlier this year.

Rick is a tall, genial young man with brown hair, blue-gray eyes and a wry smile. When asked about his plans for the SCA, he told this reporter:

"We intend to renovate the SCA by giving the students a new sense of pride. We were elected on the premise that we'd make the Student Cooperative Association an organization made for, and by the students, and we will."

Steps Rick and the other SCA officers are taking include the rewriting of the SCA constitution, separating the Inter-Club Council and Student Cooperative Association, and a total school re-orientation.

"The reasons these moves are necessary are many," says Williams. "First of all, the SCA was slowly becoming ineffective. Each year we had a mad rush for money, and got nothing done. Secondly, there had arisen a general feeling that the SCA was merely the 60 or 70 people who attended Council meetings, when, in fact, the SCA is the whole school."

When asked if he planned re-election next year, since it was possible, Rick said: "If you don't hurry up, we'll be late for sociology, buddy-boy!"

Season Tally Finds Beach's Best Is PA

Princess Anne, which brought home one of Tidewater's two state championships, has placed fourth in the area's 1967-68 1-A overall sports championship.

PA, winner of the Eastern Regional and District titles in football, ended the season co-owner of the state title with Annapolis's Douglas Freeman.

The Cavaliers, with a 17-game winning streak behind them, placed three men on the 35th All-Tidewater team: Bill Felchner, John Kiefer and Tom Coulter.

Two other district championships are to Princess Anne's credit: in cross-country and basketball competition, Wednesday, PA took its fourth Virginia Beach city track meet in five years, to give it the city's outdoor track championship.

Triple-Jumper Bob German (43-3 3/4) and two-miler Glen Logan (10:01.4) set meet records Wednesday to help their PA teammates slip by First Colonial for a 74 1-3 to 71 1/2 win.

Meet Records Set

Eight meet records were set Wednesday, including Princess Anne's two, Tom Bingley, First Colonial, named the meet's outstanding athlete, took three events and set two records, with a win in the 200 yard

Archery Will Be Taught

Carson Takes Awards Coup

Eight athletic awards were presented Tuesday night at Kellam High School's all-sports banquet.

David Pace, a letterman in football wrestling and basketball received the SPARC award (Sportsmanship, Performance, Attitude, Responsibility, and Courage).

Bob Carson was the recipient of the Creeds Ruritan Outstanding Athlete Award; Pace, an all-Eastern District catcher, also received the Baseball award. The track award went to Carson and Bob Taft; Field Shelby, the basketball award and Ray Shackelford, the tennis award.

Carson, Pace, Mike Brown and Donald Shirley received wrestling awards.

Jaycees Honor Stanton

Robert M. Stanton of Virginia Beach was awarded a Life Membership in the Virginia Jaycees at a special ceremony during the Annual Convention of the organization at the John Marshall Hotel in Richmond recently.

William R. Hartz of Waverly, president of the Virginia Jaycees in making the presentation cited Stanton for his active participation in the United States Jaycees and in particular at Virginia Beach where he is currently president of that chapter.

Hartz also cited his involvement in civic affairs outside of the Jaycees. Stanton is a director of the Virginia Beach Chamber of Commerce, a past president of the Broad Bay Civic League, an active worker in Community Fund drives and many other civic interests.

He is employed by Goodman-Segar-Hogan, Inc. as a commercial sales and leasing specialist.

Peaceful Settlement Expected

City Councilman Robert Cromwell, chosen as mediator in a skirmish between Commonwealth's Attorney Andre Evans and police officials, reported to the closed session of City Council Monday that he thought an amicable solution to problems could and would be worked out.

Cromwell met with representatives of both sides after being chosen to mediate by City Council. The meeting came about as the result of police complaints that they did not have enough time to conduct regular police investigations and handle the time requirements demanded by Evans for pre-trial investigations.

Evans called the pre-trial investigations greatly important and said that the case load was likely to get worse. He also made some remarks considered "unfortunate" by one Councilman, regarding the conduct of the police, especially in relations to the workings of his office.

Editors Speak Before Builders

Joe W. Kissia, editor of American Builder Magazine, and Herbert R. Pfister, senior editor, were speakers at a technical seminar arranged by the Tidewater Association of Home Builders yesterday. The topic was "The Role of Practical Research in the Building Industry."

This seminar was held at Bow Creek Golf & Country Club, and started with a buffet luncheon at 12 noon.

The whole story is in the picture. The two theatres will open next week on Independence Boulevard near Expressway.

Adams Heads Bank

Rhaz W. Adams has been named acting president of the recently formed People's Bank of Virginia Beach. Adams says a charter for the new bank has been issued by the state, and that a site for the headquarters building should be chosen within 30 days with business transactions scheduled to begin within six months. While 45 professional and business men comprise the initial stockholders, it has been indicated that as many as 750 local stockholders will eventually have an interest in the new financial institution. People's Bank will be the only locally owned bank in the community, and it will open with a $1 million dollar capital and surplus stock.

Downing Challenges Plan

First Congressional District Rep. Thomas N. Downing has called recommended restrictions in a Merchant Marine subsidy plan a "complete reversal" of prior understandings.

Hearing Set June 3

Three men charged in the robbery of the Virginia Beach Grocery on First Colonial Road last Thursday night are scheduled for court appearance on June 3rd. Police identified the suspects as Cleveland M. Davis, 26, of Bonney Road, Isaac Lee Harding, 30, of Norfolk and Langhorn Edward Brown, 26, of Chesapeake. Investigators said $8,000 was taken at gunpoint in the robbery of the store. Police Sgt. Harry S. Seager, Jr., while returning from a soft ball game with his wife and children, disregarded his own safety to pursue the alleged get away car as it sped

Boat to Patrol

According to Capt. R. K. Halstead the Virginia Beach police 16-foot runabout is scheduled to begin duty next weekend. Halstead told the VIRGINIA BEACH SUN the boat has been scheduled for weekend patrols of the waters of Lynnhaven and Bayside boroughs during the summer months.

Classes are underway at the Beach Borough Police Precinct for a number of new men who have just joined the police department. Those undergoing training are L. A. Hooker, J. W. Mobley, W. L. Goodson, W. V. Brew, J. E. Waters, J. C. Butler, L. T. Semones, L. L. Chappell, D. E. Twigg, R. C. White, A. G. Wood, J. P. Lowe, D. P. Tobin, E. P. Burgess, L. J. Lister, Sr.

A new telephone number will go into effect Saturday for emergency fire and / or ambulance service in the city of Virginia Beach. The new number is 486-4444 and will connect the caller with the main dispatchers office at any hour of day or night.

Officer H. C. Bickley, attached to the communications center in police headquarters at Princess Anne Courthouse has just completed a course in advanced first aid. The course was jointly sponsored by the Norfolk County Medical Society and the American Society of Safety Engineers.

Our personal thanks to Dickie Taylor of the Davis Corner Volunteer Fire Dept. who provided a helping hand last Friday. While attempting to get home from the office with an auto which refused to continue running, he was apprehended when the getaway car was wrecked in a ditch. A saved off shotgun and a pistol along with $1,500 was reportedly found in the wrecked auto when police converged on the scene.

Hospital to Request Funds for Addition

The General Hospital of Virginia Beach will make application by June 15 for Hill-Burton hospital funds to build a third and fourth floor on the existing wing, according to administrator W. Earl Willis.

The application was made once before but was withdrawn before any action was taken on it, pending a report of consultants. That application sought 64 new beds with no central facilities.

"After we received the study," said Willis, "it was evident we needed to expand."

The new application calls for more facilities and more money than the original one. A total of 139 new beds on the two floors are sought along with central facilities. The cost is expected to run about $5.5 million.

"We are hopeful the federal government will go up to 35 percent of this," said Willis.

The rest will be raised by public fund-raising and by the hospital's borrowing power.

Willis would not comment on the chances the application has this year but noted that great demands have been placed on the Hill-Burton funds in Virginia, with a small cut in allocated funds expected.

When the intensive care wing now under construction is finished sometime in late August or early September the hospital will have a capacity of 155 in the building, plus additional space at the old hospital, now used as an annex, in the Virginia Beach Borough.

If the 139 new beds are approved, the capacity would be 294. The earliest possible starting date, if approved this October, would be October 1969, with about two years needed for construction.

The hospital master plan then calls for the future addition of another two floors and 100 beds over the wing now under construction, an extension of the wings to the west by 100 feet later for administrative offices and then still later three floors and another 100 beds over the additions. "This would bring the eventual total to about 500 beds. Willis would set no date on achieving this end, but said that as the city continues to grow, the hospital must grow.

"After that," he said, "we'll have to evaluate the situation."

Manager

 "The job that I have taken the most pride in so far," said Scott, "is in having a hand in the development of the new municipal complex at Princess Anne. These well-designed and well-planned buildings will serve the city for 50 years."
 Scott also hopes for better communication with the municipal government and the citizens and may initiate some type of annual report to the citizens by next year.

There were no promises made to Scott when he came here three years ago.

"I had to prove myself," said Scott.

He proved himself to Council at any rate, which hired him unanimously at a $20,000 annual salary.

Scott had great praise for Hatchett. He called Hatchett the man who made the merger of Princess Anne County and the old city of Virginia Beach work. "I have nothing but the greatest respect for him," said Scott. Hatchett also had praise for Scott, he said, "I am happy for the city and I am happy for Roger."

He congratulated Council on a wise decision and said he knew Scott would work with enthusiasm in the best interests of the city.

John McCombs, chairman of the Council committee which screened applicants for the job, said, "After interviewing six applicants and screening nearly 50 others, it was the opinion of Council that Roger Scott was the best man for the job."

He added that the committee and Council had agreed unanimously on the selection.

Mayor Frank Dusch said, "He is a capable young man, and I feel we have made a wise decision."

A few minutes after he was informed, Scott broke out in a broad grin and said, "I'm glad that's over. And I am pleased with the confidence placed in me. I'll do everything I can to keep it that way."

Hatchett Honored for Beautification

Soon-to-retire city manager Russell Hatchett was honored Thursday, May 16, when the Virginia Beach Beautification Commission met at the Cavalier Beach Club for their annual meeting and surprised Hatchett with a large silver serving bowl in appreciation for his work toward city beautification during his tenure as city manager.

City manager for Virginia Beach before the 1963 merger with Princess Anne County, Hatchett has announced June 1 as his retirement date.

Sharing the agenda with Hatchett were James A. Stutts, district director of the United States Brewers' Association, Raleigh, N. C., and R. H. Hackendahl, director of the National Clean-up, Paint-up, Fix-up Bureau of Washington, D.C.

Stutts, introduced by Douglas Moore, executive director of Keep Virginia Beautiful, Inc., at Richmond, explained that the Brewers' Association is currently engaged in a $5 million anti-litter war, beginning with the Association's employees and stretching to include wholesalers, retailers and even mass media representatives in an effort to promote litter-consciousness.

Hackendahl stressed the point that "beautification goes beyond mere cosmetics." It involves, rather, he went on, "man's total environment," including architecture, business offices, as well as playgrounds and private homes.

True beautification, Hackendahl added, must involve a long-range concept of what the city wants to become. He told the Beautification Commission that the talent needed to accomplish any long-range plans was available in the civic and social groups (Lions, Kiwanis, etc.) already established, whose programs were becoming more and more oriented to civic improvement.

Here comes the fleet! That was the cry as the charter boats turned the corner from the ocean into the newly opened Rudee Inlet. The RICHIE was the first boat in.

Rudee Inlet Opens Officially

The temperature had risen into the 80's, there was no wind whatsoever. And there wasn't a cloud in the sky.

This was the setting for the opening of Rudee Inlet last Friday afternoon to the charter fishing boats and a few others and the official opening of the city's temporary marina inside the high-level bridge there.

The surfers at the fishing pier on the south end of the beach appeared disgruntled. There was just no surf. But Dean Curtis, project director for the Rudee Inlet Authority, and a host of other very interested parties were elated. Not a ripple disturbed the orderly parade of fishing boats that made their turn from the Atlantic and headed toward the marina through Rudee Inlet.

The day marked the end of more than 11 years of work, study, problems, controversy, successes and defeats, a fact that was noted often at the ceremonies attended by a large crowd.

The inlet was dredged and opened once before to boats, but quickly closed up again as sand built up at the entrance. This required more money, new methods and much criticism. Now engineers and boaters agree that the problems are well on the way to being completely solved.

This year, after more painful legal delays, work began to move rapidly, with the new dredging, construction of timber pilings and new rock jetties. Weather plagued the project constantly almost until opening day. Just three days before, the dredge was having a difficult time operating because of high winds and heavy seas.

On opening day the dredge continued to work and the charter boats had to make their way through a smaller than usual channel because of the pipes being used to pump sand to the beach further north of the inlet. Still the permanent marina faces some problems, including money. A request for state and federal funds is still pending, but city officials feel the project is worthy of continuing as had been planned earlier no matter what problems arise. They feel the inlet and its development is of great importance to the economy of the rejuvenated south end of the beach.

On opening day representatives from a large number of interested groups were on hand, including the project engineers, U.S. Army Corps of Engineers, U.S. Coast Guard, State Outdoor Recreation Commission, Virginia Beach Erosion Commission and city officials.

Frank Kellam, chairman of Rudee Inlet Authority, was master of ceremonies.

The comments from those assembled were varied. Here are a few:

Virginia Beach Mayor, Frank Dusch: "I've seen it in the making for so long. Thank God, I've lived long enough to see it completed, I certainly thank all hands for a job well done."

Charter boat, "RICHIE," captain and spokesman for the boat operators, Ray Richardson: "We expect this will be one of the finest fishing fleets on the eastern seaboard. We've got a facility here we can be proud of."

Members of the State Outdoor Recreation Commission, Dr. T. Roy Jarrett, Jr.: "You have done a wonderful job. I do hope we can participate in its expansion."

Chairman of the Virginia Beach Erosion Commission, E. H. "Red" Church: "To see these boats coming in here gave me a great deal of pleasure. It's been a wonderful thing to see how hard the men have worked to open this inlet. I'm assured by our staff we can keep it open. Sand taken from here will go on the beach to the north."

Member of the consulting engineers who built the project, (Langley, McDonald and Overman) George Langley: "It's a great pleasure to us to see these accommodations completed. The permanent marina (further west) will accommodate 150 boats. We hope it will be built as soon as possible."

Project director, Dean Curtis: "It has been a very interesting job. There have been moments when people had their doubts about it, but our engineers have assured us the project is a sound one."

Chairman, Rudee Inlet Authority, Frank Kellam: "This is only the beginning in a great era for a great city in a great land. At times it looked as if it couldn't happen. This is only a start and it certainly will add to the enjoyment of you who are living in this area. Our thanks to the Corps of Engineers and everyone for their help on this project."

Meanwhile dredging goes on in Rudee Inlet by the Erosion Commission, and will continue until the sand trap adjacent to the channel reaches its full depth of 18 feet. The dredging will probably take until the end of June or longer. At that time the dredge moves back to its job of dredging Owl's Creek, a job which was interrupted some time ago.

But chairman Church said he didn't care if the dredge was there or not by July 1. He noted he was more interested in finishing the Rudee Inlet job.

Shriners Take Over Beach

Khedive Shrine Temple of Norfolk moves full force into Virginia Beach Saturday an entire day filled with fun and ceremony.

The spring ceremonial will be held at the Dome beginning at 10 a.m. The first and second sections of the ceremony will be conducted for approximately 100 new Shrine candidates at that time. There are about 60 candidates at present, but voting early Saturday is expected to swell those ranks to 100.

Following the more serious ceremonies, the candidates, the Shrine band and colorful marching units, clowns and visiting Shrine dignitaries, as well as Khedive officers will take part in a traditional Shrine parade on Atlantic Avenue beginning at 11:45 a.m.

Officers and units from the other three Shrine Temples in Virginia have been invited to attend and participate. Units are expected from Kazzim Temple of Roanoke, Aka Temple of Richmond and Kena Temple of Alexandria.

Following a lunch, the candidates will continue their initiation in the third section of the ceremony and fun at the Dome.

That night a dance will be held, also at the Dome, for the candidates and all Shriners.

All Shriners in the area are urged to attend all functions and to wear their ties. This is the first time in some years that the ceremonial has been held in Virginia Beach. Dr. Meyer H. Legum of Virginia Beach is the current Potentate of Khedive Temple.

Many are not registered in Virginia because of service connections and are unwilling to change. Others have not lived in Virginia for the necessary year and still others will be gone before November and the General Election.

"I've been pleasantly surprised," said one volunteer, at the response to the petition. Most of those eligible are in favor of local option liquor-by-the-drink and are more than willing to sign."

About 3,500 signatures are needed in Virginia Beach to call for a referendum, but the committee is seeking as many as possible. Results of the door-to-door campaign will be revealed after a meeting at Bow Creek Country Club Saturday. In the next phase, petitions will be placed in public places, such as restaurants, theatres and public buildings for those who were missed earlier.

Next, continued education is the goal of the committee in the hope of a favorable vote in November.

Armed Forces Day Has Parade, Awards

Scattered showers failed to dampen the spirits of the crowds that lined the streets to view the annual Armed Forces Day Parade. Adm. Eberhard Holmes, Commander Atlantic Fleet, was parade marshal.

The Khedive Temple Arab Patrol was judged the best marching unit. The Virginia Beach-Bayside Jaycees produced the best civilian float followed by Tidewater Association of Home Builders in second place. NAS Oceana with a miniature aircraft carrier won best military float with the Naval Amphibious Base at Little Creek second.

Princess Anne High School had the best civilian band with Cox High second. The Navy School of Music was judged the best military band.

While the parade was moving along Atlantic Avenue, another ceremony was taking place at the far end of Atlantic Avenue at Ft. Story. The family and friends of Sgt. David H. Hersherberger gathered for a posthumous awards ceremony. Sgt. Hersherberger, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles L. Hersherberger Jr., formerly of Virginia Beach, was killed in Vietnam in January.

Col. Thomas Emery presented the family with a Silver Star awarded for valorous action when Sgt. Hersherberger exposed himself to enemy fire while getting his men to safety and rescuing the wounded. He was also awarded the Bronze Star, Army Commendation Medal with V for valor, the Purple Heart, Good Conduct Medal, National Defense Service Medal, Vietnam Service Medal, Vietnam Campaign ribbon and Combat Infantry badge.

He was a 1965 graduate of Princess Anne High School where he was named Outstanding Trackman of Virginia Beach. His sister, Cynthia, is a former Virginia Beach Junior Miss.

A Hammond organ has been installed in memorium in Laurel Avenue Church of Christ where his mother is organist.

He was the grandson of Mr. and Mrs. C. L. Hersherberger, son of Virginia Beach and Mrs. S. M. Woodley of Norfolk.

Stage Door Schedules Auditions

The Stage Door Dinner Playhouse is holding auditions for their next production, "Light Up the Sky", Sunday, May 26 at 3 p.m. and Monday, May 27 at 8 p.m.

The play written by Moss Hart, author of the best-seller "The One" and such plays as "You Can't Take It With You" and "The Man Who Came to Dinner", takes place in Boston on the opening night of a new play. During the three act comedy the audience has a chance to see the "Behind the scenes" activity of the theater people that bring the shows to Broadway.

Needed for the production: four women and seven men. The women's roles include: "The Star", her mother, the producer's wife and a young secretary. The men's roles include: two cameo roles, "The Director", older playwright, the young playwright, the producer and the star's husband.

"Light Up the Sky" will be presented after the musical "Pajama Game."

U.N. Dinner Is Tonight

The Tidewater Chapter of the United Nations Association will meet for dinner and to hear two nationally-known speakers tonight, May 23, at Virginia Wesleyan College, at 7 p.m.

The guest speakers will be Dr. Buel Trowbridge, of American University, and M. Everett Dorr, the state UNICEF representative for Virginia.

Trowbridge will center his remarks on the area of human rights. Dorr will focus his report on the current efforts of UNICEF activities.

Dinner reservations may be made through Mrs. Dorothy Abdill, program chairman, at 428-9059.

Folk Comedy Is Family Fun

"Papa is All", the folk comedy currently playing at Wedgewood Theatre in Toano, is an unusual play, well staged and well-performed. It is the story of a Mennonite family living in the heart of Pennsylvania Dutch country, living the simple, regimented life demanded of them.

It is unusual because it has one thoroughly despicable character to whom the audience must relate. Human nature being what it is, the audience keeps waiting for Papa to change his way, to soften or at least be a little more human and understanding. But this never happens, and it is difficult to relate to this character.

Papa rules the simple household. He keeps out all work-savers, including electricity, running water and a telephone. He treats his wife and two teenaged children horribly, threatening and beating them unmercifully. Mama, the long-suffering one, puts up with it, torn between her love for her children and the bonds of matrimony she chose rather than be an old maid.

The son, so long put down by his father, is intelligent and mechanically minded, but is passed off by his father as having brain damage, and his accomplishments are disregarded. His fear of his dictator father finally comes to a head. The daughter is a normal, healthy, teenaged girl with an interest in pretty clothes and young men. But Papa, of course, cannot allow this and treats her miserably as well.

Try as the audience might, there is no justification for his actions. He says they are based on religion, but this cannot be. He is merely a poor excuse for a member of the human race, and when suddenly Papa's "all" or "dead", the change that comes over the family is remarkable and pleasing. The discovery that he is not "all" and the subsequent action make for a poignant and wonderful comedy.

Roby Brown, as Papa, plays the snarling, club-footed man with excellence. His realistic performance makes him hated, but little pitied.

Waltham Hamilton does a nice job as Mama, and plays the simple country woman with love and a gleam in her eye.

John Wood, the Introspective Jake, plays the son well, but sometimes his covering is a trifle overdone. He does get the point across rather well, however.

Robert Bailey, the daughter, is sweet and a joy to watch. Her real youth and exuberance comes across in the role with extreme warmth.

Robert Hutchinson handles the role of the policeman nicely, but is a thankless role anyway, designed to pull the pieces together.

It is Sherri Reid, however, stepping far out of her ingenue element, as the old gossip and fun-loving country woman, who adds real spice to the production. Her walk, her laugh, her facial expressions and her manner are perfect for the role, although sometimes director Paul Iddings seems to let her go too far.

It is a good play and a good production with a good set. It is one that can be highly recommended for the entire family. The cast handles the difficult accent and difficult play well. HJL

Wingate Choir to Sing

The Wingate College Choir will be presented in concert during its spring tour through the mid-Atlantic states in a series of secular and religious concerts beginning Monday, May 20.

A Friday-night May 24 concert has been scheduled for the Virginia Beach area. A 7:30 p.m. performance has been scheduled to be presented in the First Colonial Baptist Church, 929 First Colonial Road, Virginia Beach.

David Leo Ziemba of Virginia Beach, a Wingate voice and music major, is a member of Wingate College Choir.

Telephone Books Are Being Delivered

The Norfolk-Portsmouth-Chesapeake-Virginia Beach Telephone Directories will be delivered in the area this week and will be for use on Sunday, May 26th.

According to L. Floyd Patrick, Virginia Beach Manager of The Chesapeake and Potomac Telephone Company of Virginia, the Adam Thoroughgood House-America's oldest brick house is featured on the cover in color.

Some 28 trucks are bringing to the area a total of 385,000 directories that are being printed at the Baird-Ward Printing Company in Nashville, Tenn.

The directories will still be in production all next week and the vehicles will continue to bring them to the Tidewater area until Friday.

Patrick also emphasized that since the delivery will take all of the week, customers who have not received directories by Wednesday, May 29, should call their respective C. and P. Telephone Business Offices on Friday, May 31st, and arrangements will be made to deliver directories to those involved.

Patrick pointed out that it is important for customers to use this directory after May 26th since more than thirty per cent of the listings in the old directory have changed for one reason or another.

This is the largest directory ever delivered in the area. It contains 1,072 pages of listings—535 alphabetical and 537 in the yellow page section.

Hospital Gives Pins

Awards for five years of service were presented to ten staff-members last week at the General Hospital of Virginia Beach.

The five-year-service pins were awarded by Hunter C. Phelan, president of the Hospital's Board of Directors, to A. Gordon Stephenson, Board of Directors vice president, to Robert Claxton, Ola Dyer; Barbara Lathingshouse, Margaret Pierce, Ramona Steele, Catherine Winkler, James Wilson, Winnie Williams, W. Earl Willis and Alice Zehmer.

The pins were presented Wednesday afternoon, May 15, to a group representing a cross-section of the hospital staff, including nurses, members of the business office staff and the hospital administrator, Willis. All those receiving the five-year pins had originally joined the hospital at its old building, now being used as an annex, at 25th Street. The new hospital building on First Colonial Road was opened July 19, 1965.

He also pointed out that the City of Virginia Beach municipal office listings will be of a double nature, those to be used for the present time and those that will become effective on Nov. 2 of this year. The city will have the Centrex system which will permit direct dialing to telephones at that time. These listings appear on page 486-488 of the directory and telephone customers are requested to follow the dialing instructions.

Hayes Elected Jaycees Pres.

Mickey Hayes a native of Princess Anne County, has just been elected the new president of the Virginia Beach Jaycees. Hayes, a 1964 graduate of Virginia Tech, is currently employed as a landscape artist with Cavalier Nurseries. He is a Board member of the Virginia Beach Sports Club and of the Tidewater Virginia Tech Alumni Association.

Other new officers elected at the May 14 meeting were William H. Slaughter, first vice president; H. Jack Jennings, second vice president; Linwood M. Benton, third vice president; and William Stewart, treasurer. Ten new directors were also selected: Nick Sandias, Roland D. Winter, Bill Perry, Don DeSarro, Herman McLeod, Norman Biggs, Phil Wade, Bob Warren, Nick Myers, and Sidney Barnes.

The officers will be installed at a Jaycees banquet June 7 at the newly-opened Northampton Boulevard Holiday Inn.

Ascension Day Service Planned

Dr. Moultrie Guerry will have an Ascension Day Service at St. Francis Episcopal Church, May 23, Thursday, 7:30 p.m.

Dr. Guerry was rector of Old St. Paul's Norfolk and chaplain of St. Mary's in Raleigh, N.C. until his retirement. The Youth and Adult Choirs will sing at this service of Holy Communion. Location of St. Francis is 508 Rosemont Rd.

Telephone Pioneers Will Meet

The Old Dominion Chapter of the Telephone Pioneers of America will hold its 32nd annual convention at the Golden Triangle Motor Hotel at Norfolk May 24-May 26.

Members are made up of telephone people with 21 or more years of service in the phone industry. The Chesapeake and Potomac Telephone Company of Virginia has some 8,100 members that include active and retired employees.

Newly elected officers for the statewide organization are Ernest W. Seay, Jr., president; Donald F. Hartman, vice president; Luther H. Warehime, second vice president; and Ernestine C. Givler, secretary-treasurer. All are of Richmond.

when her vocal on the Stan Getz recording of "The Girl From Ipanema" captivated enough American ears to help make the record a best-seller and Astrud a star.

It was her first professional appearance as a vocalist. Previously, her singing had been limited to the Gilberto kitchen or nursery, and her husband, Joao, had been the singer in the family. Now she is a full-fledged vocal star with a following all her own and a style completely hers.

She has absolute command of bossa nova songs, and creates fresh and incisive renditions of American popular songs. Two of the best examples of Astrud's intriguing talent can be heard in her albums: "Beach Samba" and "Look to the Rainbow," both on the Verve label. Selections from these albums are heard from time to time on WVAH.

Roger Scott, City Manager

City Council has made a fine choice in naming Roger Scott our new City Manager. Not only is he recognized as a fine administrator, but he is also a bit of a diplomat, given to smiling a lot, keeping his eyes and ears open and then coming up with the right decisions.

He himself is fully aware of the problems he faces in the job he takes over on July 1, but he is ready to face them squarely with no illusions. There is no need to admonish him or to remind him of the challenges, from within and without, that he will have to meet. He knows that. And still he smiles, while he moves toward those goals.

Scott is a professional trained in public administration. In this he is different from his retiring boss, W. Russell Hatchett. Hatchett has filled a variety of public service jobs and filled each well. He was the man needed after the merger, and he has done a remarkable job. He will be missed.

Now it is up to Scott to put all the little refinements of a massive city operation into effect. The next few years hold excitement and potential. With our friend Roger Scott at the helm, the future looks bright.

We wish him luck, a commodity that even the best man needs once in a while. He must now prove himself to everyone...a tough job to do...but so far his record is excellent. We have a feeling it will remain that way with everyone's aid and support.

Study the Stadium Site

A stadium on the south side of Hampton Roads is a necessity, and it must be built soon. Of course, we would like to see it built in Virginia Beach where there is much open land still available, a major road arteries.

But if another suitable site is found that will serve the needs of Norfolk, Portsmouth, Chesapeake AND Virginia Beach, we are all for it.

We are glad to note that Norfolk has voted a stadium study, as has Virginia Beach. We are pleased that a number of groups are working on the subject, even if there is some duplication of effort and some political basis in one or two cases. All this is still bound to come to some good, and probably will mean the best possible site that will please everybody concerned.

Norfolk's earlier announcement that it had found a stadium site within its limits was disturbing. Now hopefully the powers, to be in Norfolk can really look at this matter with an open mind, albeit keeping that original site in mind.

Norfolk has to have a new stadium because Foreman Field will no longer be available in a few years, and it is not adequate anyway. That fact, combined with the serious work of an area-wide study committee should prove fruitful.

But it must be area-wide. The best interests of neither Norfolk or the other cities will be served by unilateral forging ahead. Hopefully politics and former resentments can be kept out of this so that the area can have a facility to be extremely proud of soon.

So Grows the City

In the first four months of this year the value of building permits set a new record high in the city and was higher by a considerable amount than any other location in Virginia. Building of single and multiple-family residences here is booming, and will probably set a new high in 1968.

The city continues to grow so rapidly that it is hard to keep services and schools, to mention only two things, on a par with that building. And it's going to get worse. We have 40 schools now, with the need for a like number by 1985.

More and more people are filling those houses and demanding more services, such as water and sewer facilities. By 1985, nearly a half million people will live in Virginia Beach, which will be the largest city in Virginia.

Actually all this is a rather frightening prospect. And the demands to be put on our municipal government and all of us will be great, both financially and otherwise.

Businesses are recognizing the potential here in greater numbers each year. Our shopping areas will be rivaled by none in years to come, and they will be patronized by discriminating people.

Our resort business is destined to grow severalfold within the next few years. Some light industry, although not enough, is beginning to move in.

Virginia Beach has grown out of its childhood and faces the adolescent years of pain and struggle. We feel that we will emerge as a major power on the East Coast with a great voice in the future of Virginia and the nation.

All of us can be proud to be living in a city bound to such heights and we should do our best to attain those goals.

Letters to the editor

The VIRGINIA BEACH SUN welcomes letters. They will be published when possible. Each letter must be signed and include address of the writer. Letters are invited on any question.

Mail each to: Editor, VIRGINIA BEACH SUN, Post Office Box 657, Virginia Beach, Virginia 23451.

In Appreciation

Editor, VIRGINIA BEACH SUN: Please accept my sincere appreciation for the newspaper publicity you gave us regarding Fine Free Week for area Public Libraries.

You will be interested to know that approximately 4,900 overdue books were returned to Norfolk libraries during this period, and I am sure that your publicity played an important part in making this project such a wonderful success.

Sorry it wasn't as successful for Virginia Beach as it was for us, but it was our first campaign in 98 years! (Virginia Beach, with its newer libraries, had only 50 books returned fine-free to its branches.) Sincerely,

Mr. Fenton G. Jordan, Jr.

No Flag Wavers

I was appalled at the Armed Forces Day parade at the number of people who stood by and ignored our flag passing by. Either they stood there dumbly staring at the flag without making any move, or they just continued doing whatever they were doing.

Many of the men near me wore hats. Only one or two moved his hat each time the flag came by and placed it over his heart. The rest kept their hats on.

What has happened to patriotism and respect for our flag? When I was a youngster I was taught reverence for the flag and how to show it respect. I think it must still be taught because the children who watched the parade seemed to be the only ones who really acknowledged the flag.

Many saluted, most placed their hands over their hearts and stood at attention, and one little fellow even recited the pledge of allegiance everytime the flag came by. And it came by many times. His mother tried to quiet him.

Something must happen between childhood and adulthood. Whatever it is I hope it isn't catching. In these trying times, we need more patriotism and respect for our country and our flag.

Mrs. F. Hill

Moderizing Virginia

The following editorial, originally published in the WASHINGTON STAR was reprinted in the VIRGINIA JOURNAL OF EDUCATION last month. This praise of the 1968 session of the Virginia General Assembly is reprinted here for SUN readers.

The anachronism of trying to govern a modern state with 19th century tools was never more evident than it has been in Richmond for the last two months. Struggling under a shortage of time, staff assistance, and facilities, the General Assembly ground out a massive amount of legislation—much of it good, some of it bad. The fact that the General Assembly did so much demonstrates once again the abrupt change that urbanization and reapportionment have brought to Virginia politics. But the way in which the legislature had to operate demonstrates the need for change in the governmental structure of the state.

Under Virginia's constitution, the General Assembly meets for 60 days every other year to transact general business. It can be called into special session but only to deal with a restricted agenda. This means, among other things, that this year's legislature had to cope with the financial problems of the State Government from this coming June until June, 1970. It also means that the legislators had to reach a decision on about 2,000 proposals—37 of them important enough to be listed in our news columns last Sunday as major actions—within 60 days.

Fortunately, one of the General Assembly's decisions was to establish a Constitutional Revision Commission which is to propose amendments to the Constitution. High on that Commission's agenda must be an amendment to authorize annual legislative sessions of a greater length. Maryland now has 150 legislative days every two years to Virginia's 60, and its recent Constitutional Convention has proposed raising that to 180 days and authorizing the Legislature to add an additional 120 days if necessary. In addition, Virginia must also provide better facilities and better staff assistance to its legislators if it is to get the kind of government it deserves.

Nevertheless, the product of this year's General Assembly was remarkable. By setting out to dump the pay-as-you-go policy the legislature had made it possible for the State to begin to catch up in providing services it has previously denied its citizens in the education and mental health fields. By passing a compulsory school attendance law and killing the Commission on Constitutional Government, the General Assembly buried more of its unfortunate "massive resistance" heritage. By taking the first steps towards creation of regional governments, it began to cope with the problem of governing urban areas. But the items on which it authorized studies during the next two years—taxes, election reforms, zoning procedures, transportation, school consolidation, conflict of interest, and so on—emphasize that the job of modernization in Richmond has only begun.

SPOTS

By H. Joseph Lowenthal, Jr.

"You bought what?" she screamed.

"I said I bought a black-and-white striped, double-breasted sport coat," he repeated. "Now stop laughing long enough to tell me what you find so funny."

"I just can't imagine conservative you in a coat like that," she said, stifling another snicker.

"Well, don't you think it's about time?" he asked. "After all, it is the style, and besides my age is showing. I want to dress young."

"I'm glad to hear it," she said. "But it came as such a shock when you told me, my first inclination was to laugh. You've been wearing dark blue, dark green and black for so long, even in the summer."

He looked at her warily, and said, "OK, steel yourself. I bought another sport coat too and a pair of pants."

She eyed him suspiciously this time. "Don't tell me. Let me guess," she said, with a new smile starting. "You bought a chartruese coat with orange polka dots and orange pants with chartruese stripes."

Into the Mod Blue Yonder

"You're close," he said, as her smile faded.

"Break it gently," she said. "What did you get?"

"A gold sport coat with green pants," she went into gales of laughter. "I still don't see anything so funny," he added.

"No?" she asked. "Why not? After all these years of criticizing everybody for their bright clothes, you suddenly become the poor man's mod Beau Brummel, that's what is so funny."

"If you promise not to split a gut or something, I'll tell you the rest," he said.

"There's more?" she asked. "I can't imagine what to expect."

"I also bought a turtle-necked shirt to wear with my tuxedo," he paused. "Why aren't you laughing?"

"You didn't want me to, did you?" she asked. "Besides, I think that's wonderful. You should look great at the banquet this Saturday night. And those guys with the starched shirts and bowties will probably envy you. I think it's great."

"Funny, I thought you'd go off into hysteria again."

"No," she said. "I wish you had begun to wear less conservative clothes years ago. I've just been giving you a hard time this afternoon."

"Well, don't worry about it, though. This is as far as I'm going," he said. "I'm not going to become a hippie. This is probably my one break with convention for the next ten years."

"Excuse me a minute," she said, and left the room. She was gone a few minutes, and when she came in again she had her hands behind her back hiding something. She also had a gleam in her eye that he was not so sure about.

"What are you hiding?" he asked.

"Close your eyes," she said. "I have a present for you."

"Something tells me I shouldn't listen, but I will," he said. "Ok, my eyes are shut."

He felt her slip something over his head, as she laughed again and said, "Now. Open your eyes."

He did. "Beards?" he yelled. "What the devil are they for?"

"I thought since you're going modern you'd want to wear this old strand of beads I haven't worn in years. They're sort of gaudy for me." She went into gales of laughter again.

"Very funny," he said as he nearly strangled himself trying to get out of them.

For the Roger Scotts

Dream Home Is Almost a Reality

By Carolyn McAllen

"Roger called and told me I could get the chair reupholstered," laughed Beverly Scott, wife of Virginia Beach's new city manager, shortly after the announcement of his selection.

The chair, along with a matching sofa and their "dream home" had awaited the decision of City Council. "I never expected to actually live in the house," she admitted. "I'm always the pessimist."

The house in question is under construction in Larkspur Forest, using plans designed by the Scotts ten years ago. It is a large Queen Anne ranch style home with a roof of hand-split cedar shakes.

"I couldn't imagine living in a state with all the historical background Virginia has in anything but a colonial type home," The two-story house stands on a corner lot which has a beech tree, estimated to be 400 years old, shading the front yard.

Commenting on the size of the large dining room, Mrs. Scott explained, "All our relatives are from North Carolina and it's a six hour drive. They have to stay awhile. We'll fill it up."

Another feature, which is rarely seen in today's homes, is a large pantry in the kitchen.

"Roger is going to put up all the wallpaper and do the inside painting," said Mrs. Scott. "He likes to work with his hands, but he hates to work in the yard. We've never even owned a lawn mower."

The house, when completed in June, will be painted a subdued antique gold, she said.

The Scotts currently occupy an apartment in Colonial Arms, where they moved this spring after selling their home in Kingston. Mrs. Scott drives their two daughters, 10 and 11, to Kempsville Elementary School each day since they no longer live in the Kingston school district.

"That's where they'll be going next year, and we didn't want them to have to change schools twice. They let them in at Kempsville since we had already purchased the lot for the house."

Although the Scotts are both natives of Winston-Salem, they have not lived in North Carolina since their marriage. "We were childhood sweethearts, so to speak, although we didn't go to the same high school." They attended colleges 200 miles apart and after two years decided to get married. He was majoring in art and she in speech.

After their marriage, he transferred to Virginia Polytechnic Institute to major in civil engineering. During his senior year he was commuting 80 miles a day from Roanoke and holding down three jobs, including one as assistant to the Roanoke city manager, who advised him to go into municipal administration.

During this same time, between the two babies, Beverly and Roger were earning extra money designing homes in their basement. "I became his draftsman," she says.

After graduation, the Scotts lived in Albany, Ga. for two and a half years where he was assistant city manager. Beverly Scott did high fashion modeling, took part in the little theatre and taught retarded children while there.

The Scotts are multi-talented. Not only does Beverly make most of her own clothes, she also makes hats. Her husband, she said, made almost all their furniture except in the living room, and she put the finishing touches on it. He's now working on shutters for the new house made from aluminum offset press plates, hammering a design of nail holes in them.

They are members of the Carolina June German, Jaycees and Jayettes, and she is a member of the Colonial Circle of Kings Daughters.

Commenting on her husband's appointment, she said, "I'm glad, but I know his work is just beginning now. I don't think most people realize how experienced he really is in city administration. But he's been working at it ever since he was in college."

HEPP Offers Clinics On Family Planning

Project HEPP has scheduled a series of Family Planning Clinics for Virginia Beach residents.

HEPP stands for Home, Education, Planned Parenthood. The Virginia Beach Council of Church Women United promised HEPP their support earlier in the year. The closest HEPP office is in Portsmouth, but the group is trying to set up a local office too.

HEPP is operating under a one year grant from the Office of Economic Opportunity and with matching funds from the Virginia League for Planned Parenthood. Already 126 Maternal and Child Health Clinics have been established in the state as a part of the State Public Health system. All medical services are to be provided by the clinics; the role of Project HEPP is solely educational and assistive.

The clinics will include a film on family planning and a question and answer period with doctors and nurses present. Dr. Madge May, head of the Virginia Beach Public Health Department, has arranged with Project HEPP to have the clinics in different areas of the city on nine consecutive Tuesday evenings, from 6:30 to 9 p.m.

Clinic dates and locations are Robbins Corner Health Center, 4825 Shell Rd., June 4, 11, 18; Virginia Beach Health Center, Artie and 19th Streets, June 25, July 2, July 9; Health Department, Princess Anne Court House, 2535 Princess Anne Rd., July 16, 23, 30.

For appointments and/or transportation, call 397-8331. Volunteers are also needed to provide transportation.

Luncheon Will Be Wednesday

The Council of Garden Clubs of Virginia Beach and Surrounding Area will have its annual luncheon meeting beginning at 10:30 a.m. Wednesday, May 29 at the Ocean Hearth Restaurant.

After the business meeting, the group will adjourn until luncheon at noon. Various awards will be presented, including those for HANDS winners.

Tickets are $2.25 and advance reservations must be made with Mrs. Richard C. Dunaja at 464-4746.

Hospital Praises Auxiliary

Mrs. Reuben F. Trant Jr. was installed as president at the annual meeting of the Women's Auxiliary to the General Hospital of Virginia Beach last Thursday at the hospital.

Other new officers are Mrs. George E. Phillips Sr., vice president; Mrs. David G. Shelburne, recording secretary; Mrs. William B. Baldwin, corresponding secretary, and Mrs. Spencer Lott, treasurer.

Sam Feazell, assistant hospital administrator, gave his "congratulations and gratitude" to the auxiliary for their efforts in the last year.

He said the hospital plans to re-apply for Hill-Burton funds to construct a third and fourth floor to the existing building and to enlarge the central facilities "which will be operating at a maximum when the new wing (extended care) is completed this year."

The hospital presently has 105 beds, and Feazell said it operated at an average of 125 per cent occupancy for the year ending last November. "We definitely have a need," he said. In the same year, 6,044 adults were admitted, 865 babies were born, 3,143 operations were performed, 10,609 persons were treated in the emergency room and 43,289 days of care were given.

The addition is expected to cost $5.5 million. An earlier application was withdrawn from Hill-Burton, a federal program which provides up to 55 per cent of funds needed for hospital construction.

It was reported that the hospital gift shop, operated by the auxiliary, had provided $1,500 for an operating table, an outside vacuum cleaner, for the parking lot and a portrait of Hunter C. Phelan for the hospital.

The auxiliary heard a report stating that they had received $2,290.76 from their annual fund-raising horse show last month. Membership in the auxiliary now numbers 451. This year they purchased an obstetrical table for the hospital.

McAllen's ALLEY

Physical Fitness Is For Physically Fit

According to the President's Council on Physical Fitness, exercise is healthy. I have my doubts.

About a year ago, my husband bought two used bikes for us. That was fine until I fell off and scraped my knee.

But worse yet was last Thursday: The whole family, in a "togetherness" effort, went riding around the block. All of a sudden the five-year-old cut directly in front of my bicycle, and I swerved to miss her. Somehow my foot got tangled in a fender and I sliced it down the side.

Friday the only pair of shoes I could get on were some old sandals with runover heels and flapping soles. Thank goodness I didn't have too many places to go.

Friday night my husband arrived home with a bagful of epsom salts. He said he wasn't going to the Armed Forces Ball with me limping. I sat and soaked all evening.

I didn't limp at the Ball. I went barefooted. Not really, but I wished I had. I was doing fine until somebody stepped on my foot.

I'm either going to be physically unfit or take up isometric exercises.

Speaking of the Ball, the music, provided by the Navy School of Music, was great. Everybody commented on how good it was and wondered who they were until finally an announcement was made.

Our tablemates consisted of an Air Force couple and a Navy couple. The men carried on a friendly argument as to which service has the best pilots. The Air Force man finally admitted defeat because "he was outscored" at the Ball. He also admitted he couldn't land on a carrier.

10 Compete for 1968 Lotus Queen Title

Virginia Beach's 14th Lotus Queen will be crowned this summer, chosen from a field of ten of the city's loveliest teenagers.

Lotus Festival activities, sponsored by the Cape Henry Women's Club, will begin the night of July 17 at The Cavalier when Col. Thomas Emery, commanding officer at Ft. Story, will crown the new queen. Master of ceremonies for the evening will be Rick Allen, announcer for WVAB radio.

1968's Lotus Queen will be decided by popular vote. Each contestant will have voting boxes located in places of business throughout the city, with her picture on the boxes. Votes will be a penny a piece. Proceeds from the Festival Queen election will be equally divided between the girls' respective sponsors and the Cape Henry Woman's Club.

Contestants vying for the crown last year by 1967 Lotus Queen Linda Dixon, of First Colonial High School, are Charlotte Wade, Knapp High School (N.C.) sponsored by the Woman's Auxiliary to the Knotts Island Fire Dept. and Rescue Squad; Kathy Groceman, First

Deadly Hide and Seek Takes Place at Sea

The day was perfect - clear and cool - as the attack aircraft carrier USS Randolph cruised some 50 miles off the coast of Virginia Beach, while her officers and crew were making final preparations for an anti-submarine warfare exercise.

On the bridge the Randolph's skipper, Capt. Wynn V. Whidden, who resides with his wife Melissa and their four daughters in Bay Colony in Virginia Beach, while checking the status of preparations was explaining the significance of the exercise to those of us who were his guests for the day. He was relaxed and self-assured as he prepared for the important day ahead. On the flight deck men were fueling and arming aircraft with rockets and depth charges, while the flight crews were receiving their last minute briefings.

The sea was calm and there was little wind as the Randolph rendezvoused with three destroyers from Newport R. I., and Patuxent, Md. the USS Waldron, USS Daniels, USS Dupont; and the submarine USS Sirago also from Patuxent.

Today's problem would consist of the Sirago portraying the role of an enemy sub attempting to sink the Randolph, while the carrier's planes and helicopters joined the destroyers in seeking out and destroying the sub before it was able to carry out its mission.

While this was only another training exercise to those men of the U.S. Atlantic Fleet Hunter Killer Force, their actions and expressions were those of the same seriousness as could be expected if the Sirago were an enemy sub waiting out there.

Suddenly, the Sirago submerged beneath the surface of the Atlantic, as the destroyers wove a criss-cross pattern through waters around the Randolph searching the sub out by use of sonar. On the Randolph, flight crews had named their aircraft, and the launching of planes was accomplished smoothly and quickly. Sonar equipped Sea King helicopters, working in conjunction with the destroyers, and tracker aircraft located the killer sub.

Men of the Hunter Killer Force for the next two hours demonstrated the modern day techniques involved in destroying an enemy sub. Some of these techniques involved the time-proven method of dropping depth charges from aircraft flying above the sub's location. Others included the launching of a drone helicopter from the destroyer USS Waldron, which is guided electronically to the sub's position, where it releases a torpedo, equipped with a parachute, which when it reaches the water will "home in" on the sub for the kill.

The destroyer USS Dupont demonstrated the effectiveness of a "hedge hog" attack in destroying a sub. Projectiles are launched from the deck of the destroyer in a circular pattern over the sub's location where they explode. Missiles were brought into play in a demonstration by the destroyer USS Daniels. Pulling aboard of the Randolph the Daniels fired an ASROC missile from a platform on deck, which upon entry into the water separates from its rocket, and a homing torpedo searches out the sub.

Planes of the Randolph's air wing, in addition to dropping depth charges, also demonstrated the use of air-to-surface rockets which when fired from the planes inflict damage to the hull of a submerged sub. Upon completion of their missions the planes returned to the flight deck of the Randolph, as the destroyers regrouped around the carrier to take up escort duty.

Although the day was a busy one for Capt. Whidden, with his mind constantly occupied with the many facets of overseeing this gigantic operation, he took time to talk with the press and to invite us to an off the record discussion with Rear Adm. Charles S. Minter, Jr., Commander Hunter Killer Force, U. S. Atlantic Fleet. During this discussion Minter and Whidden expressed nothing but praise in the capabilities of our Navy's ASW Forces, and the men who man the ships and planes which make up this force in their ability to keep the sea lanes open as well as being ready to protect our shores.

They took upon their particular mission as extremely important, especially in this age of nuclear subs than can stay submerged for so long. After the demonstrations off the coast of Virginia Beach it was evident just how seriously everyone takes his job.

The students of the Armed Forces Staff College from a number of NATO countries were also aboard that April day. It was all a part of their training, but they were as impressed as the members of the press.

Capt. Whidden

Part of the aircraft attached to the Randolph included propeller-driven two and four engine planes and jet helicopters, here shown with rotor blades folded.

The destroyer Daniels and the submarine Sirago pass in review near the flight deck of the Randolph as visitors from NATO countries who were attending the Armed Forces Staff College watch with interest.

The planes race away after dropping depth charges during exercises. A submarine below would have noticed their presence one way or another.

Kiley Foresees No Bridge Soon

"I hope I live long enough to see it," laughed Charles Kiley, director of the Virginia Beach Dept. of Public Works.

He was referring to the building of a twin span of the Rudee Inlet bridge which connects Pacific Avenue with General Booth Boulevard. Both thoroughfares are four-lane. The bridge is two-lane.

Kiley confirmed the fact that City Engineer Winston Holloman has submitted a preliminary set of plans for a second span, but said there is definitely no plan to build such a bridge in the near future.

"I am sure it will be built someday, as the demand requires," said Kiley, "but right now, it isn't necessary."

He added that the south end of the beach has already grown considerably in recent years and that a great deal of additional growth is expected, but he also said that it could be many years before all this would demand a new bridge.

"It would also depend on water sewer service," said Kiley, "which the city does not have there now or plans for at present."

Kiley admitted that a tunnel under the inlet might not be such a bad idea either. The present span was built at a cost of a little more than $700,000 and opened to traffic last year.

"I am certain the state intended a twin span there someday," said Kiley. "The present bridge has a sidewalk on one side. When they built the bridge over Lynnhaven Inlet they only put in one sidewalk, and the other span they built later had the sidewalk on the opposite side."

Although traffic on the south end of the beach has been increasingly heavy in recent years and is expected to get heavier still with the opening of Rudee Inlet. (See related story on Rudee Inlet) the second span or a tunnel is still probably years away.

VFW Appoints

Conservationists Needed

Tom F. McGourin, state conservationist, USDA Soil Conservation Service, has recently advised any young people planning to attend or now attending college to acquaint themselves with the career opportunities available in soil and water conservation.

The job of a soil conservationist is always interesting according to McGourin. One day you may be engineering a farm pond; the next day helping a landowner apply erosion control practices to his land; and perhaps the third day working with Conservation District officials on a flood control project.

The Soil Conservation Service, which provides technical and engineering assistance to landowners through Soil and Water Conservation Districts, is in need of college graduates who would like this type of work. We also hire undergraduate students for summer employment McGourin said.

Students who think they might be interested in pursuing conservation work as a career should contact their local USDA Soil Conservation Service.

Make Sure You Can Put It Together

With summer close at hand, now is the time to prepare for the outdoor cooking season.

Bring your barbecue out of storage, clean it up, inspect for any rust spots and touch them up if necessary. Then lay in a supply of charcoal and you'll be ready for that first pleasant evening when the family moves outdoors and dad believes mom of her cooking chores.

If you're planning a new barbecue purchase, now is the time to shop while stores have a full stock of new 1968 models. You'll find variety, for with surveys reporting that seven out of ten American families use outdoors frequently, barbecue designers have been busy engineering grills to suit almost every mood and every occasion.

For years, the bowl-shaped brazier barbecue has been the single most popular style, but today retailers report a growing trend toward larger, better-equipped wagon and kettle-style barbecues. With their smoker cabinets, workshelves, ovens and more precise fire controls, these units are virtually outdoor kitchens, perfectly capable of turning out a full-course dinner. At the other end of the cost scale are the small, compact "convenience" grills—ideal for packing in the family car for picnics, camping or even for tailgate parties at the ballpark.

As a result, today's outdoor cook can select from among dozens of different barbecue designs with prices ranging from a few dollars to more than a hundred. With this array of different shapes, sizes and prices, careful selection of your new barbecue can both save you money and enhance your reputation as an outdoor chef. Both novice and experienced barbecuers should "shop around" carefully. Says Frank Lesselyong to Tonka Corporation, a leading barbecue manufacturer, "Here are some guidelines Tonka suggests for prospective barbecue purchasers:

- Select the barbecue that best fits your cooking needs. For simple grilling of hotdogs, Barbecues come in dozens and dozens of shapes, prices and sizes.

Assembly comes before the cookout. The eager chef should select an easily put-together barbecue.

Two-barbecue families can picnic or feast on burgers or a full-course dinner.

hamburgers and steaks, an inexpensive table-top model is quite adequate and conveniently portable for traveling. If your outdoor cooking plans are more ambitious, you'll need a larger unit, equipped with hood and motorized spit for roasts and fowl.

- While durability and performance are the most important qualities, styling has become a new consideration and recently-introduced models are designed to complement fashionable patio and deck furniture. In the barbecue fashion spotlight this year is a smart single pedestal leg.

- Often overlooked by buyers is assembly ease. Most barbecues are sold "knocked down" and the purchaser can find himself faced with the prospect of a very late dinner while he fits and tightens dozens of parts and fastenings. One manufacturer has eased this chore by pre-assembling major components at the factory and providing easily-handled food fasteners and leg sockets.

- Fire adjustment is critical for any kind of barbecue cooking. The distance from the fire to the grill determines cooking temperatures. Check carefully for the amount of adjustment provided and the operating ease of the adjustment mechanism. Most ideal is a design that adjusts the position of the firepan rather than the grill to a number of preset cooking positions.

- Hoods will add to the cost of basic barbecue units, but they perform useful functions. They reflect heat, a necessity for roasting and they shelter food and fire from the wind.

- Once considered extras, spits and motors are now included in all but the least expensive barbecues. Spit bars and forks should be sturdy enough to hold a sizeable roast or fowl. An on-off motor switch, long electric cord and a hinged mounting allowing the motor to pivot away for convenient basting are useful features.

- Design innovations have made cleaning your barbecue a simple job. Fire pans in up-to-date wagon models are removable for quick disposal of ashes and double grills are sized to fit in the kitchen sink or dishwasher for easy cleanup.

- Be sure you have the essential, nearly essential accessories for barbecuing. Spatula and fork with extra-long handles are necessary items while an extra-heavy apron and asbestos gloves will protect clothing and hands. You'll find a bulb-type clothes sprinkler or water pistol handy for dousing cooking flare-ups and a sash-size paint brush can be best for applying barbecue sauce.

Finally, take care of your barbecue and it will repay you with the fun and flavor of tasty outdoor meals. A tarpaulin or heavy plastic cover can be purchased to protect the unit while left outdoors. To prolong cooking life, line the inside with aluminum foil. It simplifies cleaning and increases cooking efficiency by reflecting heat.

QUESTION BOX

Q. The peonies are beautiful this year. How can I keep them as long as possible after picking?—Mrs. J.A. Shore Drive

A. In arranging peonies, carefully remove all of the foliage below the water line. This will prevent bacteria growth and permit the blooms to receive adequate moisture.

Q. I used some of that weed and feed you have been talking about in March and still have weeds. I complained to the manufacturer. What's the matter?—T.J., Kempville

A. You used it too early. For weed killers to be effective, the air temperature must average 60 degrees. Try it again. It will work well now.

Q. My hedge needs trimming. Is now a good time to start?—N.D., North Virginia Beach

A. Yes, and continue whenever it needs trimming again. The new electric hedge clippers make the job easy. Clipped hedges should have bases as wide or wider than the tops. The sun must be allowed to penetrate to the lower parts of the hedge. Hedges with "umbrella" tops usually are weak and open at the bottoms. Early spring is the time to renew or reshape overgrown hedges.

Q. I'm going to plant some petunias and geraniums. Should they be fertilized?—Mrs. B.J., 56th Street

A. Yes, when planting, use a small amount of fertilizer and use again once a month. There is an excellent flower food on the market, 6-22-16, available in most stores. Geraniums like bone meal and it is good to use on them only. Be sure not to water your geraniums too much. They like a dry soil.

VIRGINIA BEACH LAWNS & GARDENS

Exclusive in the Sun

Edited by four turf and garden authorities living in Virginia Beach.

Now Is Critical Time in Lawn Care

A nicely manicured lawn will do a great deal to enhance the beauty of your plantings. Therefore, this week, we will discuss some good lawn management practices which are necessary to maintain a healthy, vigorous lawn.

Mowing practices are extremely important. Grasses used in this area include varieties of fescues, rough stalk bluegrass, tall fescues, Bermuda and Zoysia and should be mowed at a height of 1 1/2 to 2 1/2 inches. Windsor Kentucky bluegrass and Merion Kentucky bluegrass will tolerate closer mowing and can be mowed at a height of 1 1/4 inches. They are not recommended for this area. In shaded areas, red fescues and rough stalk bluegrass should be mowed at a height of 2 to 3 inches. When Kentucky 31 fescue is the primary grass, a mowing height of 1 1/2 to 2 inches is desirable. Bermuda grasses should be clipped at a height of 1/2 to 3/4 inches and Zoysia 3/4 to 1 inch.

The most critical time in practicing proper mowing practices is late spring and early summer, the period we are now entering. If the grass is cut too close during this period, the turf will be weakened and annual weeds will invade the lawn. Crabgrass seeds require light to germinate. By mowing higher in May and June, the grass will be longer and help shade the crabgrass seedlings and prevent their establishment.

You shouldn't permit your lawn to grow too tall between mowings. You should never remove more than 1/3 of the green leaf area at one time. This may require more frequent mowings when the grass is growing fast in the spring and fall and less mowing during the summer. If you do allow your grass to grow tall, reduce the height gradually. Never cut it off back to the proper height in one mowing.

It is essential to have a sharp mower. It not only makes mowing easier but results in a healthier better looking turf. A sharp mower makes a clean cut instead of leaving grass leaves with ragged edges which give a whitish cast to the lawn. Reel type mowers, if working properly, are preferred for fine leaved grasses. Although rotary mowers are more versatile any may be needed for some of the coarser grasses, they do not give as clean a cut.

In most cases, clipping should be removed from the lawn. These clippings result in a build up of thatch and increase the possibility of disease and insect problems. The small amount of nutrients contained in these clippings is negligible.

Lawns should have a final feeding before the hot days of summer. If you have weeds in your lawn, now is the best time to apply a weed and feed fertilizer. The weeds will be killed and the grass fed, so it can fill up the holes the weeds leave when they die. Sometimes people complain that these products do not work; but in most every case, they have applied the product too early. Air temperature must average 60 degrees for all the weed and feed products to work effectively. Be sure the day is not windy—the dust may drift onto foliage or nearby shrubs or flowers and harm them.

Feed your lawn lightly again in July—and it should be well fed until fall. Be sure to ask your dealer for a fertilizer that is safe—something like 24-6-6, since in July you don't want any fast-acting, so-called "hot" fertilizer that can burn your lawn. Another good one that is hard to find but is good for summertime is Borden's 38.

If our rainfall is not sufficient, be sure to water your lawn once a week, in the evening, and water until you know the lawn has received 1 1/2 inch of water. An easy way to tell is set a coffee can under the sprinkling area and measure the depth of water. Do this once or twice and time it each time. Then you'll be able to tell by the time lapse, rather than measuring.

With a little extra care, by feeding now and again lightly in July, by setting up the height of your lawn mower and by watering when needed, you can have a green lawn all summer.

NOW IS THE TIME TO...

- Prepare your lawn for summer. Follow the directions in the article on this page.

- Get rid of the weeds in your lawn, either by spraying or using a weed and feed fertilizer.

- Prune your hedges and shrubs as new growth begins.

- Fertilize your azaleas and camellias for their second time, after blooming.

Garden Personals

When you leave home for a short holiday and don't have a friendly neighbor to "plant-sit" for you, the Society of American Florists suggests using this method: Place the potted plants on thoroughly soaked bath towels in the kitchen sink, bath or laundry tub, out of direct sunlight. Set the water tap so one drop of water falls on the towel every few seconds. The towel will conduct the moisture to the plant, soil. The pots, of course, must have drain holes in the bottom.

Attractive window boxes of colorful flowers or lush greenery will greatly help beautify your home and will delight the eye of passers-by. The trick to growing flowering or foliage plants in window boxes is in choosing the right plants for the place you wish to beautify. A sunny or shady location calls for the display of different kinds of plants. Petunias and geraniums are ideal for sunny locations.

Dance to Be On Deck

A dance on the hanger deck of the USS Forrestal? That's what's being planned for the benefit of the Forrestal Memorial Fund which provides, among other things, scholarships for children of servicemen killed in the fire aboard the carrier last year. Admission to the dance will be by a donation to the fund.

All square and round dancers are invited. The dance will be sponsored by the Square & Round Dance Clubs of the Tidewater area with the program conducted by Southern Chapter of HRCA from 4 to 11 p.m., on Saturday, June 1. The Forrestal will be at Pier 12 at the Naval Station. Spectators are also welcome. For further information, call 567-9806.

To give new cotton dapperies a trim, tailored look, pin pleats vertically at the bottom hem. Tie the pleats loosely together with a lightweight cotton cord and let them "set" for four or five days.

Berries Are Proof of Theory

Mr. and Mrs. Walt Elvers of Bay Colony Road look over their strawberry harvest. Two of the berries, grown in the Elvers' backyard, measure four inches in diameter.

A watched pot never boils but a cared-for strawberry flourishes. The proof is in Walt Elver's garden on Bay Colony Road, where Elver and his wife found two strawberries measuring four inches in diameter on Monday.

The Elvers, both native Norfolks who moved to Virginia Beach just a few years ago, began their strawberry patch with eight plants, six of which survived, and are making their first harvest this year.

All of the Elvers' berries are of the prize-winning variety, huge, perfect, smelling a lush home-grown sweet that supermarket, cellophane-wrapped berries will never smell. Most of the berry crop, as well as the tomatoes, asparagus and sweet peas the Elvers grow, are "given away to friends."

"It's the working, the watching them grow I enjoy," said Elver, a civilian employee working at NAS Oceana with the A-6 Intruder, jet attack plane. "Planes are exciting to some people. To me, this is exciting," he said smiling, stretching his arm to take in the whole backyard where every available space was filled with rows of plants and trained vines.

Stacked in height, the midwife kits supplied by UNICEF would be 100 times taller than the Empire State Building.

2 From Beach Are on Missing Sub

Two Virginia Beach men, whom the Navy identified as, Cmdr. Francis Slattery and Lt. Cmdr. David Lloyd are included among the men missing in the mysterious disappearance of the American nuclear submarine USS Scorpion.

Cocktails Are Closer At Beach

The cocktail before dinner in Virginia Beach has moved one step closer to reality. More than 8,000 signatures have been collected in a door-to-door campaign on petitions calling for a vote on the matter.

Phase One of the campaign, planned by a joint Virginia Beach Jaycees-Virginia Beach Chamber of Commerce committee, was to have ended last Saturday, but due to a large response has been extended until this Saturday, June 1.

Al Malhes, executive vice-president of the Chamber said that the neighborhood canvass had been highly successful; and that he was pleased not only with the response of qualified voters, but also with the hard work being done by those collecting the signatures.

"We hear that there is some dragging of the feet in other places where they are collecting signatures, but not here," said Malhes. "Our people are doing very well."

The signatures of only about 3,500 qualified voters were needed on petitions before a referendum on local option liquor-by-the-drink could be asked of the courts. Malhes said he hopes to see as many as ten to 12 thousand signatures before the petitions are turned over to the court.

After the neighborhood phase is ended, service clubs will be asked to canvass their members and petitions will be placed in public buildings, such as movie theatres.

The law allowing local option goes into effect on July 1, as passed by the 1968 session of the Virginia General Assembly. It is expected that Virginia Beach's petitions will be turned over to the court shortly after that time.

The petitions seek a referendum at the same time of the General Election in November. The court is expected to grant the referendum on that date and set up the necessary machinery.

So far there has been no organized opposition to liquor-by-the-drink in Virginia Beach under the new law, and proponents have pointed out the boon to the economy and the resort business.

At least 40 ships and 7,500 men, joined by planes, were combing a 2,000 mile stretch of the Atlantic in search of the USS Scorpion as the VIRGINIA BEACH SUN went to press. The U.S. atomic submarine, with 99 men on board was reported missing when it failed to arrive on schedule at Norfolk Monday afternoon. The search area was centered on a 50 mile wide region of the Atlantic between the Azores and the "Continental Shelf" off Norfolk.

The Scorpion was heading toward Norfolk, its home base, on a submerged run from training exercises in the Mediterranean.

'Dispute' Settled By Additional Man

Differences between the Virginia Beach Police Department and the Commonwealth Attorney's office have apparently been resolved to the satisfaction of everyone involved, with the addition of another police officer to the staff of the Commonwealth Attorney.

Vice Mayor Robert B. Cromwell, Jr., told Council that any differences there had been were "out of proportion" and that working as a mediator with both sides he had been able to help solve the dispute.

Council set Cromwell up as a committee of one to do just that after an executive session of City Council heard police officials say they could not meet Commonwealth Attorney Andrew Evans' investigative demand for pre-trial investigation and still maintain other investigative work. Evans said that he needed the pre-trial work done and made some remarks that some "Cops" considered unfortunate about the operations of the police department at that time.

But Evans apparently is satisfied with the outcome of later meetings with Cromwell and Police Chief J. E. Moore and Detective Capt. W. W. Davis. Another investigator has been added to Evans' office to work with the three assistant attorneys and another police investigator.

Cromwell reported that Chief Moore was assigning an experienced investigator, a police sergeant, to the job. He said Moore was concerned about the loss of a valuable man but did not see the necessity of hiring another man at present although Cromwell had promised Council would consider that alternative.

Chief Moore confirmed that Det. Sgt. Charles Harris, 42, will become the new investigator. Harris was with the Norfolk Police Department for eight years before coming to Virginia Beach in 1965 as a member of the Detective Bureau. He was promoted to Sgt. last year. He has attended several police schools and is known as a fine investigator.

Concerning the appointment, Chief Moore said, "In talking with the Commonwealth Attorney, he has made it clear there is a need for another man in his office, and I think the best interests of the city we should put a man there."

Following a Navy request for all ships in the Atlantic to check their records for any visual or communications contact with the Scorpion, since the last radio contact of last Tuesday, the attack transport USS Monrovia reported sighting an oil slick last Thursday about 1,300 miles almost due East of Norfolk in waters ranging to an 9,000 foot depth. As search ships converged on the site of the sighting, Navy officials in charge of the search operations said they placed little importance on the sighting at that time.

Yesterday afternoon Capt. James Hildreth, Asst. Chief of Staff Atlantic Fleet Operations, during a Norfolk press conference said Atlantic Fleet Submarine Force Commander, Vice Adm. Arnold Schade took charge of the search operations from the nuclear submarine USS Pargo at sea. Adm. Schade was in command of three subs searching the Atlantic from the Continental Shelf westward "towards Norfolk. Meanwhile another search group of four subs began moving through the Atlantic further out to sea. Ten surface ships began covering the Scorpion's projected track back towards the Azores, as a large number of submarines and surface ships began criss-crossing the Scorpion's project route. Police Board Future Cloudy As Richard Holland Resigns

One of the first orders of business of City Council Monday was to accept the resignation of Richard S. Holland as chairman of the city's Police and Trial Board effective May 20.

The terse resignation, which gave no reason, was accepted unanimously by Council without discussion. The letter reportedly had been hand delivered to City Manager W. Russell Hatchett last Friday.

No successor was named, giving rise to speculation that the Board may either be abolished or its power drastically reduced. There is also speculation that other resignations will be forthcoming from the Board in the future.

A reliable source said there is much sentiment among City

Councilmen to abolish the board entirely or to reduce it to a grievance board, but he pointed out that his has been considered for some time and has come about not as a result of recent events, pressures from anyone or in the face of political unrest.

Recent events that have brought the Board into the limelight involved Holland, who was fired by Gov. Godwin last year as a member of the State Highway Commission because of a conflict of interest matter. Although he was cleared of any wrongdoing in that matter, his actions involving highway acquisitions were called "indiscreet", and the Governor asked for his resignation. When Holland refused, he was fired.

The latest case involves purchase of police emergency equipment from a company of which Holland is president, A. Wrenn & Sons, some without competitive bid.

Holland

State Sen. Edward T. Caton III asked Virginia Attorney General Robert Y. Button for an opinion in the matter. Button ruled that Holland's company was in violation of state conflict of interest laws.

Commonwealth Attorney Andrew Evans said he had been told by Button that he could take civil action to recover the money spent with the company for the police equipment, about $2,000.

Evans, however, is also looking into other transactions involving the company and the city in the purchase of truck equipment amounting "in excess of $200,000," according to an unofficial count by Evans. Evans indicated he plans civil action against the company if Holland does not pay back the money when requested, on all transactions dating to the merger on Jan. 1, 1963.

Some months ago when the matter of the police equipment first came to light, some equipment was returned to the company and credit was received by the city.

Until the letter of resignation was received, Holland had been unavailable for any comment. The Board, created in the mid-1950's has had power over the police department, and several Councilmen have noted they were not certain what they had in the police affairs.

Several members of the Board have defended it as being free of political pressures, and support its purpose.

Council Appoints Manager

City Council officially appointed Roger M. Scott, 31, City Manager of Virginia Beach, effective July 1 to succeed retiring Manager W. Russell Hatchett.

Speaking for the selection committee, Councilman Dewey Simmons, first child of the press for "appointing" Scott before the official appointment, then went on to say there had been some reservations in the Scott appointment, but that Scott had satisfied all reservations.

The appointment was then approved unanimously. Scott thanked the members of Council and pledged his support to the citizens of Virginia Beach.

He also said later that he is still negotiating with one man to serve as his assistant, and that another was fairly certain. Both are expected to be hired by July 1.

In other action Council authorized the sale of $10 million in school bonds approved last January in a referendum. The sale will be handled by the Virginia Public School Authority and bids will be opened June 12.

Some of the schools approved are already under construction, and in order to meet commitments Council authorized a short-term loan of $2.7 million to be paid by Aug. 12 after the bonds are sold.

After a discussion of the merits of federal funds and unfulfilled commitments by the federal government in which the Department of Housing and Urban Development personnel received a burst of criticism, Council allowed Hatchett to withdraw an application for funds to defray part of the Green Run Farm property cost now borne by the city.

Hatchett said without the funds the land could be used for more purposes without federal strings. He also told Council that promised beautification funds will not be forthcoming and the city should do what it can on its own.

Council approved a fee of $25,000 for the design of the city's new golf course on land leased from Camp Pendleton by a noted golf course architect.

Still other items approved several appropriations on second reading and adopted in final action the Yarger report on city personnel which calls for raises of salaried employees.

Memorial Day Heralds Season

Memorial Day marks the official beginning of the tourist season in Virginia Beach, although the unofficial season has been open for some time, and in many cases, has never ended.

More hotels, motels and restaurants than ever before stayed open all winter here this year and the operators say they are glad they did. Generally business in the resort area has been up about ten per cent throughout the winter.

During the spring months, especially over the Easter weekend, the motels and hotels were operating at or near capacity. The weather, more pleasant this year than some in the past, has been a contributing factor, but spokesmen say that the increased advertising and promotion added to the growing reputation of Virginia Beach as a family resort has been largely responsible.

The discovery that fishing is good all year has been another added incentive for the winter and spring tourist, according to one spokesman. Al Malhes, executive director of the Chamber of Commerce, says that inquiries from prospective vacationers have been far above last year and that the tourist barometer points to a record year in 1968.

Getting into Virginia Beach will be a little easier this year also. The major test of the Virginia Beach-Norfolk Expressway begins with the Memorial Day holiday. Officials there are expecting the road to carry more than 20,000 vehicles a day.

This is expected to take some of the strain off Laskin Road and Virginia Beach Boulevard, especially at usual traffic heavy spots, such as the Bridge.

The effect on 21st and 22nd Streets in the Beach Borough is being carefully watched by traffic and planning officials. Enforcement of speed regulations in that area is expected to be rigid.

The new Colonial style administration building for city offices at Princess Anne begins to take final shape.

Council Adopts Bldg. Plans

City Council is moving ahead with plans to serve the municipal needs of government to 1990. Monday the master plan, prepared by A. J. Cheving III, for present and future municipal needs was unveiled and adopted by Council.

The plan would take in land bound by Princess Anne Rd., Courthouse Dr., Independence Blvd. Extended (when built) and North Landing Rd. roughly one superblock in which a number of city buildings are already built or are under construction.

The report also said that 17 parcels of land should be purchased as soon as possible in the area, money for which Council already has or should be budgeted over a period of years. In addition Cheving said that about 50 acres more should be acquired for still more expansion.

Several zoning matters in the area are hanging in the balance and will be considered at Council's next meeting. One application seeks to build a branch of Virginia National Bank in the complex area. Although Cheving recommended a new zoning category in the area to include "institutional-government buildings," including banks, fraternal clubs, (there is already an old Masonic Lodge in the area) and similar uses this application may still be denied as recommended by the Planning Commission, but at a meeting where a quorum was not present. (See related story.)

Another application for commercial zoning in the area would seem to be outside the projected area.

The Cheving report calls for the construction of a number of new buildings including a new circuit court, a police annex, a finance building, a public works building, a public utilities building, a new jail after the old one is torn down, a juvenile detention center, a new school administration building and a library-museum.

It also calls for additions to the administration building now under construction, to the municipal courts building, to the Circuit Court Clerk's office, and conversion of the old finance building into a youth center.

Major Winds Cause Minor Damage Here

Monetary damage estimates are still being completed as the result of a storm which moved through Virginia Beach Sunday night and Monday. The damage was attributed to a "Nor'easter" which sent rain and winds, gusting to better Approximately 400 homes in various sections of Virginia Beach were left without power for a short period of time as a result of power lines damaged by falling trees. The majority of the damage was done by winds, gusting to better of homes affected were located in the regions of Chesapeake Beach, Kempsville, and the northern end of the Virginia Beach Borough.

The storm also damaged a large section of the roof of the oceanfront covered walkway at Seaside Amusement Park; caused damage to the glass roofing of the Cavalier Hotel swimming pool, and awning of the Cavalier Beach and Cabana Club; and caused damage to the roofing of the Top Hat on the oceanfront.

A small convertible auto was reportedly blown off the Virginia Beach-Norfolk Expressway in the high winds Monday morning. However occupants of the vehicle escaped damage when the auto came to rest on the median strip between the Independence Boulevard and Witcomb Road exits. High winds resulted in officials barring house trailers from attempting to cross the Chesapeake Bay Bridge-Tunnel system, however other traffic on the span was classified as normal.

Off the Virginia Beach coast a low wind swept seas sent the tanker Lord Liddy aground approximately one mile east of the Himmle Shoals Channel. The 532-foot Greek vessel was enroute to Baltimore during the storm. Despite nearly constant winds of 50 miles an hour being reported at Cape Henry, the Virginia and Baltimore pilot boats "held their ground" on assigned positions.

Some erosion was reported along the beaches, but was not classified as serious. There was no report of damage at Rudee Inlet.

Just a few days before the official opening of the tourist season storm damage made this area of Seaside Amusement Park look like the dead of winter.

Chorus Does Justice to 'Kate'

The Virginia Beach Civic Chorus has taken on another ambitious musical production and has done it great justice. "Kiss Me, Kate" is not an easy show to do. It is a play within a play, requiring the cast to assume two separate characterizations in one evening.

Cole Porter's music, combined with a sparkling book by geniuses Sam and Bella Spewack have made this musical one of the classics of our time. But it must be well done, or it tells on its face.

Ireland

Charles Oliver has put together an admirable production, which will be presented again this weekend. He has some beautiful voices in the lead roles. Where the acting sometimes leaves something to be desired, the music makes up for it.

The biggest problem in the production is pacing. It must move quickly, and often it bogs down and moves too slowly. Too much time is spent getting an actor into position to sing a number rather than simply integrating it into the action. Often too the music drags and is not as bright as it should be. One waltz almost became a dirge, while the singers were valiantly trying to pick it up.

Scott Kunkel, as the actor and player in the Shakespearean play within a play, is outstanding. His marvelous voice and tremendous acting ability held the production together. Without him, there would be real problems.

Marie Phillips, as his ex-wife, has a fine voice and delivers some beautiful numbers. Maurice Roebuck, while handling the role adeptly, fails to build the spark needed to personify the devil-may-care gambler with a glint in his eye for the girls.

Virginia Opalia, as his girlfriend and also Graham's does a workmanlike job and shines in her solo, "I'm Always True to You Darling in My Fashion." Refreshing moments are added by Sam Ernst and Walter Haltigan as the two gangsters, especially Ernst. He is downright hilarious and deadpan throughout, and his number with Haltigan, "Brush Up Your Shakespeare" is a show-stopper.

The large cast also included Ed DeLong, Theresa Worrall, Lee Richards, Joe Worrall, Mal Ragan, Bob Furniss, Mike Orlovich, Bill Utley, Oscar Northern and a host of dancers and singers who add a great deal to the production.

It is a pleasant production, which needs to be a little more lively, but is a definite "must" for this weekend for anyone who hasn't seen it.

The Virginia Beach Civic Chorus has attempted through the years to bring good entertainment to the city, and deserves a good audience and much support.

Academy Deadline Is May 24

Sen. William B. Spong, Jr., of Virginia has set May 24 as the deadline for applications to his office by young men interested in appointments to the United States service academies for the entering classes of 1969.

He said that he intends to nominate one applicant and several alternates to each of the academies, including the U.S. Military Academy at West Point, N.Y., the Naval Academy at Annapolis, Md., the Air Force Academy at Colorado Springs, Colo., and the Merchant Marine Academy at King's Point, N.Y.

Senior to Be Picked

Eighteen Princess Anne Seniors have been nominated for the 1968 "Outstanding Senior" award presented annually at Princess Anne.

The nominees are: Andrea Benda, Terry Brennen, Barbara Byrtus, Terri Chisholm, Kacey Chull, Tom Cooper, Charles DeJesse, Phil Bill Felchner, Nancy Harris, Jeffrey Jewett, John Kiefer, Lawrence Marshall, Jeff McKain, Barbara Schubert, Debbie Via, Marsha Wade, Robert Woodridge and Norma Jean Wright.

The winner will be announced at an awards ceremony during second bell May 29 at Princess Anne.

Contenders were nominated by teachers. They were rated by a scale of: scholarship, 100 points maximum; loyalty, 40 points maximum and achievement, 40 points maximum.

The Princess Anne High School Band, under the direction of Ronald C. Collins, took first place as a civilian marching unit in the Armed Forces Day Parade. Senior drum major is Bill Brisbois; Jim Basgier is junior drum major.

Next Wednesday, May 29, is Senior Day at Princess Anne. Starting off with an Awards Assembly first bell, Seniors will be allowed to wear caps and gowns all day.

Princess Anne Senior, Diane O'Rourke has been selected as the winner of the Virginia Education Association President's Scholarship for Future Teachers for District L of the VEA Association for 1968.

The scholarship, in the amount of $500, is awarded to encourage preparation for entrance in the teaching profession. By teaching in the Virginia public schools for one year, the recipient can cancel all obligation for repayment. Diane plans to attend the College of William and Mary.

Academy Students Train On Special Weapons Range

This past week marked the first time men of the Tidewater Police Academy, which opened recently at Old Dominion College in Norfolk, received formal firearms training on the Virginia Beach police special weapons range.

The group was composed of 31 men who recently joined the police departments of Virginia Beach, Norfolk, Chesapeake and Hampton. The Virginia Beach men were officer Richard L. Allen, attached to the Second Police Precinct and officer Gordon C. Burton attached to Third Police Precinct.

Each of the men prior to undergoing "range training" had received several hours of classroom instruction and indoor range firing for familiarization. The range training consisted of firing police revolvers at "man sized" silhouette targets from distances of 7, 15 and 25 yards, with each man being scored on accuracy as well as the manner in which he conducted himself while firing from various positions.

During the program the men were directed by special firearms instructors from the Norfolk FBI Office, who were assisted by Capt. R.C. Davis, Second Police Precinct C.O., and several men of the precinct.

Men of the Tidewater Police Academy take their positions on the firing line as the range is put into use for the first time in group training of police officers from Tidewater cities.

Capt. Davis, who is in charge of training on the range, told the VIRGINIA BEACH SUN that while the men received only basic instruction in firearms training, due to the limitation of time which could be devoted to the program, they would leave the range qualified to a degree to form a nucleus of instructors in formal firearms training programs within their own departments. Davis also told the VIRGINIA BEACH SUN he and the FBI instructors were very pleased with the showing the men made in their initial appearance on the special weapons range.

The men made up the second class to graduate this year from the Tidewater Police Academy at Old Dominion College in Norfolk. John Coney, assistant special agent in charge of the Norfolk office of the FBI was featured speaker for graduation exercises.

The next class in the Academy began training Monday, under the guidance of Prof. Ronald Spector and James A. Austin.

Demos Pick Delegates

The Virginia Beach Democratic Convention gets underway at 7:30 tonight in the circuit court building at Princess Anne.

Delegates elected at a May 1 meeting of the city Democratic committee will select 31 representatives tonight, who will in turn attend the State Democratic Convention at Salem in July for the city of Virginia Beach.

Young McCarthyites won the day at last week's mock Democratic convention at Princess Anne High School, with approximately 2,000 votes for their man against some 800 votes for his closest competitor Humphry.

YOUR NEW HOMETOWN BANK IS COMING TO VIRGINIA BEACH...MAY 28th

The First
Colonial
Bank

No more rushing to get to the bank before it closes. The First Colonial Bank, Virginia Beach's newest bank, stretches your business day... bank 9 to 6 Monday through Thursday and from 9 to 7 on Friday. First Colonial Bank is the Day Stretcher!

MALIBU TOWERS
ACROSS FROM PRINCESS ANNE PLAZA

First Colonial Bank Opens Friday

Months of planning and hard work have produced gratifying results for those Virginia Beach citizens who have sought to give their community its own banking institution. The First Colonial Bank, the result of these cumulative efforts, opened for business yesterday.

The new bank, headquartered at Malibu Towers in the 3500 block of Virginia Beach Blvd., already has a history which dates back many months to 1966. At that time, the desirability of a local bank was apparent to several Virginia Beach residents. These prominent business and professional men combined their efforts and, with the aid of Virginia Commonwealth Bankshares, a statewide bank holding company, received a bank charter from the State Corporation Commission on Aug. 25, 1967.

James W. Buffington, formerly vice president and trust officer with The Bank of Virginia in Norfolk, was elected to head the new bank. As the first president and chief executive officer, Buffington is active in numerous banking and civic organizations. He is currently chairman of the Virginia Beach School Board, treasurer of the Southeastern Tidewater Opportunity Project and a member of the Board of Trustees of Hampton Roads Educational Television.

With a capital account of $500,000, the First Colonial Bank has a board of directors of prominent business and professional men who represent a broad cross-section of occupations and activities. Membership on the board includes: Frederick Deane, Jr., Frank W. Kellam, Lawrence A. Santicillo, James J. Gara, Austin E. Owen and James W. Buffington.

Deane, a native of Boston and graduate of the Harvard School of Business and currently president of Virginia Commonwealth Bankshares, will act as chairman of the board.

Frank W. Kellam, president of Kellam and Eaton, Inc. and one of the bank's organizers, resides at Princess Anne Station in Virginia Beach. A native of Virginia Beach, Kellam is active in numerous civic and social organizations. He is president of the Virginia Beach Chamber of Commerce, chairman of the Virginia Beach Development Council, and past president of the Virginia Beach Rotary Club.

Austin E. Owen, III, a Virginia Beach attorney with Owen and Guy, is a native of Norfolk. Owen was president of the Virginia Beach Bar Association in 1967. He currently holds membership in the Virginia and American Bar Associations.

Lawrence A. Santicillo, president of Larasan Realty and Insurance Corporation, is a member of the board of directors and one of the original organizers. Santicillo, who is president of the Tidewater Association of Homebuilders, is also on the board of directors of the General Hospital of Virginia Beach.

James J. Gara, commissioner of the Norfolk Port and Industrial Authority, brings years of experience as a retail executive to the new bank. This year he retired as district manager of the Tidewater Area for Sears, Roebuck & Company. Active in numerous civic organizations, Gara is a trustee of the James Barry Robinson Home and a director of the DePaul Hospital and the Salvation Army.

With its opening, The First Colonial Bank will reserve for itself a unique position in the Virginia banking community: it is one of the few Virginia banks which have opened for business with a second location already approved by banking authorities and under construction. The second office of The First Colonial Bank, located at Jeanne Street and Independence Blvd. in Pembroke West Shopping Center, is scheduled to open about July 1st of this year.

Commenting on the future of Tidewater's newest bank, Buffington, stated, "Virginia Beach has long needed a local bank geared to the needs of Virginia Beach citizens. The First Colonial Bank plans to begin business as a progressive banking organization offering the highest level of service and most modern of banking methods. We will place heavy emphasis on personalized banking service."

Calling itself the "Day-Stratcher" in its advertising, the new bank will open from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. Mondays through Thursdays and 9 a.m. to 7 p.m. on Fridays. The drive-in facility will open at 8:30 a.m. each day.

Grand Opening Ceremonies are scheduled from 4 to 7 p.m. on Friday, May 31st and 11 a.m. to 6 p.m. on Saturday, June 1st. A number of prizes will be given away.

One unique feature of the new full service bank is no charge for checking accounts provided a minimum balance of $150.00 is maintained.

"The Ribbon Cutting Ceremonies" will be held at 5 p.m. Friday, May 31st with Mayor Frank Dusch and other City officials participating.

F.M. Halsey will serve as vice-president and R.G. Appenzeller is cashier.

Thoroughgood Is Named Winner

These grade-schoolers take-off in one of the 50-yard dash events at Thursday's city-wide Field Day at Cox.

The tenth annual elementary school field day for Virginia Beach was held Thursday, May 23, at Frank W. Cox High School. Participating in the meet were 1,430 children from 33 schools competing in grade levels of the fourth through seventh grade.

Steve Chipcock, of the Health and Physical Education Department of the city school system, which sponsored the meet, said that in three more years it may be necessary to divide the meet into several separate grade-level meets, because of the growing number of children involved.

Thoroughgood Elementary School was the over-all winner for the meet, with a cumulative 99 2/3 points for all of its grades participating. The highest number of points, and first place awards, at grade level went to Hermitage, 24 fourth grade; Thoroughgood, 26 fifth grade; Thoroughgood, 34 sixth grade and Hermitage, 36 seventh grade.

Winners of the individual events, according to grade levels, were:

GOP Plan Primaries

Republicans, never strong in Virginia Beach, have moved to strengthen party chances next year by voting to hold a GOP primary in the city in 1969. Republicans have been selecting their candidates at mass meetings in the past, but in 1969 will hold their first primary on the same date as the Democratic primary. The GOP plans to nominate candidates to the Virginia House of Delegates at that time. No mention has been made of any other offices.

The Democrats, on the other hand, will be nominating on that day not only candidates for the House of Delegates but also for Governor of Virginia. That race is expected to be hotly contested, especially in Tidewater.

The city GOP chairman, John A. Field III, said the primary plan was approved unanimously and that he has consulted the city Electoral Board concerning the machinery of setting up the primary vote.

Field added that a loyalty oath will be inaugurated at the same time and that he anticipates certain safeguards on voting machines to prevent party line crossings.

Field added, "The use of primaries represents a giant step forward giving Virginia Beach a competitive two-party system."

Police File Charges; Victims File Suits

Two weeks after a grinding crash at a quiet residential intersection between an automobile and a van-type school bus loaded with youngsters, the driver of the bus still faces at least four more months of hospitalization.

Mrs. Jo Ann Robinson, 27, of Dauphin Lane in Virginia Beach, was the most severely injured when the Frere Jacques private school bus was involved in a collision in Southern Points at the intersection of General Beauregard and General Longstreet Drives.

It was early afternoon and the bus was taking 14 students home from school. Mrs. Robinson's 2-year-old son was also aboard sitting by his mother. The bus discharged a passenger two doors from the intersection and moved forward preparing to turn left.

Decals Indicate Invalids

Special decals are now available to residents of the city of Virginia Beach to indicate the homes of invalids. The decals have been designed to assist firemen or other persons to quickly locate invalid or aged persons who may require special care in the event of a fire or other emergency.

The decals contain a large "I" on a red shield background and have been chemically treated in order that they will "glow in the dark". The decals are furnished in two sizes; a large decal to be placed on the front door of homes of invalids, with a smaller decal which is placed on the room occupied by the invalid.

While the invalid decals have been under study for some time, this marks the first time they have been offered to residents of Virginia Beach. Anyone who desires to obtain the decals for use at their homes may obtain them free of charge by simply contacting the nearest fire station.

Church Sets Dedication

Princess Anne Plaza United Methodist Church will have a service of consecration for the new educational building, Sunday, June 2, at eleven a.m. The new building consists of 16 classrooms, two offices and rest rooms. A new parking lot has also been included in the building program. The new facilities are adjoining the existing multi-purpose building at 208 S. Plaza Trail in Princess Anne Plaza.

Participating in the consecration services will be Dr. John Blakemore, former executive secretary of the Virginia Conference Board of Education, and Miss Rebecca Tow, Director of Children's Work, Virginia Conference Board of Education.

A car, driven by Mrs. Kathleen Ullaki, 24, smashed into the bus at the front left, where Mrs. Robinson was sitting. The impact spun the bus around and overturned it, while the car continued for a distance on to two yards and striking a house before stopping. Mrs. Ullaki has been charged with failing to yield right-of-way to the school bus.

Remarkably injuries were mostly minor. Most of those involved were treated at emergency rooms and released. Last week at this time only three remained hospitalized. They were Mrs. Robinson, her son, Troy, and Michael Bowman, nine, who was being treated for contusions and fractures. Bowman was discharged a few days later, but has been readmitted to the General Hospital of Virginia Beach where he is now listed in satisfactory condition. Troy Robinson, who received a concussion and other injuries, has been released from King's Daughters Hospital in Norfolk.

Mrs. Robinson suffered a fractured skull and a broken neck among other injuries, and long after her months in traction in the hospital will require additional home care, according to school officials at Frere Jacques.

They have started a fund to help her defray some of the medical costs. Mrs. Alberts Neal, director of the school, said her husband is employed with a Virginia Beach firm as an electrician and that Mrs. Robinson had been working to help support her three small children. Mrs. Neal also said that her not being able to work will be a hardship on the family, along with her injuries.

The campaign to raise funds was kicked off by students at the school, but Mrs. Neal said much more is needed. Anyone wishing to help may do so by mailing contributions to: Mrs. Ann Robinson, in care of Frere Jacques School, 2100 Harbor Lane, Virginia Beach, or in care of the VIRGINIA BEACH SUN, P.O. Box 657, Virginia Beach, Va. 23451.

Seven civil suits have already been filed in the matter. Attorney Richard Brydges filed the suits totaling $400,000 for the James B. Robinson family.

The suits lists the driver of the car, Mrs. Ullaki, as defendant. Mrs. Robinson is suing for $250,000 for her injuries and the husband of the driver is suing for his three children who were injured on the bus. For Troy, he seeks $75,000 for injuries and for $7,500 for out-of-pocket medical expenses. For James D. Robinson, Jr., he is suing for $25,000 for injuries and $2,500 for medical expenses, and for Cindy Louise, 6, he is seeking $35,000 for injuries and $3,500 for medical expenses.

Partolman Mondoza Holloway celebrated his 65th birthday by retiring from the Virginia Beach police department after 16 years of service. During a special ceremony at 2nd precinct, Capt. R.C. Davis, precinct C.O., presented Holloway a full line of fishing gear for which men of all the precincts "chipped in" to purchase.

Tourists Get Paper

Yes, Virginia Beach, there is something new under the SUN, to turn a couple of phrases... rather badly.

The Beach Publishing Corp., publishers of the VIRGINIA BEACH SUN, today began circulation of a new tabloid newspaper for tourists, the WINDJAMMER.

The WINDJAMMER is a 30,000 circulation tourist guide distributed to motels, hotels, restaurants, and newsstands in Virginia Beach. A number of large motels and hotels will distribute complimentary copies to guests.

In addition the new paper will be sent to Virginia information centers in Washington, D.C. and New York City, as well as those across the state.

Contained in the WINDJAMMER is news about Virginia Beach, for tourists and helpful items designed to make their stay in the city more enjoyable. Such things as church listings, tides, fishing news, hotel-motel and restaurant news, radio and TV guide, entertainment listings and camping information are all included.

Jack Harris, general manager and executive director of Beach Publishing Corp., said, "The businessmen of Virginia Beach deserve a pat on the back for their support of this new venture."

He added that their acceptance of the WINDJAMMER had been "excellent" and noted the public reception of the new publication had been "even better than we hoped."

The WINDJAMMER will be published on Wednesday at least for the next 15 weeks.

Regatta Is Set Saturday

The Eighth Annual Broad Bay Regatta, sponsored by the Broad Bay Sailing Association and sanctioned by the Chesapeake Bay Yacht Racing Association, is slated for this weekend at Broad Bay.

Registration will be at the Narrows in Seashore State Park, west on 64th Street from the highway, from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Saturday. The standard CNYRA Race Entry Blank will be available there, and should be in the hands of the BBSA Race Committee by 10:45 a.m. Saturday.

The warning signal for the first race will be sounded at 12 noon Saturday. The second race will immediately follow the first.

NORFOLK PORTSMOUTH VIRGINIA BEACH

BADGES & BANTER

By Les Lehigh

Men of the Virginia Beach police department are faced with another challenge of the regional golf links. Lt. J. M. Booher and Sgt. C. S. Turner, attached to the Norfolk State Police Hqs., says their men will field a team against department golfers in a "no holds barred" match.

Special ceremonies will be held at 1 p.m. this Saturday in the formal opening of the new Plaza-Windsor Woods Fire Station at Rosemont Road and Plaza Trail. Among dignitaries invited to attend the event are State Sen. Edward T. Calton, III, City Manager W. Russell Hachett, Mayor Frank Dusch, Sidney Kellam and Ivan Mapp. Men of the Plaza Volunteer Fire Co. and Rescue Squad will be on hand during the open house, from 11 a.m. to 5:30 p.m., to conduct tours of the building and explain operation of the company.

Congratulations are in order for Linda Middaugh working part time in the central files section of police headquarters at Princess Anne Courthouse. Linda, who will go on full time status following graduation, has been named the outstanding business student, among her fellow distributive education students, at First Colonial High School.

Men of the Virginia Beach Shore Patrol Detachment are proud of P.O. 2C, Alton E. Bellomy, and rightly so. Bellomy has received a letter of personal thanks from the parents of a young man who Bellomy pulled from a wrecked auto in a recent accident. We understand Bellomy being first to arrive at the scene applied first aid to the injured youth, resulting in a stoppage of profuse bleeding until the rescue squad were able to arrive on scene.

Men of the Thalia Volunteer Fire Dept. will join members of the units Ladies Auxiliary this Sunday in special ceremonies marking the progress made by the department since October of 1952. Chief Tommy Kay says the public is invited to attend the open house ceremonies, and that refreshments will be served beginning at 2 p.m.

Sources tell us Capt. W. J. Moore, Jr., 3rd Police Precinct C. O., has picked up a new "nickname." We understand Capt. Moore is now being referred to as "Doc," and the title is an honor in line with medical training in his fraternal organization.

Men of the 2nd Police Precinct really "stole the show" while fishing last Sunday in Oregon Inlet. Sgt. C. E. Sorey, Sgt. N. C. Morse, Officers J. T. Haley and C. E. Gmitter, along with a friend Ronald Harman, brought back 12 "blues" which weighed in between 8 and 13 pounds. Fishing from the party boat "Gulf Stream," skippered by Bill Austin, the group earned the title of "top boat of the day" with their catch.

Beach Jaycees Plan Baseball Competition

Baseball addicts between the ages of eight and 13 will have a chance to test their skills on the diamond competitively this summer when the Virginia Beach Jaycees, along with other Jaycee groups in the state, will sponsor for the first time the "Personna Baseball Grand Slam," with the American Safety Razor Company.

According to Robert M. Stanton, local Jaycee president, it is hoped that the new baseball summer project will soon be the equivalent of the Jaycees' already-established "Punt, Pass and Kick" program, sponsored by the Jaycees with the Ford Motor Company.

Boys entering the contest will compete against other boys in their age-group to test their skill at base-running, throwing, and batting for distance.

Charles to Retire

Edwin Charles, Princess Anne High School's assistant principal, retires this spring after 14 years on the school's faculty.

Goodbyes for Charles, a favorite with both teachers and students at PA, are already in the works—including a special edition of the school paper devoted largely to him, and an oil portrait.

The portrait of Charles was painted by Princess Anne Spanish 1 and 11 teacher Ken Cauthen, who paints "for a hobby" usually in oils. Portrait artist Cauthen began the painting in December, working from a photograph of Charles provided by Princess Anne's annual staff.

Charles, who came to Princess Anne County as a teacher in 1949 and who has continued in the Princess Anne-Virginia Beach school system since, plans to "work in the yard, read, play golf, bowl and even do a little writing" after his retirement.

The first project will be a history of Princess Anne High School, said Charles. "After that, I'd like to try my hand at short stories," he added. A mathematics and physical education teacher before he accepted the assistant principalship at Princess Anne, Charles has developed a rare rapport with his students—a unique quality in any school's disciplinarian. The Cauthen portrait will hang in his office at the high school until his retirement, "so the students can share it with me," said Charles.

His wife, Jo, for many years was principal of Kempsville Elementary School. This year she was appointed elementary supervisor.

Cue Invites Women to Play

The Cue, a billiard center for both men and women, has opened at Oceana.

Operated by Cue, Inc., a subsidiary of Bender, Inc., the new establishment caters to families and couples.

The decor is that of plush Roaring Twenties with wall to wall carpeting. The management emphasizes the wholesome atmosphere and encourages female participation in the game.

Hours are from noon to midnight, seven days a week. The Cue is located at First Colonial Road and Virginia Beach Blvd., Oceana.

The Cue, Inc. also operates another similar establishment at 2104 Atlantic Avenue, Virginia Beach.

FBI Uses New Range In Beach

The special weapons range of the Virginia Beach Police department has been chosen by the Norfolk office of the FBI for firearms training of regional special agents. The range, located off Seaboard Road near Princess Anne Court-house, was chosen because it is closer to the office than the range in Newport News, which had been used for some time.

Robert Hancock, recently named as Special Agent in Charge of the Norfolk FBI Office, made his first appearance on the range last Thursday. Hancock joined 18 special agents in training with .38-caliber service revolvers and shotguns, as the agents went through their paces from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Present plans call for the FBI Agents to continue routine training programs on the Virginia Beach range at regularly scheduled intervals.

The FBI Agents were joined in last Thursday's practice session by Capt. R. C. Davis, 2nd Police Precinct C.O., and range training officer, Capt. W. W. Davis, Detective Bureau C.O., and officer R. A. Morrison, who is attached to the 2nd precinct.

While the Virginia Beach special weapons range was constructed primarily for use by the city's police department, the range has been made available to other law enforcement agencies of the region. The Norfolk FBI agents being invited to make use of the range was in line with this policy.

Although the range is being used at regular intervals, Capt. R. C. Davis told the VIRGINIA BEACH SUN additional improvements are still being made on the facility, and such work is expected to continue for some time. This work is being done by the men of the Virginia Beach police department.

Motel Plans To Enlarge

The Holiday Sands Motel on the south end of the oceanfront in Virginia Beach borough is planning a major expansion, according to a spokesman for the corporation which owns the motel.

S. A. Karageorge, president and co-owner said that two lots on 11th Street adjacent to the present sites had been purchased recently for the expansion at a cost of about $95,000.

Eventually 60 new motel units will be built on this property, according to Karageorge, but he hopes to have about 40 new units ready for the summer season in 1969.

Additional plans call for new features in the new units and modernization of the present facilities which were built in 1954. This is the second season of operation by the present owners.

Demos Plan For July

The Virginia Beach Democratic convention moved quickly to elect its delegates to the State convention to be held July 27 in Salem. At that time Virginia delegates to the Democratic national convention in Chicago will be selected.

A large field filed as delegates to the state convention and 208 were actually chosen to represent the city in Salem, Virginia Beach only has 31 votes in the convention, but 144 of the delegates will each have a one-sixth vote while the remaining 64 will share a one-ninth vote.

The 31 votes, when cast however, will be under the unit rule. A resolution was adopted by 40 members of the city delegates unanimously. Thirty-six city delegates were not at the meeting.

No presidential candidates were discussed at the short meeting, and Owen Pickett, chairman of the city Democratic committee said it is not known which candidates the state delegates favor, if any.

Scorpion

from Norfolk, Bermuda and the Azores were engaged in the search operations as others were being made ready yesterday afternoon.

While Navy officials, as of yesterday, had not released a full listing of those on board the Scorpion at the time of her disappearance they did identify two Virginia Beach men. Authorities listed the Scorpion's skipper as 36-year-old Cmdr. Francis Slattery, who made his home with his wife Dorothy and their three children at Dolly Madison Court, and the subs' executive officer as Lt. Cmdr. David Lloyd, who made his home on Edinburgh Drive, with his wife Rebecca and their four children.

Lack of Quorum Bats Zero for Planners

The City Planning Commission "struck out" on its presentations to City Council Monday.

Four of its recommendations were questioned when it became known by Council that a quorum was not present at a called meeting to study several applications. City Attorney Harry Marshall ruled that the recommendations could not be binding.

Those involved were a request by Virginia National Bank to build a branch bank near City Hall, a request of Nustbaum Real Estate Trust for a zoning change to commercial on land adjoining the municipal area, an application for a use permit for a used car lot by D & M Motors on Diamond Springs Rd., and an application of Ferebee's Inc. to build a pumping station to serve sewer needs of a new section of Windsor Woods.

The latter application was called "urgent" by attorney Donald Rhodes, but Council decided it could not act because of the quorum problem.

The problem prompted Vice Mayor Robert B. Croftwell, Jr. to say "this put Council in an embarrassing position." He said he was disturbed that a quorum of the 15 members was not present and said he wanted to know why. He suggested the commission was extremely important to the orderly operation of the city and noted that if these members could not make the meetings then Council should "give serious consideration to replacing them with someone who can."

No one present remembered the matter ever coming up before, and Planning Director Patrick Standing said another called meeting was planned June 3 to consider the applications before Council's next meeting, June 13.

Members of the commission who were not present later gave several reasons for not attending, mostly stating that they were bound to regular occupational duties.

In matters that could be considered by Council, an application by Herbert Kramer for rezoning for a housing subdivision adjoining Thoroughgood was again deferred for two weeks when it was found that Council and Kramer had been suggesting modifications and trying to satisfy everyone in opposition through the use of two separate plans.

The only other matter concerned an application to operate a restaurant at a new motel near 22nd St. and Atlantic Ave. This too was deferred for two weeks until Council could examine a lease and see the design of a nearby parking lot to be used by the restaurant customers.

Beach Tour To Start

Memorial Day, May 30, the Virginia Beach Tour, sponsored by the Chamber of Commerce, goes into action for the first time. The final draft of the Tour was approved last week by the Chamber's Tour Committee, headed by B. M. Stanton.

The Tour, a self-guided motor tour by private car, will include seven attractions: The Old Cape Henry Lighthouse, the 1807 Landing Cross Memorial, Seashore State Park, Little Creek Amphibious Base, Adam Thoroughgood House, Oceana Naval Air Station and the Norwegian Lady.

A color brochure, containing pictures of the seven sites and their descriptions, along with a map clearly showing street and highway routes to each location will be distributed free of charge through Beach hotels and motels.

The Tour will be a loop trip into the Northern section of the city. The first Tour sponsored by the Chamber of Commerce, this summer will determine whether or not the Tour will be continued next summer. If it is popular and successful with tourists this summer, it will be expanded to include a trip into the southern section of the city next year.

In addition to the brochure, distinctive Tour roadside signs will be an added help in helping newcomers to Virginia Beach find their way along the tour.

time for patrolling thoroughfares with as many motorcycles as possible; to back up the usual patrol cars. He said he did not anticipate any extra working hours for his men.

Bryan added, "This holiday will also mark the patrolling of the waters of the area by the department's runabout police boat."

Virginia State Police, who control the Expressway, plan no unusual enforcement, but will be on continual patrol of the road.

Lt. J. M. Booher, of the State Police, said, "We'll be there not only to enforce the law but also to offer whatever assistance may be required to motorists in distress."

More Amor!
Today's hit songs in the warm Latin style of Andy Russell

Take one great pop singer, freeze him for ten years, then thaw him out and what have you got? Right; one blue-skinned, beat-up warbler fresh back from a decade's trip whose pipes are probably in a state of permanent petrification.

So let's mix that promise right away when describing the return of Andy Russell. He's back and bolting—with the same brilliant buoyancy as before.

For the young, who don't know Andy Russell, he's the man who incredibly had the intestinal fortitude to walk away from a string of hits that would pop the eyes of any pop troupe today. "Amor, Amor," "What a Difference a Day Makes," "Magic Is the Moonlight," etc. etc. and many more classics. He fled to Alaska like a man might flee a nine to five job that gave him little pleasure and less pay.

In the summer of 1955, after a very successful engagement at L.A.'s world-famous Coconut Grove, the enigmatic young Russell packed his gear and went to Mexico. Lots of folks thought it was a case of temporary insanity. The more compassionate attributed it to a soul-searching mission, a need to find his ancestral roots. There were as many theories as there were theorists, for it was impossible to conceive of a singer of Russell's stature, the same affable, handsome crooner who in 1947 had replaced Frank Sinatra as featured singer on the famed "Lucky Strike Hit Parade," just chucking it all.

Whatever his reasons, they do not matter. The fact is he kept on singing and his fame continued to spread like a fire in a parched forest throughout Latin America and the world. This foreign phase culminated three years ago, when he completed his starring role in the Barcelona production of "The Wizard of Dreams." Once again, he had reached the summit. And once again, he abandoned it; to come home to stay. We want to say—welcome back, Andy.

Mrs. Ujlaki to Appear

Mrs. Kathleen Ujlaki of First Colonial Road is scheduled to appear in court on June 26, as a result of an accident two weeks ago which left 17 persons injured. Mrs. Ujlaki was identified as the driver of an auto involved in a collision with a private bus from the Frere Jacques School at the intersection of General Beauregard and General Longstreet drives. Police said Mrs. Ujlaki has been charged with failing to yield the right of way in the accident at the unmarked intersection. The accident not only resulted in the injury of the drivers of both vehicles, but also of the injury of 15 children. Most of the children were passengers on the bus who were being transported from school to their homes in the Southern Point region of the city.

Bridge department store. A second murder charge was filed against the youth when his first appearance in court on the charge ended in a mistrial on a legal technicality.

Glue Suspected

An 18-year-old Virginia Beach youth was hospitalized last weekend following an illness which officials attributed to glue sniffing. Police said the youth was discovered Friday afternoon in an incoherent condition by his mother at the family's home. Men of the Davis Corner Rescue Squad were called upon to transport the youth to the Oceana NAS dispensary. Lt. Henry Cappe, police youth bureau director, said he preferred not to identify the youth pending further investigation of the incident, and the possible placing of any criminal charges which may result from the investigation.

Boone Sentenced to Life

Circuit Court Judge George Vagos has sentenced Leroy Boone to life in prison. Boone, 19, of Bayside Road, received the life sentence on conviction of the January armed robbery of the L. M. Sandler & Sons seafood company on Diamond Springs Road. A 20-year prison sentence was also given Boone following his conviction of statutory burglary of the firm. Officials said upwards of $20,000 in cash, bonds, jewelry and other valuables was taken from the firm by three men who held the nightman, Julius Selby, at bay at gunpoint during the robbery.

Firecrackers Are Illegal

Police officials are again reminding residents of Virginia Beach it is a violation of the law to make use of, buy, sell, or possess firecrackers in the resort city. The reminder was issued following the injury of a 13-year-old boy as he and five other youngsters were playing on the patio of his General Stuart Drive home. Investigators said Tony Tanner Jr. sustained a cut lip when a firecracker exploded after being tossed into the midst of the children. Young Tanner was released following emergency room treatment at the General Hospital of Virginia Beach.

Wreck Victim Dies

A 17-year-old Lynnhaven Borough youth has become the fourth traffic fatality of the year in Virginia Beach. Police identified him as Boyd Woodard of Wildwood Drive. Young Woodard succumbed early Monday morning to injuries received last month in a single auto accident on Sandbridge Road. Five other high school students were also injured in the accident.

Bowlers Head for Washington

Leon Dudley and Lola Darden won the local roll-off Saturday, May 4 in Brunswick Plaza Bowl's "Bow Your Way to Europe" Tournament.

Mrs. Eloise Gumm, Manager of Brunswick Plaza Bowl, announced the results. She added, "Our two local champions will now represent this center in the National Tournament Finals scheduled for Washington, D.C. May 29-31."

Dudley, who lives on Laverder Lane, bested 19 other male bowlers to capture the title. He rolled 211 in his first game, 62 pins over his 149 average.

Mrs. Darden, who lives at Baldwin Street, won the woman's title on a 225 game, 78 pins over her 147 average.

Dot Baird, 147 Avenue, Norfolk, had the high game for the women and won the trip to Washington.

THE LONG PULL

US SPOTS

By H. Joseph Lowenthal, Jr.

"Certainly I think my child's graduation is important," he said. "... Her graduation from high school, college or even business school, but for crying out loud... from kindergarten?"

"You have to remember it's a big moment in her life," she said. "It represents the end of something very important to her and the beginning of something else."

"Oh, don't be so dramatic," he said. "It represents the end of her year in kindergarten for which I have paid so dearly and the beginning of a long time in regular school, beginning, like so many others have done before her, with the first grade."

"You have no sentimentality left in you," she said.

"You can't be a sentimentalist and write for a newspaper. The public won't let you," he added quickly. "They want blood, guts and gore. But no matter what, I just can't take the time off from that to watch her graduate from kindergarten."

"But it will be so impressive," she said. "She'll be walking down the aisle in her little white dress..."

"She doesn't own a little white dress," he interrupted.

Magna Cum Very Loudly

"She does now," she said. "I had to buy it for the commencement exercises. The paper they sent home specified a white dress and you wouldn't want her to be any different from anyone else, would you?"

"Of course not. Just like at Christmas when we could barely find her on that stage in the chorus because she had to have a new white blouse and new dark blue skirt to she wouldn't be any different from anybody else."

"Don't you remember last year when she graduated from nursery school? Wasn't that beautiful?"

"Marvelous, only I couldn't understand any of that kid's valedictory address," he said. "It sounded like he was calling for the entire class to go to the bathroom."

"Now don't be ridiculous," she said. "No child made the valedictory address, and the teacher couldn't help it if the ceremonies were interrupted by the little boy that yelled to his mother that he had to go."

"Well, they did give our daughter a nice diploma and a lovely paper four-cornered hat with a tassel," he said. "Of course, she can't even read the diploma from nursery school yet. And I guess she gets a new one from kindergarten."

"I still think you ought to be there," she said.

"Tell you what, I'll promise you to be there for her high school graduation, her college graduation and even her wedding, in that order, if you give me a rain check on this one," he promised.

"I have to work, and wouldn't I sound silly if I said, 'I can't work today, my daughter is graduating from kindergarten?' Now think about it."

"She'll be very disappointed," he said.

"I'll send her a nice present," he said. "What is her silver pattern?"

"She doesn't have one yet."

"Really? And already graduating from kindergarten? Tsk, tsk."

"Don't be facetious."

"Hey, why don't you take my mother? She likes that sort of thing. She'll probably bawl. She cries at anything—weddings, funerals, Bar Mitzvahs, Rose Bowl parades, anything."

"She's already going, and your father is taking off from work to be there," she said in a aloof manner.

"OK, I know when I'm licked," he said. "I'm outnumbered. I'll be there, but can't we send out some announcements of this momentous occasion. Maybe all the relatives will send presents."

Trial By Publicity

The merits of the Virginia Beach Police and Trial Board are not at stake in recent developments concerning its chairman, Richard Holland, who resigned effective May 20.

Whether it should be abolished or not is the business of the elected representatives of the citizens of Virginia Beach—the City Council, and the business of City Manager W. Russell Hatcher.

They definitely do not need the advice and nagging of editorials in a Norfolk newspaper to decide what to do. On two occasions that newspaper has sought to give Council the wisdom of its counsel—counsel not asked for and not necessary from that same newspaper which so often can do no more than criticize the city of Virginia Beach.

A law is a law, and if the allegations of Sen. Caton and Andre Evans against Holland are true as upheld by the Virginia Attorney General, then his resignation should have been forthcoming, as it was. Then whatever action deemed necessary should be taken.

Actually it would appear to be no more of a matter than was reported in the same edition of that Norfolk newspaper on the same day it reported the Hill and charges in a major second section front page story and devoted several paragraphs to an editorial.

Buried on p. 44 of that edition was a similar charge of alleged conflict of interest against an elected Norfolk City Councilman, Paul S. Schweitzer, made by Berry Willis. Not an appointed official either, but an elected official.

Willis charged that Schweitzer is guilty of conflict of interest in well-drilling done by a firm in which the Councilman is associated. Willis asked for action on the matter. No comments have been forthcoming, no follow ups and no editorials on the matter have appeared in the Norfolk newspaper on that matter.

In the interest of fairness, this does seem a bit unreasonable. Does an allegation in Virginia Beach against an appointed official merit more words and more publicity in a more prominent spot than allegations against a Norfolk Councilman? It would seem that this Norfolk matter should be pursued by the newspaper there more fully, although that is entirely up to them. They have asked no one for advice either.

There is strong speculation that the Police and Trial Board in Virginia Beach is on the way out, and it is probably a good move, but Council has not asked for our advice either.

The move has been under consideration for some time, and recent events have only given impetus to that move, not editorials or unsolicited comments from anyone.

The New Resort Season

While Virginia Beach is fast becoming a year round resort, each Memorial Day brings new excitement and a new fever pitch of activity that will go on well past Labor Day.

The city itself, regardless of its maturity and regardless of its relatively new metropolitan and cosmopolitan air, is still dependent largely on its largest industry, the resort business.

More money pours into the city coffers from this industry than from any other in Virginia Beach. And more of the resort's growing reputation is dependent upon the quality of accommodations and services than upon anything else.

We are fortunate to be considered a family resort town and still have the image for the young "in" crowd as well. This image is a tough one to come by, but through the diligent work of everyone involved, Virginia Beach is fast becoming known as an unrivaled resort on the east coast.

This is only the beginning.

Perhaps by next year with nice places to have a cocktail before dinner, the accommodations will be even larger and even better.

Surely the natives often complain when they can't find a parking place in the height of the tourist season, but we don't really mind. We are really only interested in making this a better place in which to live and a better place to visit.

Remember Cliches

Remember the cliches this Memorial Day Holiday.

If you drive, don't drink. Drive defensively. Never swim alone. Don't try to cram too much into too short a time or try to go too far. Don't be a post-holiday post-mortem.

Don't overdo the first sun-tan. Make the last one for the road coffee. Look out for the other guy.

Establish Goals

Editor, Virginia Beach Sun:

It is inconceivable that here in the twentieth century we find professing leaders of men willing to trade off the life, limb and future of the world's youth, just to fill to overflowing the coffers of the already extravagantly rich.

No one goes half way around the world looking up trouble, death and destruction for you to bear unless there is a mighty greedy motive in mind.

As always one finds the propagators of war, concocting every conceivable bit of deceitful propaganda, in order to rationalize their diabolically greedy acts.

If the cost and effort of the war-pushers was channeled into "aids for the needy," what a great blessing this would be.

In the twentieth century, one would surely expect to find philanthropy far out-weighting deceitful greed.

The world needs new goals. Let us all try to establish them.

'Poor People's March'

By Sen. Harry F. Byrd, Jr.

The highly publicized "Poor People's March on Washington" is in progress.

A cluster of plywood huts and tents now covers parkland on the banks of the Potomac intended to provide a setting for the majestic Lincoln Memorial building and the Washington Monument.

Apparently anxious to preserve the traditional right of petition—and dissent—to administration leaders granted the permit for use of this federal land in the heart of the capital city.

The permit signed May 10th required an immediate bond to assure restoration of the parklands and grounds, but this was not posted for nearly two weeks, long after the land had been occupied.

The permit expires June 16, yet leaders of the pressure campaign publicly state they plan to stay in Washington for a year or more.

What are the demands by these occupants of their self-styled "Resurrection City, U.S.A.?"

Frankly, I don't know except for a barrage of proposals for additional massive multi-billion dollar federal outlays.

Americans are a compassionate people. I support efforts to stamp out poverty and hunger, but, like education, I believe the most effective action must be at local, community and state levels.

I question that we ever can eliminate poverty by huge and costly new federal welfare programs.

All of this comes at a time when the President has been pressing for higher taxes while fencing with Congressional requirements for tandem multi-billion dollar budget cuts.

Leaders of the "march" keep repeating that their demonstrations will be non-violent—that violence will result only as a last resort.

To me, this means they will remain non-violent only if they get what they want.

As a senator, I will listen to the petitions or proposals of any group utilizing the time-tested methods of our democracy.

But I will not be intimidated. I will not submit threats to turn Washington inside out and upside down with massive civil disobedience demonstrations unless the Congress yields.

The Congress acts for all 200 million citizens—the taxpayers as well as those who seek special benefits from federal spending.

Those who agitate for massive disobedience ignore the democratic principles of civil rights for both the majority and minority, and Constitutional guarantees to the individual for safety of person and property.

They must learn that the right to dissent is not a license for descent to lawlessness.

Law-abiding and responsible citizens and their elected representatives must insist on an end to the recent spasms of violence and disorder.

They must stand squarely for vigorous enforcement of our laws and firm prosecution of those who would create anarchy.

Legislative Sessions

The following is reprinted from the publication NEWS REPORT FROM THE UNIVERSITY, edited by the information office of the University of Virginia in Charlottesville. It discusses a timely program, since a study commission is now conducting hearings toward changing the Virginia Constitution. The commission reports to the Governor late this year.

During the 1968 biennial session of the Virginia Assembly more than 1,800 bills and resolutions were introduced.

The session, because of constitutional limitations, lasted for 80 days. Suppose (and this was not the case) that the bills had been introduced at an even pace of 30 per day, and that the legislators had worked without pause for 15 hours each day. They would have been able to devote only 30 minutes of study and discussion to each measure introduced.

The futility of dealing with a legislative backlog on such a limited basis is discussed in the current issue of "Virginia Town & City" by Mrs. Judith L. Palkovitz, research assistant at the University of Virginia's Institute of Government.

If legislators are to give adequate attention to important issues affecting the State, she writes, Virginia must amend its Constitution to provide for annual sessions of the General Assembly.

Although the traditionalist will "note" that the biennial sessions have served the Commonwealth well in the past and should be continued," she says, a shift to annual sessions of the legislature would not be new to Virginia. "In fact, delegates and senators have gathered annually in Richmond for half the State's history." Beginning with the 1776 Constitution, annual sessions of the legislature were held off and on until 1901 when "biennial sessions were stipulated and the General Assembly has so met since then," she writes.

The growing importance of the study commission is an outgrowth of the constitution constraints hampering the General Assembly, she says. "State senators and delegates simply lack the time to conduct in-depth studies within the limits of the legislative session. One must sympathize with the harried legislator who must vote on measures to which he has only been able to devote limited study."

She suggests that if the General Assembly met annually, "every other session could be devoted exclusively to a consideration of the budget." An additional aid to future legislators would be that "no constitutional stipulation be placed on the length of a session."

Mrs. Palkovitz writes that "Events in other states indicate that annual sessions are being recognized as the best way in which a state legislature can effectively discharge its responsibilities."

"If Virginia retains biennial sessions it is very probable that special sessions will become more and more frequent. The demands of citizens will not abate. Before the situation visibly worsens, Virginia should amend its constitution to allow annual sessions," she concludes.

School Cafeterias Pay Own Way

By Mary Wright

With the end of the school year approaching, most mothers are beginning to think of lunch again—fixing it that is—for their children. However, there are a few Virginia Beach women who will be cutting down on the number of their daily luncheon guests, usually at least a thousand. They are the city's school lunchroom managers, all of whom are faced with the housewife's meal-planning problems, only multiplied several hundred times.

"Many parents," said Mrs. Irma Mackey, lunchroom manager at Princess Anne High, "seem to have the idea that the federal government gives us enough to run our lunchrooms. But we have to pay our way."

Milk, for example, is bought by the lunchroom for seven and a half cents a half-pint, and sold for students for five cents. "The government reimburses us," said Mrs. Mackey, "but we make absolutely no profit on the sale of milk."

Mrs. Eleanor Simpson, lunchroom manager at Kellam High School, echoed Mrs. Mackey. "I've had students ask me 'Why do we have to pay you $3.50 for lunch when the government buys all the food?'" According to all the managers interviewed, nothing could be further from the truth.

"The government surplus we get each year," said Mrs. Simpson, "accounts for approximately one-sixth of our necessities. It's a crucial amount, and we couldn't operate without it. But we must make all the replacements in kitchen equipment, pay the salaries, and buy most of the food out of our own budget."

Every school cafeteria must meet certain basic requirements in their Type A plates—the full meal: three ounces of uncooked meat, or two of cooked meat; one cup of vegetables and/or fruit; one pat of butter; one half-pint milk; bread.

Mrs. Mackey, who serves about 1,100 full plates daily, explained that high school students are not required to eat the standard Type A plate—as elementary school children are—because "by the time they reach high school they are supposed to know enough about nutrition to eat well."

"School cafeterias are ideally an educational program in eating," added Mrs. Simpson. "To teach the children what foods they should eat, in elementary schools, you can do that. But not in high schools."

Mrs. Simpson went on to explain that she had to compete with candy and cold drink vending machines located throughout the school—the profits from which go to the athletic department.

"Many people," she added, "think a lunchroom manager serves anything she pleases.

I have to fight fire with fire, and even though we aren't a profit-making lunchroom, I still have to balance my books by bringing in enough money to remain solvent, and still serve the most nutritious meals possible."

A large order, whether you are feeding six or 1600 people. The consensus of the lunchroom managers is that meat is their most expensive item. Even though the government allows meat substitutes (high protein foods, beans, cheese, etc.) to make up the two and three ounce requirements, lunchroom managers find that their students—or clients—just are not satisfied with only a meat substitute. Substitutes may be used to pad out the requirement, for example, an ounce of meat and an ounce of cheese, but not alone.

Individual tastes, another family meal-planning problem that can be translated into a lunchroom manager's problem only after being multiplied many times over, account for all the Virginia Beach lunchroom managers being pleased that they are free to plan their own menus. In contrast to the system used in the Norfolk city school system, where all schools serve identical meals every day, the Beach school cafeterias are more flexible. "Children don't all respond in the same way to the same food," said Mrs. Mackey. "After you've worked with them awhile, in one area, you know what they will eat."

"With a centralized menu-planning system," Mrs. Simpson said, "we wouldn't be able to take advantage of special buys that come on a moments notice."

"Central warehousing could lead to central menu-planning," Mrs. Simpson continued. At present, Mrs. Simpson is able to store a week's supply of food at Kellam and no more. "If we had more warehouse space," she went on, we could take better advantage of the specials."

The lunchrooms keep price lists from area wholesalers on hand, and place their orders according to the low bids on these lists for various commodities. Lunch prices, which have remained at a stationary $3.50 for several years now, may have to be raised, according to Mrs. Mackey, because of the salary-increases that will have to be made over the coming years until Virginia reaches the $1.65 minimum wage for lunchroom employees.

Government surplus foods vary from year to year, according to crops and the market. Some of the surplus goods—wheat and flour, for example—last through one school year. But surplus meats, the most expensive single item on any menu, "often last only the first couple of months of school," said Mrs. Mackey. As surpluses develop on the market, they are bought by the government and made available to school lunch-

Four students from Virginia Beach are among those who received the Bachelor of Arts degree at Hollin College. They are: Miss Margaret Holt Coleman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Claude E. Herbert of Atlantic Avenue, who received the degree in art; Miss Ann Dorsey Day, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Nere E. Day, Jr. of S. Bay Shore Drive, who received the degree in history; Miss Suzanne Dandridge Kelly, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Terry Kelly, Sr. of Thalia Point, who received the degree in politics; and Miss Gay Lloyd Pinder, daughter of the Rev. and Mrs. Joseph W. Pinder of Woodside Lane, who received the degree in philosophy. They and their 198 classmates received their diplomas at outdoor ceremonies May 26.

Miss Day was graduated with honor for maintaining an academic average of 2.3 or over on a 3 point scale. She was awarded departmental honors in history for successfully completing a major project on military history during her senior year. In addition, Miss Day was initiated into the Hollins chapter of Phi Beta Kappa for her outstanding academic record.

rooms. But rarely in great quantities, and those unexpected surpluses can never be anticipated in long-range budget-planning.

Each school lunchroom turns in an inventory sheet to the school board three or four times a year, said Mrs. Simpson, estimating the cafeteria's future needs based on the expected number of students. Order forms are compiled from the inventory list, she went on. But whether or not the orders can be filled with government surplus depends on the surplus available.

"It's a challenging job," said Mrs. Simpson, who has been a lunchroom manager for 15 years, "especially if you're trying to do your very best. And I don't suppose anyone interested enough to do their best. There's too much work involved."

Miss Holly Dearden, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Theodore E. Dearden, Declaration Road, has graduated as a United Air Lines stewardess. After completing training at United's stewardess school near Chicago, she is serving aboard flights from Washington, D.C.

Miss Dearden is a graduate of Princess Anne High School and also was educated at Old Dominion College.

Sarah Brittingham of Diamond Springs Road, has been elected a member of Pi Delta Epsilon at the College of William and Mary.

Pi Delta Epsilon is a national collegiate honorary journalism fraternity. To be elected, Miss Brittingham had to meet the requirements of a 1.4 grade average, junior or senior status and a minimum of one year outstanding work on a campus publication.

Nuns Are Healthier

Why do nuns live longer than their secular sisters? Why do they suffer less from gastrointestinal diseases such as ulcers, gall stones? Because life in a nunnery, according to James T. Nix, M.D., surgery professor, and Con J. Fecher, Ph.D. of Louisiana State University, is healthier. The researchers base their observation on continuing studies (1964 through 1967) of 106,847 nuns living in 223 religious communities, and on an analysis of 1,000 death records.

The sisters live longer in part because they live more abstemiously and work for more of their lives. They do not smoke and they take alcohol only on feast days. Their diet is lower in cholesterol than the average diet. The nuns must be susceptible to gall bladder attacks are, Dr. Nix notes, the Mother Provincials who go on frequent trips to their orders' missions. They are served richer food, usually with a high fat content. As a result they get what Dr. Nix calls "Mother Provincial syndrome."

Strikingly fewer nuns died of arteriosclerotic heart disease and major circulatory diseases than the female population in general.

Carol Doyle Devotes Time to Others

A sense of quiet charm and comfort greets the visitor to Carol Doyle's home on 44th Street and it is actually an extension of the baby of the house herself. The live oak and magnolia trees gracing the 40-year-old brick house add a stately background to complement Carol's favorite hobby, gardening, which is reflected by the carefully tended roses, azaleas and unusual foxglove plants. "You know, they make digitals from the foxglove".

Carol, her husband, John Doyle, who was born in Virginia Beach, and their children, Stacey and Kevin, moved into their home two years ago from a smaller home at the Beach and are busy redoing the large house to suit their individual requirements. "I was raised in a large two story home and still like to have my own 'spot' in a house I can call my own."

Carol is the perfect prototype about whom it is said "If you want to get something done, as a busy person". She is a member of the Norfolk Symphony Board and is also completely dedicated to her role with the United Fund Volunteer Service Bureau which places teenagers through their Guidance Counselors in voluntary work each summer. "These teenagers actually gave me 17 hours of their time last summer in projects such as Head Start and Camp Civitan working with retarded children, and so many more areas it would take hours to tell you. We're already recruiting teenagers for this summer and the response has been terrific."

In 1955 Carol was elected to be the first president of the Virginia Beach Art Association and helped organize the first Virginia Beach Boardwalk Art Show, which quickly grew each year until now it has international status.

"That experience in seeing what could be accomplished in an art field from interested people simply jumping in and getting things done is what prompted me to volunteer to co-ordinate the publicity and promotional activities for the Friends of Music Arts Festival in August.

Carol's special interest is in teaching, and she came to Virginia Beach from Norfolk County in 1950 to teach at W. T. Cooke School and later at Friends School. She enjoyed teaching so much she plans to return to it again one day. "This is another reason this first Festival is so important. It will not only demonstrate there is wide interest in serious musical performances, but eventually there will be a Sochool of Performing Arts where children can receive the very finest musical instruction available in our country. I love ALL music, from "Bach" to "Rock" and want my children and your children to have the

How About a Paper Bikini?

Fashion for fun but not forever is the watchword at Paper Caper, a new shop that opened last week on Atlantic Avenue and features fun things...all of them made from paper.

Shop manager Cindy Grainger, a native Californian, who was wearing one of the shop's paper dresses, explained that several of the styles may be washed four or five times to prolong their wearing life. And even the unwashables--sleeveless, lightweight shifts in a multitude of bright colors and prints--are fairly economical, with prices ranging from $6 to $12 for one of the floor-length dresses.

Miss Grainger said that the dresses, all of which are bought at New York, do not appeal only to young people. She has had several "over 25" customers.

The shop handles other items than the basic shifts, raincoats, bermuda shorts and blouses, (vinyl-coated) paper flowers in all colors--which Miss Grainger makes herself--and even paper-bikinis...which should appeal to male beach-goers.

Paper Caper shop hours begin at 10 a.m. and will continue through sunset, according to Miss Grainger. The shop will be open for the summer season.

Miss Grainger holds up one of the paper dresses sold at Paper Caper. Her hat is made of the same stuff. The walls in the shop are wood.

Strawberries To Be Served

The public is invited to attend a strawberry festival being held this Saturday, June 1st, at the Masonic Temple on Princess Anne Road under the sponsorship of the members of the Kempsville Eastern Shore Chapter.

Mrs. W.J. Moore Jr., festival publicity chairman, says the day's menu will consist of hot dogs, hamburgers, soft drinks and strawberry shortcake with whipped cream. Soft drinks and other special items will also be offered for sale.

A special highlight of the day will be the crowning of a "king" of the Kempsville DeMolay and a "queen" of the Kempsville Chapter of Jobs Daughters.

Serving of food is scheduled to begin at noon and continue until the supply of food and soft drinks is exhausted.

City Councilman Albert Bonney and Ernest Price discuss Price's new twin-screen drive-in theatre, which opens this week, while attending a pre-opening barbecue last Saturday at the theatre.

A Delicious Way To Get Fat

A new restaurant has just been opened at Colonial Williamsburg, and it is lovely.

It is the Cascades, built near the Information Center, and is constructed on a natural slope in a wooded setting. It gets its name from the cascade of water tumbling down the hillside for diners to view. It was a little disconcerting to learn that the cascade is not only man-made, but the water is re-circulated from the air conditioning and refrigeration units.

The Cascades, last part of the expansion of the Information Center-The Motor House complex, was the site of a recent, informal get-together of the Virginia Press Women's Association. Included in the evening's program were several of the new restaurant's featured recipes. The menu features "Chesapeake Bay Country" fares as well as "World-wide favorites." Following are some of their favorites:

FRUIT SALAD--Split pineapple in half, hollow out trough in middle with a grapefruit knife, fill with citrus fruits, pineapple, banana, strawberries, cherries, any other fruit seasonally available, and serve with honey dressing.

HONEY DRESSING

- 1/4 c. vinegar
- 1/8 c. sugar
- 1/8 c. light honey
- 1/2 tsp. paprika
- 1/2 tsp. celery seed
- 1/2 tsp. celery salt
- 1/2 tsp. onion juice
- 1/2 c. vegetable oil

Put vinegar, sugar, honey and paprika in double boiler and cook for 1/2 hour slowly. Measure other ingredients in mixing pan and after first ingredients have cooked, pour hot mixture over. Set mixture in ice and whip oil in slowly. Serves 6.

CLAM PANCAKES

Mince three dozen clams. Beat six eggs well and add 3/4 cup flour, 3/4 teaspoon baking powder, salt, cayenne, nutmeg to taste, black pepper to taste, and a generous tablespoon finely chopped parsley. Beat until blended and add the clams. Fry on grill heated to 350 degrees and serve with supreme sauce. (Serves six portions as appetizers of silver-dollar size.)

SUPREME SAUCE

Mix 2 tablespoons butter, 4 tablespoons flour and cook to light color. Add four ounces chicken stock and four ounces clam juice (first reduce clam juice by cooking to half volume for additional clam taste). Mix into flour mixture, cook at medium temperature for 15 minutes stirring constantly, salt and pepper to taste. This should produce enough sauce for six portions of appetizer-size clam pancakes.

Duck a l' orange

- 1 duck
- 6 T. butter
- 1 1/2 cups bouillon
- 3/4 c. dry white wine
- 1 veal knuckle, sawed pieces
- 5 oranges
- salt and pepper

Prepare and truss the duck as though for roasting. Heat the butter in a large pan and brown the duck well on all sides over a moderate heat. Season with salt and pepper and add the bouillon, wine, and veal bones. Cover and simmer for 2 hours.

Remove from the pan and strain the sauce. Put the sauce back in the pan and add the juice of 2 oranges and their rind cut in thin strips and boiled 2 minutes. Use only the colored part of the orange rind.

Put the duck on a serving platter. Garnish with orange slices cut in halves or in star shapes.

Reheat the sauce, letting it boil for a second or two, and pour over the duck.

Serve with boiled rice. A serving for four people.

Steak Tartare

Use prime, lean meat.

- 1/4 lb. fresh ground lean beef
- 1 egg yolk
- 1 tsp. chopped parsley
- 3 tsp. capers
- 1 medium onion, chopped fine
- 2 anchovy strips

Oil
Worcestershire Sauce
French Mustard
Salt and Pepper

(See "Steak" p. 7)

Clean Waters Group Plan Convention Here in June

Recently, contracts were signed with the CLEAN WATER AND OUTDOOR RECREATION INSTITUTES to hold their fourth annual seminar and convention at Virginia Beach, June 23-25.

Registration will begin at 3 p.m., June 23, at the Virginia Beach Civic Center followed by a banquet at the Cavalier Hotel. The general session opens at the Civic Center on June 24 at 9 a.m.; luncheon at 12:30 p.m. at the Civic Center.

Tours begin at the Hampton Roads Sanitary Authority at 2 p.m., with an intermediate stop at the Virginia Beach Demonstration Sanitary Land Fill. Other important events will include a 40-minute film on "Preservation of Water" presented by the Clean Water Institute; and a list of dignitaries from all over the entire State of Virginia and from our Nation's Capitol in Washington, D.C.

Kempsville Has Election

Last week was election time at Kempsville High School. All week long campaign posters were hung in the halls by campaign managers urging the student body to vote for their candidate.

Thursday, candidates running for an office in the S.C.A. made their campaign speeches before the student body. During the following election, Kempsville students also selected the Cherokee Indian Tribe to help with student-sponsored scholarships.

Kempsville's new S. C. A. officers are Randy Wald, president; Leslie Falls, vice president; Jenny Meredith, secretary; Linda Lane, treasurer and Debbie Bowman, historian. Kempsville's class of 1971 (freshmen) were issued forms last week for suggestions on class colors, motto, gift, etc. The suggestions will be voted on during the class's sophomore or junior year.

Kempsville's first annual athletic banquet was Wednesday, May 15, in the school cafeteria. The purpose of the banquet was to honor the school's outstanding athletes and to present them with certificates of merit. The Booster Club and girls from the home economics department served as waitresses.

An awards assembly will be held at Kempsville today, May 29, to recognize outstanding students in various departments of the school.

After a 28-game winning streak, Kempsville's baseball team suffered two losses, to Norview and Lake Taylor, but came back to take Norfolk Academy with a 15-3 score, and then a win over Norfolk Catholic.

Mrs. Myatt Joins Firm

Mrs. Myatt has been appointed sales representative for the Dale Carnegie Courses in Tidewater.

The announcement was made recently by Robert W. Porter, manager of the Dale Carnegie Courses in Tidewater Virginia. Mrs. Myatt was formerly associated with the Dale Carnegie organization for five years in New Orleans, Louisiana. While there she was presented the Knight of the Golden Circle award for excellence in selling. She is a graduate of the Dale Carnegie Course in Effective Speaking and Human Relations, the Dale Carnegie Sales Course, and the Dorothy Carnegie Course in Personal Development for Women.

With her daughter and her husband, Thomas, Mrs. Myatt lives at Malibu Palms.

Senior Gets Fellowship

Miss Sue Sellers, of Virginia Beach, a history major at Randolph-Macon Woman's College, has been selected for a graduate fellowship by the Woodrow Wilson National Fellowship Foundation.

She was one of about 150 college seniors in the U.S. and Canada to be named a Woodrow Wilson Fellow this year. The Foundation had selected over 1000 each year for graduate fellowship grants over the past ten years.

Miss Sellers will be granted a stipend of $2,410 to cover tuition and expenses for her first year of graduate study at the University of Wisconsin where she plans to concentrate on South and Southeast Asian studies. This summer she will

'Youngsters' Star in VBLT Production

By Penny Martin

The Little Theatre of Virginia Beach presents its final play of the season, "Hay Fever," Noel Coward's light comedy of the 1920's, opening Friday night at the Courtyard playhouse, Eden's Alley.

This play is one of Coward's earliest comedies, written when he was only 25 himself, and it opened on Broadway with a cast headed by Laura Hope Crews while another of his plays, "The Vortex," in which he himself played a leading role, was also running. Coward was almost an infant prodigy, writing plays, acting, singing and playing the piano in his own plays before he was out of his teens.

The Virginia Beach production of this play seems to echo Coward's youthful talents: of the cast of nine, all but two are in their twenties and most of them have not long left their teens. One of them, Mike Barlow, who plays a leading role, only graduated from Princess Anne High in June, 1967.

As seems usual with the Beach Little Theatre, the U.S. Navy has brought much talent to the group. Gretchen Otto, for example, who plays the leading ingenue Sorel Bliss, has been married for less than a year. Her husband, Art, is an ensign aboard the U.S.S. Lorain County. She and Art met while attending St. Olaf College at Northfield, Minn., her native state.

A similar pattern—meeting and marrying while attending the same school—was followed by Terry Moore, who plays the part of a simple young "flapper" in the show. Her husband, also an ensign, is serving aboard the U.S.S. Spiegel Grove. They are old married people, however, having already celebrated their second anniversary!

Terry is from New Jersey, but her husband Bill is a Tarheel. Currently employed as a continuity director with a local radio station, she lists many theatrical credits from Shakespeare to musicals.

Mike Barlow, who plays Sorel's brother Simon, is the youngest member of the cast and is now attending the College of the Albemarle in Elizabeth City, commuting from home in Virginia Beach down to school, back home and to the theatre every night. A busy schedule, but it doesn't seem to trouble this energetic young man. In the 1968 Drama Festival he won an award for his acting in a one-act play (which he also directed) presented by the Carolina Drama Association. Mike is majoring in drama and hopes eventually to go to New York to further his studies.

Michael Donohue, as his name would suggest, is a real, genuine, native-born Irishman. He came to this country at the age of four, however, and now calls Michigan his home. After a year in college, he enlisted in the Navy for a four-year term and is a hospital corpsman on the U.S.S. Orion. He plans to return to college after he leaves the Navy and one day to make a career on the stage. Under the heading of "experience," he lists a year with "a group of rowdies identified as a Dramatic Workshop." Mike will be seen in "Hay Fever" as a typically inarticulate young Englishman.

"Hay Fever" will run Friday, May 31, and will continue June 1, 2, 7, 8 and 9, with nightly performances at 8:30, and Sunday performances at 3:30 p.m. Reservations may be made by calling 428-8500 Monday through Saturday, 8 a.m. to 6 p.m.

VIRGINIA BEACH LAWNS & GARDENS

Exclusive in the Sun

Edited by four turf and garden authorities living in Virginia Beach.

Flower Gardens Provide Recreation

Flower gardens provide much summer recreation throughout the United States.

Each garden has individuality. It may be very small, a splash of color asserted by blue delphiniums and lemon-yellow snapdragons in a border; pink and white geraniums near a door or high blue morning glories on a white lattice.

A garden may be serenely formal, with carefully groomed shrubs, trees and lawns, or delightfully hodgepodge, full of unexpected surprises such as poppies close to a rock, hyacinths in a tub, a curtain of green beans on tall poles. A garden may be very specialized: all roses, irises or lilies.

The joys in a garden full of flowers far outweigh the chores. Care is not excessive if plants are suitable for the location. Those without a long list of ills have been selected. The latter become increasingly fewer in number as new varieties are bred for resistance, and disease and insect control methods improve.

Fragrance is one of the charms we really expect when we see flowers. Not all have it, but those that do contribute much to our enjoyment. No one is sweetly scented into a single garden, but we all want and need a few. We want them where we can enjoy them most, in the intimate portions of our flower planting. Near the doorways, the terraces and along frequently used walks are ideal places for fragrant flowers.

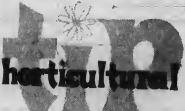

The majority of our favorite flowers and roses give us some of the sweetest fragrance of all, and should be included in our gardens. Whatever type of garden we develop, there are fragrant blossoms for it.

Horticulture Is New Topic For 4-H'ers

The nation's three million 4-H Club members are versatile as well as dedicated to make the best use of "head, heart, hands and health." Dozens of projects are offered by the Cooperative Extension Service. They are designed to develop confidence and skills. Learning by doing leads to home and farm projects that benefit the youths and their families as well.

One such project is horticulture. Its broad scope covers ornamental gardening, raising produce for home use and for sale, architectural landscaping and keeping up the home grounds.

To encourage the young gardeners in their work, AHS-4-H Chalmers, the national 4-H Horticultural program sponsor, offers annual awards including six national scholarships, and trips to the National 4-H Congress in Chicago.

Any boy or girl between 9 and 19 years of age interested in starting a 4-H Horticultural project should contact the agriculture extension office at Princess Anne Courthouse, 427-1111.

NOW IS THE TIME TO...

Lawn: Mow regularly, not removing more than 1/3 or leaf surface at a time. Feed with a fertilizer-weed control plant food such as a 5-8-7 to feed and control insects at same time.

Pinch back tall, growing annuals and late blooming perennials to make bushy plants. Set our all tender plants like dwarf dahlias, calladiums, etc., if not done already.

Azaleas-Evergreens: Prune

Don't treat a mixed population of ornamentals without checking the label for all of them. DCPA, which has a trade name, Dacthal, is one of our safest weed killers for use by the homeowner. It is used in lawns for crabgrass control; in the home garden for weed control in most vegetables; and is safe on nearly all woody ornamentals and many herbaceous flowers.

The material is safe to use on aster, coleus, dahlia, iris, lily, marigold, petunia, snapdragon and many others.

DCPA is readily available at most lawn and garden supply centers. It can be had both as a granular material and as a wettable powder.

Q. What is meant by a graft?

J.T., Kings Grant.

A. A graft is the union of parts of two plants in such a manner that they will grow together to form one plant. It consists of two parts: the understock and the scion. The union of these two, by grafting, results in a new plant having the roots of one plant and the branches, leaves, flowers and fruit of the plant from which the scion was taken.

Q. Is it necessary to have different types of soil for the common vegetables, such as carrots, lettuce, cabbage, etc.?

J.S., Back Bay.

A. No. In a well-prepared garden plot practically the complete list of vegetables can be grown satisfactorily. It is important, however, that the soil be slightly acid in reaction. If it is too acid or too alkaline, many vegetables will not do well.

Q. Why do begonias bloom in hot weather, and not after I get them home. I have one now, it grows just fine, but no flowers.

D.S., Bayside.

A. Possibly too little light. Begonias need light shade from intense summer sun, but good light is necessary for flower production, especially during winter.

Q. How do we take care of Norfolk-Island Pine during the summer? Jean Quarry, Va. Beach.

A. Araucaria Excelsa makes a good but slow-growing pot plant. During the summer, sink pot outside in light shade and syringe and water regularly. In winter, it wants 55 to 60 F., and even light to keep it shapely. Spray regularly to prevent spider and mealy-bug attack with a BC or broad control spray.

Q. Do you trim Nandina plants? If so, when? B.M., Kempsville.

A. Pruning is usually unnecessary. If, however, they are too large for the space you want them to occupy, the entire plant may be trimmed back, or the older, heavier shoots may be cut clear back to the ground. During winter or very early spring, new shoots will appear from the roots.

Rose Is 'Queen'

The rose is the favorite flower of the world. And its popularity is noticeably increasing each year. It is rightfully named the "Queen." Almost everyone has a rose of some type in his garden, or established in the landscaping about his home.

Contrary to what some people think, roses are easy to grow. All that is necessary is to keep in mind a few important steps regarding rose culture. Although roses are very tolerant, they readily respond to attention. A little loving care will reward you in many blooms of rich quality.

The blooming period for the rose is longer than any other flower. Peonies bloom only about ten days and they are through for the year. A gladiolus bulb or tulip bulb may bloom about two weeks, and the lilac bush and most other flowering shrubs bloom for a short time each year. But the rose bush will bloom from May through October in the Tidewater area. The rose bush is a hard working plant. Because of its long blooming period, it deserves a little extra attention.

When planning a rose garden, it is important to determine the amount of space you have available. Then you should decide what type of roses you desire to plant. The most popular types are as follows:

Hybrid Teas seem to be gaining over the others in popularity. They have large, beautifully formed blooms on long stems, making them excellent for cutting. Bushes grow from 2 to 5 feet high, and the foliage is large and attractive. Floribunda and Pinyantha bushes are about the same size as the Hybrid Teas but are usually recognized as more hardy. These types bear flowers in clusters with many small blooms to each stem, making them very desirable for mass color display in the garden. The Floribundas are more dense than the Pinyanthas. Grandifloras are very much like the Hybrid Teas in habit and appearance, except that they have a few more blooms on each stem, and the bushes grow taller.

Miniature Roses--these bushes grow from six to 12 inches in height and have very small leaves and blooms 1/2 inch in diameter or less. They are a novelty, and should be grown in a small bed by themselves, or used in a rock garden, or, in some instances, edging.

Climbers--this type produces long (6 to 15 foot) canes. They should have the support of a trellis or fence. Except for the climbing hybrid teas and climbing floribundas, most climbers are very hardy.

Tree Roses--these are very attractive and furnish a special effect in the garden. They stand about six or seven feet tall and are produced by grafting bush roses such as hybrid teas, floribundas, or grandifloras onto a tall cane. They require special winter protection. Otherwise, they are cultured like bush roses.

Sooner or later, that day comes, the day when a woman feels she's changing. It's not a good feeling either. And she could use a good old-fashioned medicine then.

Could be you feel a little edgy, or maybe cross. You might even have what we call hot flashes and feel sad and slightly off-balance.

Whatever you feel, we have something for the day you need a little comforting. Lydia E. Pinkham Tablets. They're made with gentle, natural ingredients that work to give you a better sense of well-being.

With an old-fashioned problem like this, couldn't you take an old-fashioned medicine?
